"A Little Thing to Look For But a Big Thing to Find" Is This Sign of Quality

A few years ago one of the big clothing makers of the country, speaking of their name label sewed on the inside of their coats, said—"It is a little thing to look for, but a big thing to find."

You'll agree that was a mighty good phrase.
It said so much in so little.
It just made you feel as if a coat with that label in it was just all a coat should be.
Some of us even went so far as to be careful to fold our overcoats with that label so it could be seen.
In confidence just between ourselves, you and I kind of figured that letting it be known that we wear those Quality Clothes, kind of gave us a standing of quality, and we didn't mind having folks know it.

Last year when we decided to put a label on our houses in the form of the above handsome bronze name plate, Premier Gardens houses at Maywood, Illinois, was the first place it was used.
Mr. Weiss requested that it be "put over every door so whoever passed through would be sure to see it," as he said. He had a pride in having it known that his houses were the L. & B. brand.

To quote Robert Simpson of Eastern rose growing fame: "I had always wanted to own Lord & Burnham houses, as I felt they were the best that could be built.
Aside from the pride of their possession, I knew that a man with the best tools can do the best work."

Gradually we will have our bronze name plate on every house we have built, when owners desire it.
But it will take some time to get around with our little old screw drivers to put them up.
If you want yours right away, just drop us a card and will send you one for over the inside door for each of your houses.

"It's a little thing to look for, but a big thing to find."

MR. FLORIST!!

Plant Bodger's Seeds and they will "Say It with Flowers"

We have been working for several years perfecting stocks and we are now able to assist you in giving the flower-buying public what they are calling for: the beautiful pastel shades of delicate pinks, tyrian rose, fiery cerise and an endless list of pleasing shades in a New Type of immense size and unusual petalage, the Dahlia Flowered Zinnia. This type is popularizing the Zinnia. We have also introduced in Giants the Picotee, the Victory Quilled and a rich Golden Yellow called "Buttercup." These are distinctive and attractive as cut flowers. We have also on the market the long-stemmed Beauty Type of Aster and next year will have an Early Flowering Aster in this type for you.

We also recommend our Selected Strains of Cregos and American Branching, our Fancy Strains of Half Dwarf Cineraria, Calendula, Candytuft, the New Double Cosmos, White, Pink and Crimson; Giant Zinnia in fifteen distinct shades, and many other reselected strains for florists.

We are growers and sell only in bulk, but all reliable seedsmen carry —

Golden Yellow Sweet Peas!

McClenahan's Yellow Flower Dye

Will quickly and uniformly dye white, light-pink and rose-pink peas to golden yellow, apricot and burnt orange respectively

For two years I have supplied dyed peas to the Oklahoma City market, and they are now more popular than ever. The peas take the dye perfectly. It never streaks, but diffuses through the petals so the veins are not distinguishable, and the dyed flowers appear so natural that many people search seed catalogues and make diligent inquiry for seed of these new colors.

White Carnations take the dye to a medium yellow, sometimes leaving part of the central tuft uncolored, but producing a charming effect.

So far as we have experimented, roses seem to take the dye as readily as peas do. Cecile Brunners quickly change to orange.

See What a User Says:

"We have been handling Sweet Peas from you for the last two years, and have always been more than pleased with the yellow, apricot, and the burnt orange, which you have colored with McClenahan's Yellow Flower Dye. The colors have always been clear and real, never showing streaks as we have noticed in other dyes. We know the dye to be a great success."—THE FOSTER FLORAL CO., Oklahoma City, Okla., April 30, 1921.

This dye keeps indefinitely in dry form, dissolves instantly, and we use same solution for one to two weeks.

PRICE, sufficient to make one quart, $1.00, prepaid. Six for $5.00.

JOHN ELLSWORTH, President and Manager

THE JOHN ELLSWORTH GREENHOUSES

Mr. George Lawler, Grand Island, Nebraska, 5/1/1921.
Gardenville, Tacoma, Wash.
Dear Sir:

Enclosed find $1.00, for which send that amount of Poppy Seed, ''Mrs. Lawler.'' The dollar's seed we bought last spring did not get sown out of doors, was too busy. I sowed it in the greenhouse the 23rd of August and cut our first blossoms the 24th of April this spring. Has made a very nice flower inside and we are using everything that comes in bloom. So far the center flower is the only one that has come out. We think the others will be out for Memorial Day. If they do, it will surely be fine. We are certainly pleased with it.

Very respectfully,
ELLSWORTH GREENHOUSES.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

HOLD YOUR OWN FLOWER SHOW

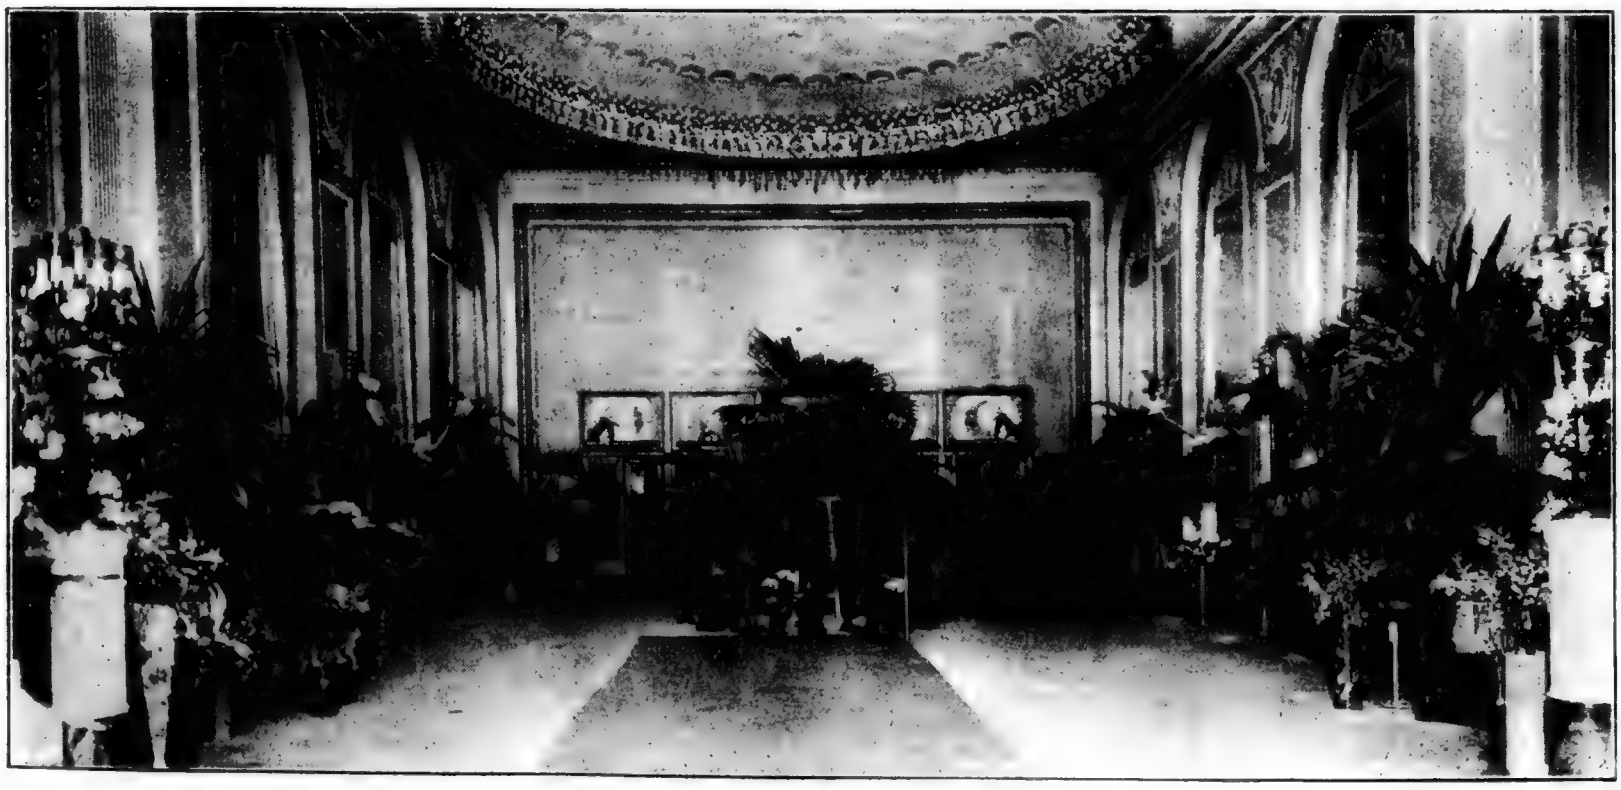
How to make the public want more flowers is a question florists are answering by many forms of advertising. Just now everybody wants to create more business. Here is described a way already demonstrated successful and frequently employed, which might be used by more florists.

WHETHER it is such an elaborate array as a national flower show of the Society of American Florists or a display of seasonable plants and blooms filling one florist's store, the business-creating ability of a flower exhibition has been demonstrated so frequently and so decisively that it is indisputable. So it is that there is competition among the cities of the country for the privilege of holding the national flower show. So it is that the New York trade, having witnessed the notable results that accrued from one of the big S. A. F. flower shows, vowed that never again should a year pass without an exhibition at the Grand Central Palace to stimulate and renew the floral desires of the metropolitan populace. So it is that Boston, whose Massachusetts Horticultural Society throws open to the public a number of shows each year, maintains an unflagging demand in her many fine flower shops.

Opportunity for More.

Examples are not confined, either, to the big cities. The small communities, where a church houses a collection of amateur and professional exhibits or a local civic society stages an annual show, demonstrate equally well their stimulating effect on the florists' business. Just as the trade as a whole promotes the great arrays that compose the metropolitan shows, so the florist in the small town usually is largely responsible for the local exhibition.

Since the trade slogan has brought the notice of other lines of business more directly on us, there is greater opportunity than before for local exhibitions, which will stimulate sales and may be held more frequently and without the tremendous outlay of time and money that one of the big shows necessitates. Examples of this have been given in these columns before. One that was strikingly successful occurred in St. Louis the last week in April.



When a new "movie palace," constructed on a most ornate and elaborate scale, was preparing to open, the management collaborated with the local florists' publicity committee regarding an exhibition in the large lobby during opening week. The coöperative plan of a free flower show, which would be seen by thousands of people, seemed so attractive to all consulted that it met an enthusiastic reception.

The lobby was placed at the disposal of the florists' committee, which secured from the retailers, wholesalers and park department a splendid array of palms, blooming plants, baskets of cut flowers and decorative materials. Part of the result may be viewed in the illustration on this page. The interior of the theater was also decorated lavishly with the same material. Even the box office, a marble booth in the lobby, was festooned with greens and surmounted by boxes of blooming plants.

Coöperative Support.

In return for the display furnished by the florists of St. Louis, the management of the Missouri theater advertised the exhibition heavily in the daily papers, using large spaces all week and featuring the trade slogan.

One act of the daily program during this opening week was entitled, "Say It with Flowers." It was termed a "musical floral pageant" on the program, and was laid in a St. Louis flower shop. The characters were Rose, Violet, Daisy, Buttercup, Black-Eyed Susan, Lily, Pansy and Tulip. This musical number was enacted six times each day during the week and proved what is theatrically termed a hit. In fact, St. Louis florists say, the entire affair, so far as the floral end of it is concerned, was a hit with the public, and, therefore, with the trade. The publicity obtained in the local papers, in illustrations and write-ups, would have cost far more than the theater spent in advertising besides. All this the florists obtained for the expense and effort connected with the display, which were, comparatively, insignificant.

The occasions when shows of this kind can be held seem to be constantly increasing. Affairs of such a coöperative nature are not rare; this was one of the most successful recently noted. There is opportunity, too, for the small town florist to promote similar affairs. The scale will be smaller, since the community is smaller, but the benefit in a trade way may be proportionately as large.

For Instance.

For instance, Hermon Brown writes of the way local enthusiasm has been aroused in the little town of Gilroy, Cal. He says:

"You will be interested to know what our little California town of Gilroy does in a floral way. We have a population between 2,000 and 3,000. We are in the center of a prune-growing district, but a wonderful place for flowers to grow. This year we have just held our eighth annual show. It is an amateur show with, this year, only one professional exhibit. We had a fine exhibit in almost all classes, although we were about one week early for the best of the garden blooms.

"We get the best judges we can each year and are trying to make our classification such that anyone with a good flower or plant can enter for competition. This year we had for judges W. B. Clarke, of San Jose, who is especially posted on roses; H. G. Keerling, of San Jose, an iris and amaryllis enthusiast, and James E. Brown, of Capitola, whose specialty is bulbs. We had Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. McChesney (Mr. Keerling's daughter) and three of the high school teachers judge the arranged flowers, and Miss Edith Patton to judge the wild flowers. The prizes are donated by local firms and the premium list is printed by one or two banks, which have their advertisements on it.

"There were a good number of roses and an extremely good exhibit of iris, about thirty different varieties. Long-spurred hybrid columbines were fine. The six decorated dining tables added much to the beauty of the hall. But the best feature of the show was the wild flower and children's exhibit on the second day. There were four entries in the prize-winning wild flower exhibit, with 244 different wild flower varieties, not counting grasses or ferns. The arranged flower bouquets and baskets of flowers by the children were fine. I only wish they could have been judged against the ones arranged by the adults.

"These annual shows are doing a great deal to improve the home surroundings. People are growing improved varieties and are taking a keener interest in better and more flowers. The benefit to the trade is a decided one and growing each year."

So, here are suggestions as to staging your own flower show, whether or not the national flower show is a thousand miles away or whether or not you have a local society big enough to make a display that commands attention. You are creating business in other ways. Here is one more which, perhaps, you haven't tried.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

MOTHERS' DAY AND MISS JARVIS.

There has been some controversy about the use of Mothers' day in connection with the sale of flowers by the trade. Threats of infringement and trespassing on such rights have been made by the International Mothers' Day Association, of which Miss Jarvis is president.

Miss Jarvis originated Mothers' day and it placed her name on the honor roll for the good of humanity. She received full credit for her beautiful thought. But Mothers' day got beyond her after its inception, as it was then up to the people to carry it on according to her own wishes and suggestion.

Her thought and idea was that every person who had a mother living should wear a colored carnation, and everyone whose mother was dead, a white one. Naturally, the florists took up the idea and made Mothers' day, through publicity, just what Miss Jarvis wished it to be.

The florists soon saw the folly of making carnations the emblem of Mothers' day; so through educational publicity they advocated any flower as a suitable gift or emblem. This was done to keep all flowers on a reasonable basis, as otherwise there was room for exorbitant prices on carnations, due to an inadequate supply.

Miss Jarvis can be thankful to the florists for taking up Mothers' day, for it was through their publicity that the day and its observance was made so nation-wide.

Suppose no notice had been taken of it by the trade at all—it, and likewise Miss Jarvis, would soon have been forgotten, like many similar days that are not kept in the minds of the people.

It is the unexpected result that is perhaps leading Miss Jarvis, or those behind her in the scheme, now to repudiate it. She, no doubt, thinks highly of her idea and so did the public, as it has shown by taking it up as it did.

Mothers' day is sentimental, and flowers are the only gift or emblem that will perpetuate the idea as inaugurated by Miss Jarvis. It is not being commercialized, as she believes, as the people are demanding what she advocated and the florists' trade is ready to supply it.

The trade must be alert to keep Mothers' day in observance by preparing in advance to meet the requirements. Stock must be kept on a reasonable basis to keep aloof from any criticism regarding profiteering or commercializing the day. Other lines of business are taking advantage of it. Some of our newspaper advertisements say, "Buy a Victrola for Mother." The jewelers say, "Buy a Gift That Lasts." One investment company advertised, "Buy Mother a Bond." All the novelty stores are advocating beautiful Mothers' day cards and candy manufacturers are pushing candy. Let's keep the sentiment, "flowers," where it belongs, as it was the original wish of Miss Jarvis at the day's inception.

Miss Jarvis needed the coöperation of the florists to disseminate her idea of Mothers' day and, if she would now coöperate with them in the same spirit as she did when the day was proclaimed, the glory and benefit of Mothers' day would still be going to Miss Jarvis.

WABAN CONSERVATORIES SOLD.

About 100 prominent growers of Boston and vicinity attended the auction sale May 9 of the Waban Rose Conservatories, at Natick, Mass., by Receiver Francis E. Goodale. The greenhouses, with sixty acres of land, were sold to the Park Trust Co., of Worcester, for $30,000. Two other parcels of land were sold separately.

The greenhouses include about 160,000 square feet of glass, among which is one Hitchings house 45x950 feet, two Hitchings houses 22x750, an iron-framer 18x350, and several iron-frame and wooden-frame houses 20x300.

THE BEST SWEET PEAS.

The question as to which are the best sweet peas is not an easy one to answer, writes George W. Kerr, in the 1921 bulletin of the American Sweet Pea Society. There are now so many first-class varieties to choose from that when we try to suggest a list of, say, twelve of the best, we are sure to leave out certain sorts with which other growers might be inclined to head their list. Then, certain varieties do better on some soils and under peculiar local conditions than others, so that it is almost impossible to find unanimity of opinion when we ask, "Which are the twelve best sweet peas?"

Here is a good set, suitable alike for either exhibition or general cutting purposes: Constance Hinton, or King White; Royal Purple, Mrs. Tom Jones, Warrior, Hawlmark Pink, Orchid, Picture, Cherub, Mrs. C. P. Tomlin, Hope, Tangerine and Elegance.

The best of today, however, may have to take second place tomorrow, for as new varieties are introduced in such numbers year after year, some of them (not all by any means) are sure to surpass others in the same shade of color.

Of last year's introductions the outstanding varieties were Hawlmark Pink, Doris, a splendid cerise; Pink Pearl, Hebe, Unwin's Pink and Commander Godsall, all of which will be leaders in their various colors.

For 1921 there is a long list, many of which I have yet to see in bloom. Those I have been fortunate enough to inspect are certainly magnificent. Royal Scot may be said to head the list—a vivid orange-scarlet, practically fire-red, it is certainly "great." Picture is another superb novelty of enormous size; color, rich cream-pink. Bridesmaid is a fine deep pink on cream ground; Caress, a pale cream-pink; Hawlmark Lavender, a charming shade of pale lavender, extra large; Margaret Atlee Improved, a greatly improved form of the old favorite; Rosalind, a rich, bright rose of great size; Hawlmark Maroon, a fine mahogany self.

OLD WILT IN NEW PLACE

NEW DISEASE ON SNAPDRAGONS.

An Old Wilt in a New Place.

By JOHN C. RASMUSSEN.

A new disease of snapdragons has appeared in Indiana. Perhaps it is somewhat erroneous to say "a new disease," because it is really an old enemy, especially familiar to lettuce and cucumber growers. However, it has not been reported on antirrhinum previous to this time.

The name of the fungus, to those scientifically inclined, is Sclerotinia libertiana. It is better known to greenhouse men, especially vegetable growers, under the names of lettuce wilt, lettuce drop, cucumber wilt and timber rot. A wilt of petunias and of numerous unimportant plants is also ascribed to this fungus.

The virulence of attack on lettuce plants, both indoors and in the field, is such that as much as from fifty to seventy-five per cent of the crop has been lost. Likewise, a few years back, cucumber growers faced similar losses due to this fungus. How badly the antirrhinum, with its harder wood, may be affected is a question answered by only one case. At Anders Rasmussen's place, at New Albany, Ind., where this infestation first made itself noticeable, the head foreman estimates the season's loss of plants at 100, or eight per cent of the total number of plants. The disease made its appearance in the dull winter months. The vigorous spring growth has not seemed to abate the slow, steady attack to any marked degree. At Christmas there were about ten or twelve diseased plants in the bench. At Easter there was a like number. The disease was not confined to one particular spot in the benches, although at one place there were six dying or dead plants. The fact that this disease was spread over a 300-foot bench seems to indicate that it was brought in either in the soil or the manure.

Infected Snapdragon Plant.
(Mycelium Appears on Stem and at Base.)

How It Acts.

The first indication of trouble is a wilting of the plant or of a part of the plant. In many instances one branch will wilt, followed in a few days by wilting of the whole plant, succeeded by death. The infected branches, or the main stem, or both, turn brown. If the grower looks closely he will usually see a white cotton-like material clinging to the brown, dead stem tissue. This is the mycelium, or vegetable portion of the fungus, which has entirely permeated the stem and has finally burst through the bark. This cottony growth is not always visible when the plant dies. However, it appears if the plant is allowed to remain in the bench for several days after death. One of the illustrations shows a plant which was artificially inoculated with the disease, from pure culture. The fine, thread-like mycelium can plainly be seen at the base of the plant and on the stem. The wad of cotton, which was used to hold down evaporation and keep in moisture at the base of the plant, is also visible on the soil.

If the plant is undisturbed, small, hard, black bodies of irregular and varying shape develop, ranging from the size of a shot to the size of a pea. These bodies are called sclerotia. They develop both on the outside and in the interior of the diseased stems. The larger number of these sclerotia will be found in the pithy, brown stem by carefully splitting the branch. One of the photographs shows vertical sections of diseased stems containing these bodies.

Determining the Disease.

The significance of emphasizing these sclerotia is twofold. One is that they are a clinching means of identifying this disease; the other lies in the fact that herein is the weak point in the life cycle of this fungus, which allows us good control.

The methods of control are those of prevention. There is no known cure for a fungus-permeated plant. These sclerotia, alone, are capable of carrying this disease over from one year to the next. They may live over more than one year, but in such reduced numbers as to be of little consequence. Therefore, get rid of the sclerotia formed this year, by destroying every plant that has the infection, as shown by the obvious wilting of the plant. Dr. F. L. Stevens demonstrated the efficiency of this method in 1906, in North Carolina, when growers of frame lettuce were suffering enormous losses.

Beds of lettuce, containing about 1,200 plants in all, were inoculated with this disease. All of the plants died. Next year, in the same bed without further treatment, 545 plants out of 1,200 died. This time, each plant was removed and destroyed as it died, thus preventing any new sclerotia being left in the soil. The following year in the same bed only seven plants died. The next year nine plants died. The control was practically perfect. Therefore, destroy your sick plants as soon as you see them.

Spreading the Spores.

The sclerotia do not directly cause infection. They must first grow and produce spores; a single one is estimated to produce approximately 300,000,000 spores, or seeds as it were. These are spread about by the various agencies of air currents and water, as in spraying. The spores will not infect a plant directly. They must first fall on some decaying matter, as dead leaves or manure, and get a good start there. The disease then spreads to the plant. Here is a second weak point. If the bench is kept clean of decaying matter, there will be no suitable resting place for the fungus to get started.

Soil sterilization will kill all sclerotia and hence limit the disease.

The only thing that can be said about possible infection from fresh soil is to avoid soils on which there is known to have been a wilt.

In order to be sure that the disease which I have described was due to the fungus mentioned, I attempted to reproduce the diseased condition on healthy plants. I grew some of the cottony mycelium on a jelly-like substance, called agar, in a sterile glass dish and under sterile conditions. Meanwhile I had procured four healthy snapdragon plants and three lettuce plants. After they had a good start I inoculated three of the snapdragon and two of the lettuce plants with this pure culture of the fungus, leaving one of each variety of plant as a check. In five days both lettuce plants were dead. One snapdragon plant was wilted and the next day was plainly dead. One of the other plants had one infected and wilted branch. At the end of fifteen days the third plant showed infection and one branch wilted. So far, twenty days after these branches wilted, these two plants seem to have resisted the further advances of the disease.

Vertical Section of Snapdragon Stem.
(Arrows Indicate Sclerotia.)

LEAF SPOT ON GERANIUMS.

We are mailing you five geraniums, which seem to be diseased. We have about 500 which are in like condition. We are anxious to find out what the trouble is. Last year we noticed a few like this and promptly disposed of them. We thought that if it was a disease we would have killed it that way, but this year it is here stronger than ever. We wish you would examine these specimens and tell us what it may be and the cure for it. Do you think there is any use growing these on for blooming, or would it be better to give them to the trash pile?

W. F. C.—Ia.

These plants have the appearance of being troubled with leaf spot, due to a sour condition at the plants' roots, low temperature and excessive moisture, which are generally the causes of leaf spot on geraniums.

They may outgrow the trouble as they become stronger plants and the weather becomes warm enough to allow more ventilation. M. P.

GERANIUM LEAVES DYING.

Some of my geraniums, not potbound, are troubled with their leaves dying, first about the edge and then all over. They are fine, strong plants, but a little bench-crowded. Could this be the trouble? S. M.—Kan.

It is quite probable that the cause of the trouble with your geraniums is that you are giving them too much water and keeping the house too cool. Give less water and increase the temperature a few degrees. Geraniums do well in a moderately dry temperature, but will quickly suffer when their quarters are kept cool and damp. M. P.

TO POT GERANIUMS.

How much bone meal per bushel should be used for potting geraniums in 2-inch and 4-inch pots?

J. C. C.—Ont.

It is not advisable to use any bone meal in the soil for potting geraniums. I have found out by experience that they do much better without it. No other plants will assimilate the organic substance of the soil more quickly than the geraniums. Consequently, when grown in rich material, they quickly grow out of bounds and become susceptible to disease. This is often the reason so many growers have trouble with their geraniums.

Provide them with a fresh soil that has not been used for growing any other greenhouse crop, and then give them a reasonable treatment, which should be along the lines of moderate temperature with free ventilation, careful watering and space enough between the plants for their proper development. M. P.

MISTAKEN FOR INSECTS.

I am enclosing a geranium leaf that seems to be infested with tiny insects. What causes this and how can I get rid of the insects? W. & S.—O.

There are no insects on the geranium leaf; doubtless the trouble is caused by overwatering the plants and growing them in a low temperature. M. P.

AFFECTED GERANIUM LEAVES.

I am mailing you a geranium out of a 2¼-inch pot. The leaves are affected in some way and, although no plants have died, it takes too much time to pick off the affected leaves. What is a remedy for this? W. D. T.—O.

It would be advisable to give the geraniums a little higher temperature, both day and night. Hold them drier at the roots. M. P.

GERANIUMS AND ASHES.

I am sending you three sick geranium leaves. I wonder if you could tell me what is ailing them. This has been bothering my S. A. Nutt plants for the last two years, but does not spread to any other variety. I have grown geraniums for fifteen years, but have never seen this nuisance before. The plants have the proper care and are growing strongly, but, of course, when the leaves have to be picked off frequently, the growth is retarded.

B. G. C.—Minn.

This may be a soil trouble or it may be caused by an overabundance of moisture and a low temperature. It seems strange that the variety S. A. Nutt is the only one affected. I suggest that you examine carefully the surroundings of the plants to find out if the trouble is caused by fumes from the ashpit of the boiler. It has come to my notice that, when geraniums were set on fresh ashes from the boiler pits, they developed the same trouble that appears to affect these leaves. M. P.

FOUR WITH SAME TROUBLE.

I am enclosing some geranium leaves that have some sort of infection on them. Can you tell me what it is and what I can do to get rid of it?

C. B. S.—O.

I am sending some diseased geranium leaves. Will you advise as to what is the trouble and suggest a remedy?

M. J. A.—Minn.

Enclosed are a number of geranium leaves with which there is something wrong. The leaves turn brown, and I am inclined to think they are infested with a tiny insect. Will you tell me what is wrong and name a remedy?

J. W. M.—Colo.

I am sending some geranium leaves that are dying. This trouble seems to be spreading among my geraniums. Will you tell me the cause and give a remedy? S. M.—Kan.

The trouble with these geraniums is that they were overpotted and the roots became decayed before they were sufficiently recovered from the check of repotting to assimilate properly the nourishment from the soil. Consequently, the soil became sour and stopped the root action of the plants. M. P.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Lorain, O.—The greenhouse business operated by Louis Hody since the dissolution of the firm of Hody & Tulea last September is in the receiver's hands. L. J. Henes, a florist of Amherst, O., has been appointed receiver to sell the stock and personal property and pay the creditors, to whom approximately $6,000 is due. Mr. Hody, it was reported in these columns two weeks ago, cleaned up some ready money and departed for parts unknown. The receivership has no connection with J. E. Tulea, who since the dissolution has operated the three stores, two in Lorain and one in Elyria. Mr. Hody took over the 30,000 feet of glass at Eleventh street and Oberlin avenue, Lorain.

Cleveland, O.—George Bate has been appointed receiver of the Smith & Fetters Co. at the instance of C. Merkel & Sons Co., because the liabilities of the company are in excess of its assets and it has been losing money for some time past. Appraisal shows assets of $10,000 and liabilities of approximately $13,000. The receiver is operating the business so that it may be sold as a going concern and more money be thus realized for the creditors.

NO, NOT SO BAD.

When an advertiser tells in his advertising the results he has had from previous ads it is fair to assume he is pretty well pleased. Like this: In last week's issue of The Review S. C. Templin & Son, of Garrettsville, O., started their offer of pelargoniums with these words:

The last two advertisements selling 13,000 plants in the three sizes isn't so bad, is it? There's a reason.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

COMPILING A MAILING LIST.

Eliminate Waste.

"Quality, not quantity," is most desired in a florist's mailing list. Perhaps more so in the florists' business than in any other is it necessary to achieve, as far as possible, the apex of quality in the list of prospective customers. The mailing list, to be of any value to a florist at all, must be an exceptionally good one, must be selected with care, and must be constantly pruned to avoid waste.

The "business bringers," as the circulars and other sorts of direct mail advertising are called, must reach those who are capable of responding. They cannot bring business, no matter how attractively written and designed, if, as in the parable, the seed falls on rocky ground. The search for material for a really productive mailing list is by no means a trivial matter. With the present high costs of paper, printing and other factors that enter into the sending out of literature, the elimination of waste is most essential. This elimination is secured not only by the careful choosing of the names, but also by careful pruning of the list from time to time of unresponsive names.

Methods of making up an effective mailing list vary in different communities. The sources from which names may be secured are many, but the scope of the florist's service must be taken into account; that is, whether he is in a large city and seeks business from certain neighbors; whether he is in a suburb of a city, or whether he is in a small town.

Four Sources.

There are four general sources of material—from the florists own records; from municipal and county records; by purchase, and by solicitation. These are comprehensive and include practically every method used, either in the large cities or the small towns.

There is of course in every community the city directory. From this the florist can take names by the hundreds and send his announcements to those people, but such a practice is like throwing seed to the wind, letting it fall where it may. The careful florist in choosing his mailing list disregards the city directory. Closely associated with that medium is the telephone directory, from which little better results can be obtained.

The newspaper furnishes abundant material and also gives a fair impression of the ability of the people to buy flowers. In the large metropolitan newspapers the society columns are perhaps the most important for the florist to follow. The people who can afford to buy and use flowers profusely are continually being mentioned. In the small town papers, the personal items often are productive of much list material. The accounts of real estate transfers are important, as names and addresses are nearly always given and the quality of such material can easily be determined. The notices of the elections of officers of clubs and lodges are always important. To secure the attention of the officers, and especially the secretary, to your establishment would mean many orders for flowers in case of sickness and death of members. Keeping "tab" on the election of club and lodge officers would be advantageous to the florist.

Exchange Lists.

An exchange of names and addresses with merchants in the vicinity of the florist's store who are not in the same line is a good way of adding to the list. In this way new residents in a neighborhood can be added.

Municipal and county records have been found valuable for this work. Tax lists are one of the best sources, because all the information concerning the prospective customers is given. Their financial ability to buy flowers can be determined from these lists. The register of marriage licenses has always been considered a valuable source. One of the best opportunities to secure a list that is of good quality is to get a roster of automobile owners. This can be secured sometimes through county officials. In the large cities, sometimes a newspaper publishes a book containing the names, addresses and license numbers of all the automobile owners in the state. Also some county officials have lists which they will issue for a small fee.

Purchasing Names.

Purchasing from list brokers, addressing companies and clipping bureaus a large number of names and addresses, the quality of which is undetermined, is a method used by some merchants. These lists are not always correct. The purchasers, for the most part, are merchants or firms doing a national business.

By solicitation a large number of names may be secured from club membership lists. In securing the calendars of the best clubs in his neighborhood, the florist has a good list to start with. The church directories, which most churches publish every year, are good sources. The membership roll of a local business men's association is also good.

One way for the progressive florist who handles telegraph orders to add to his list is to keep account of all his telegraph orders and make the recipients of these orders new customers by placing their names and addresses on his mailing list.

BRUST BOOSTS.

The illustration on this page gives a partial view of the flower store recently opened by William J. Brust, at 891 West

The Newest Addition to the Flower Stores of Columbus, Ohio.

Broad street, Columbus, O. At the opening of the store about 1,200 persons registered and received a flower. Many of the brother florists of Columbus were present at the opening.

Back of the refrigerator a nice office is arranged and the workroom is in the rear. A large basement under the room has proved quite convenient. Mr. Brust is ably assisted by his wife, Mrs. W. J. Brust, and Mrs. Elsa Trevitt, formerly with S. F. Stevens & Son. He reports that he enjoyed a fine Easter trade and has been busy since with wedding decorations and funeral work. The store is surpassing all Mr. Brust's expectations.

Last year Mr. Brust leased the greenhouses of his father, John Brust, at the corner of Hawkes avenue and Mound street, and has been boosting his business quite successfully under the name of Brust Florist. John Brust has retired from the business.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Capital idea," observed John F. Horn, of J. F. Horn & Bros., Allentown, Pa., when told of the plan of B. F. Barr, of Lancaster, in recommending old-fashioned plants for Mothers' day sales, having a fine stock of geraniums, fuchsias, marguerites and forget-me-nots in such quantity as usually sells before Memorial day, but, for various reasons, move more slowly than usual this season.

• • • •

Max Schling, New York, who advertised that he would present a boutonniere of a single carnation to any caller previous to Mothers' day, had up to Saturday night, April 7, 1,700 acceptants.

• • • •

T. J. Opperman, Camp Hill, Pa., reports that the demand for carnations on Mothers' day exceeded supply and that he is anticipating with more satisfaction Memorial day business, when blooming plants take precedence and the crop of peonies will be at its height.

• • • •

"When carnations cost 15 to 18 cents we cannot retail at less than at the rate of $4 per dozen," observed Mrs. Ashley, of Ashley's Flower Store, Allentown, Pa. "At that, stock was all sold two days in advance of Mothers' day."

• • • •

Andrew Yeager, Allentown, Pa., took down some carnation houses last fall and now wishes they had been up and supplying the demand for Mothers' day. He says he will be in line for next season.

• • • •

John Sykes, Allentown, Pa., pushed the sale of blooming plants in baskets to help out the shortage of carnations on Mothers' day and he reports good sales.

• • • •

H. A. Schroyer, Lancaster, Pa., has developed pneumonia since arriving at Hot Springs, Va., where he went to recuperate. The latest report is encouraging.

• • • •

E. P. Hostetter, Manheim, Pa., the dean of sweet pea growers in this locality, picked the final crop, with a fine cut of marguerites, for Mothers' day.

• • • •

"Is it possible that Jupiter Pluvius is weeping concerning mother-in-law?" asked Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., as the gentle rain was falling, while he picked off the yellow leaves from the geranium cuttings in the sand bed. The continued moisture and dull weather make damping off almost certain unless the closest attention is paid.

• • • •

"When we received quotations from the wholesale houses on carnations for Mothers' day, with a doubtful supply," observed B. F. Barr, of B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa., "we turned our attention to blooming stock and advertised them as old-fashioned plants, highly appropriate for this occasion. Sales fully justified making the change." Mr. Barr, at the last meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Association, was appointed chairman of the executive committee for the fall show.

• • • •

A catch crop of Grand Rapids lettuce at the H. D. Rohrer place was the talk of the Lancastrians who came out to see and purchase.

• • • •

Charles Dillon, of the J. L. Dillon Greenhouses, Bloomsburg, Pa., was unpacking a shipment of Rose Mme. Butterfly, intended to figure largely in this season's planting, and observed that invariably stock from afar seems longer in becoming acclimated, but once the roots touch this soil, the plants quickly respond. Plans for some building additions are on the tapis.

• • • •

George R. Clarke, Scranton, Pa., was a busy man just before Mothers' day, attending the funeral of a close friend in addition to making up some choice floral pieces. A seedsman, nurseryman and florist, the three branches under one head, is somewhat rare and he has a unique establishment, demonstrating the possibilities of what can be accomplished under one roof and in a small space.

• • • •

C. E. Rossiter & Son, Sunbury, Pa., were compelled to advise the wearing of other than white carnations on Mothers' day and found that their patrons took kindly to the change. Many blooming plants were sold.

• • • •

The Penn Florist Co., Kingston, Pa., is specializing in pot plants in great variety and of first quality. It is intended to return to roses and carnations such as were grown here by that grand old veteran, Benjamin Dorrance, who, though retired, yet keeps in close touch with the profession. Walter Hoover and E. Salzer are coöperators in the new concern. Thomas Phillips is manager. He is also superintendent of the public gardens of Wilkes-Barre.

• • • •

C. J. LeDuc, Danville, Pa., is planning to change from the growing of plants and vegetables to roses, carnations and sweet peas.

• • • •

D. W. Davis, Berwick, Pa., returned from the international flower show with several new ideas, which are going into effect at the retail end of the business.

• • • •

"What has the future in store for him?" queried Stanley C. Barnes, of the Flower Shop, Binghamton, N. Y., as he fondly gazed upon the lusty son and heir presented him by his charming wife. Was it appreciation that prompted our worthy confrere to lend the use of the store and donate the stock on National Hospital day, May 12, to help swell its fund?

• • • •

E. H. Quinn, Norwich, N. Y., had a large funeral order previous to Mothers' day business that made heavy inroads upon the fine crop of roses and carnations. Memorial day promises to be fully up to the usual high-water mark, with blooming plants aplenty.

• • • •

"'To be or not to be?' that is a question we are seriously debating," observed C. E. Fancher, Binghamton, N. Y., referring to opening a store downtown. "We have built up a flourishing business at the greenhouses, but son Arthur, who is now a partner, argues that a store is more up-to-date, and that one must move with the times." W. M.

OBITUARY

B. Hammond Tracy, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., received a cablegram from Paris, France, May 7, stating that their only son, B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., had been drowned that day with a companion, Harry Island. Late cablegrams tell that the body has been recovered and will be sent home for burial.

The deceased was graduated from Harvard college last June and was studying landscape architecture abroad. He served with sections 8 and 10 of the Harvard ambulance unit for two years during the late war. Later he was with the first recruit group in the aviation service. He saw service at Verdun, at Salonica and in Italy.

He was a young man of great promise and extremely popular. Universal sympathy is felt for his parents, who are noted growers of gladioli and other flowers at Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., and for his two sisters who survive him.

Herman Kreenberg.

Herman Kreenberg, who was well known as a salesman for the Leo Niessen Co., died at his home in Philadelphia, Saturday, May 7. Mr. Kreenberg was 48 years of age, and had been with the company for twelve years.

Funeral services were held at the home Wednesday, May 11, when many of his old-time associates and comrades attended.

S. A. F. NEWS

GRAND OPENING WEEK.

Membership Drive Is On.

Now, let's get busy, everybody! The big spring holidays are over and we are all feeling fine. Soon the plantsmen, too, will have a little breathing spell. So for a little recreation for ourselves and for the good of the S. A. F. (meaning all of us), let's jump into our machines and go on a little hunt, filling our hunting bags with S. A. F. applications blanks, and scour the cities, woods and fields around about us for new members and on the way greet old ones.

Come on, boys! The goal is set to double the membership in ninety days. The slogan is, "Every Member Get a Member." But let's beat that. The harvest is ripe. Let's kill the old saying, "The workers are few." Every member has had blanks mailed him. If you were overlooked, write any of us.

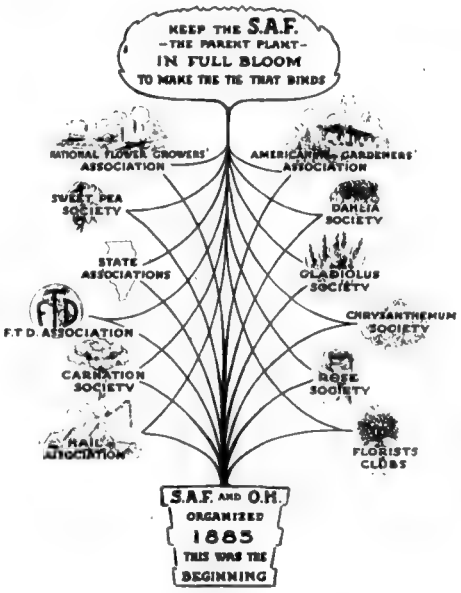
Membership committee:
Joseph H. Hill.
A. L. Miller.
Paul R. Klingsporn.
S. S. Pennock.
J. F. Ammann.

S. A. F. OVER THE TOP.

Every Member to Get Another.

The zero hour is set, May 15; the main objective is established, to double the membership of the S. A. F. in ninety days; the war cry is, "Every member get a member!"

What about it? Already J. F. Ammann, chairman of the membership committee, and H. V. Swenson are on their way to the Pacific coast in the interest of the S. A. F., the growers, coöperative advertising and other affiliated organizations. Among other cities, they will visit St. Paul, Minneapolis, Spokane, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Denver, Kansas City, Omaha and Des Moines. The cities in which meetings so far are scheduled are as follows:



St. Paul and Minneapolis	May 9
Spokane, Wash.	May 18
Seattle, Wash.	May 23
Portland, Ore.	May 31
San Francisco, Cal.	June 6
Los Angeles, Cal.	June 13
Salt Lake City, Utah	June 20
Denver, Colo.	June 22
Kansas City, Mo.	June 27
Omaha, Neb.	June 29
Des Moines, Ia.	June 30

It is intended to make stops at intervening points and arrange several more meetings on the way going out and coming back, covering in all about twenty or twenty-five cities.

What Is Being Done.

Besides that, splendid arrangements have been planned to boost the membership. Weekly letters to both "fellow craftsmen" and "fellow members" will be sent out to point out the importance and desirability of an increased membership from the standpoints of the individual and the organization. Posters that talk right at you will leave no room for denying the organization your membership. And besides that, personal letters and folders with a pull in them will be distributed.

Is the movement getting any support? These men have each pledged to secure ten new members before the dates of the next convention: Thomas Roland, Adolph Gude, John Young, J. J. Hess, Joseph H. Hill, C. C. Pollworth, Herman P. Knoble, Paul R. Klingsporn, Thomas H. Joy, Carl Hagenburger, A. L. Miller, W. F. Gude, I. S. Hendrickson, Joseph Kohout, W. A. Rowe, A. M. Campbell, Anders Rasmussen, Robert L. Graham, Jr., J. F. Ammann, W. H. Englehart, George Asmus, Henry Penn, F. H. Traendly and Wallace R. Pierson. John Canning promises to secure five life members.

There are many additional organizations which the S. A. F. can claim sponsorship for such as the Local Retail and Wholesale Florists' Associations, The Ladies S.A.F. and Local Auxiliary Societies, The American Peony-Iris-and Orchid Societies, The Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Associations, and many others too numerous to mention. Every member of these should be a member of the S. A. F. & O. H.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE FOR THE S. A. F. & O. H.

501 BANK BUILDING,
EDWARDSVILLE, ILLINOIS.

SLOGAN "Every member get a member." GOAL To Double the membership in ninety days.

Ready for Repotting.

Your Support Needed.

But to double the membership in ninety days is an objective that can be attained only through the earnest cooperation of everybody concerned. J. F. Amman and his associates on the committee, Joseph H. Hill, A. L. Miller, Paul R. Klingsporn and S. S. Pennock, are hoping to get that support.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Fare to Washington Convention.

That a one and one-half rate of fare for visitors to the convention in Washington, August 16 to 18, will be made by the trunk line associations is now practically assured. The association covering New York state east of and including Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge and Salamanca; New Jersey; Pennsylvania, east of and including Erie, Oil City and Pittsburgh; Delaware; Maryland; District of Columbia; Virginia, and West Virginia, east of and including Wheeling, Parkersburg, Kenova, Orange and Norfolk, has already provided for the selling of tickets on the certificate plan and the other associations, without doubt, will fall into line.

Identification certificates will be issued to members by the society, through the secretary's office, applicable to members of our organization and dependent members of their families only, and tickets will be good via the same route in both directions. The tickets will be sold from August 16 to 19 and will be validated at Washington by agents at the regular ticket offices of the lines over which the tickets read into Washington for August 16 to 19. When validated, the tickets will be good for return, leaving Washington only on the date of validation, and passengers must reach original starting point within the transit limit shown on tickets, but in no case later than midnight August 21. One certificate will suffice for each member and will include privileges for dependent members of his or her family; in other words, separate certificates will not be necessary.

More Exhibitors.

The list of exhibitors in the trade exhibition was augmented last week by reservations by the United Bulb Growers, of New York city, and the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago.

Official Program.

The official program covering the convention proceedings is having the careful attention of those in whose hands it has been placed and, as at present drafted, bids fair to eclipse in interest all previous programs. If any member has suggestions to make as to features for the program, he is invited to send them in to the secretary and consideration of them is assured.

Mrs. George Asmus, Chicago, president of the Ladies' S. A. F., is sparing no effort to make the assistance to be rendered by her organization at the convention highly valuable to the society. Washington is a city which ladies take delight in visiting and there is so much to see there that there is opportunity for a great deal of service by the ladies of this organization and, with the help of the Washington local organization of ladies, every lady visitor will be well entertained and taken care of while the masculine element are engaged in convention duties.

The Membership Drive.

The drive for a doubling of the society's membership is now on and the committee in charge of it is hopeful of success. Letters and printed matter are going out arguing support in this most worthy proceeding and every member should make a zealous attempt to live up to the slogan of the drive, "Every member get a member."

Members of the society who have mislaid their bills for dues or neglected to make remittances covering them are reminded that the society has need of the funds, especially now that its expenses are provided for under the budget system, which depends upon this source for the operating expenses in connection with our work.

Cleveland Flower Show.

With a subscription guarantee of $300 from Max Schling, New York, the fund for the Cleveland national flower show is closed with a total of $20,232. Other subscription guarantees to be reported are the following:

August C. Reicher, Michigan City, Ind.	10.00
Chas. P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.	100.00
Madsen & Christensen, Wood Ridge, N. J.	100.00

A meeting of the local executive committee will be held in Cleveland May 19.

The floor plan of the show, including the plan of the areas available for the trade exhibition to be held in connection with it, is now practically settled, and copies of it will be sent out as soon as possible after the committee meeting in Cleveland.

The publicity committee is anxious to resume the national advertising at the earliest possible time. Every week lost now diminishes the prestige obtained through the previous work of the campaign. The condition of the florists' trade just now would seem to suggest that a strong publicity effort should be put forth without delay. With the many problems now calling for consideration among our vast public, flowers are not likely to come to mind as a medium for the carriage of sentiment unless reminders of their use are constantly appearing. The committee, therefore, urges the necessity of personal subscriptions from the trade to enable them to continue their work. Any florist who has not already subscribed will benefit himself as well as the entire industry by sending in such amount as he feels he can afford to the secretary. The sooner the better.

Chamber of Commerce.

The society has been advised of its election to membership in an important trade body, the United States Chamber of Commerce. We are called upon for the appointment of a national councilor to represent the florists' industry in the chamber. A national councilor is chairman of the delegations from his organization at annual and spring meetings of the chamber and serves in an advisory capacity on the chamber's board of directors. His duties are important, as he becomes an active agent, inquiring as to the questions vital to his organization that should be brought before the chamber, which operates as a federation of American business and derives its vitality as an initiating body from its constituent members. In the chamber, the society will have a valuable aid whenever vigorous and strong backing is required in any movement of national importance to our industry. The appointment of a councilor is now under consideration by President Roland. John Young, Sec'y.

TWIN CITIES ORGANIZE.

The meeting at the Twin Cities for the organization of a local association to do coöperative advertising was held May 9 at the Midway Commercial Club rooms, and was a big success. The following were elected members of the executive board: Max Kaiser, chairman; O. J. Olson, F. W. Topel and A. Lauritzen, of St. Paul; Oscar Carlson, Hans Rosacker, R. A. Latham and Hugh Will, of Minneapolis.

The movement was instituted under the auspices of the Minnesota State Florists' Association and will be managed by the above-named board. J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson have received enough encouragement from the success obtained in this, their first meeting on the way to the Pacific coast, to convince them that the trip will be a great success.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

Four St. Louis florists were recently instrumental in the promotion of the trade's slogan by one of the writers of the Evening Post Dispatch, of that city. The florists were Thomas Carr, William C. Smith, George Kuehner and Frank Windler. L. C. Davis, who conducts a column called "Sport Salad," wrote the following poem and dedicated it to the florists mentioned:

FLOWERY LANGUAGE.

When you've been to a fight
And come home late at night
And the wife has been waiting for hours,
Don't argue in vain
Or attempt to explain—
Be crafty and say it with flowers.

You'll come out all right
If you only sit tight
And head off her lachrymal showers;
Have nothing to say,
Let a little bouquet
Explain in the language of flowers.

CLUB MEETING

NEW YORK CLUB MEETS.

New Jersey Night.

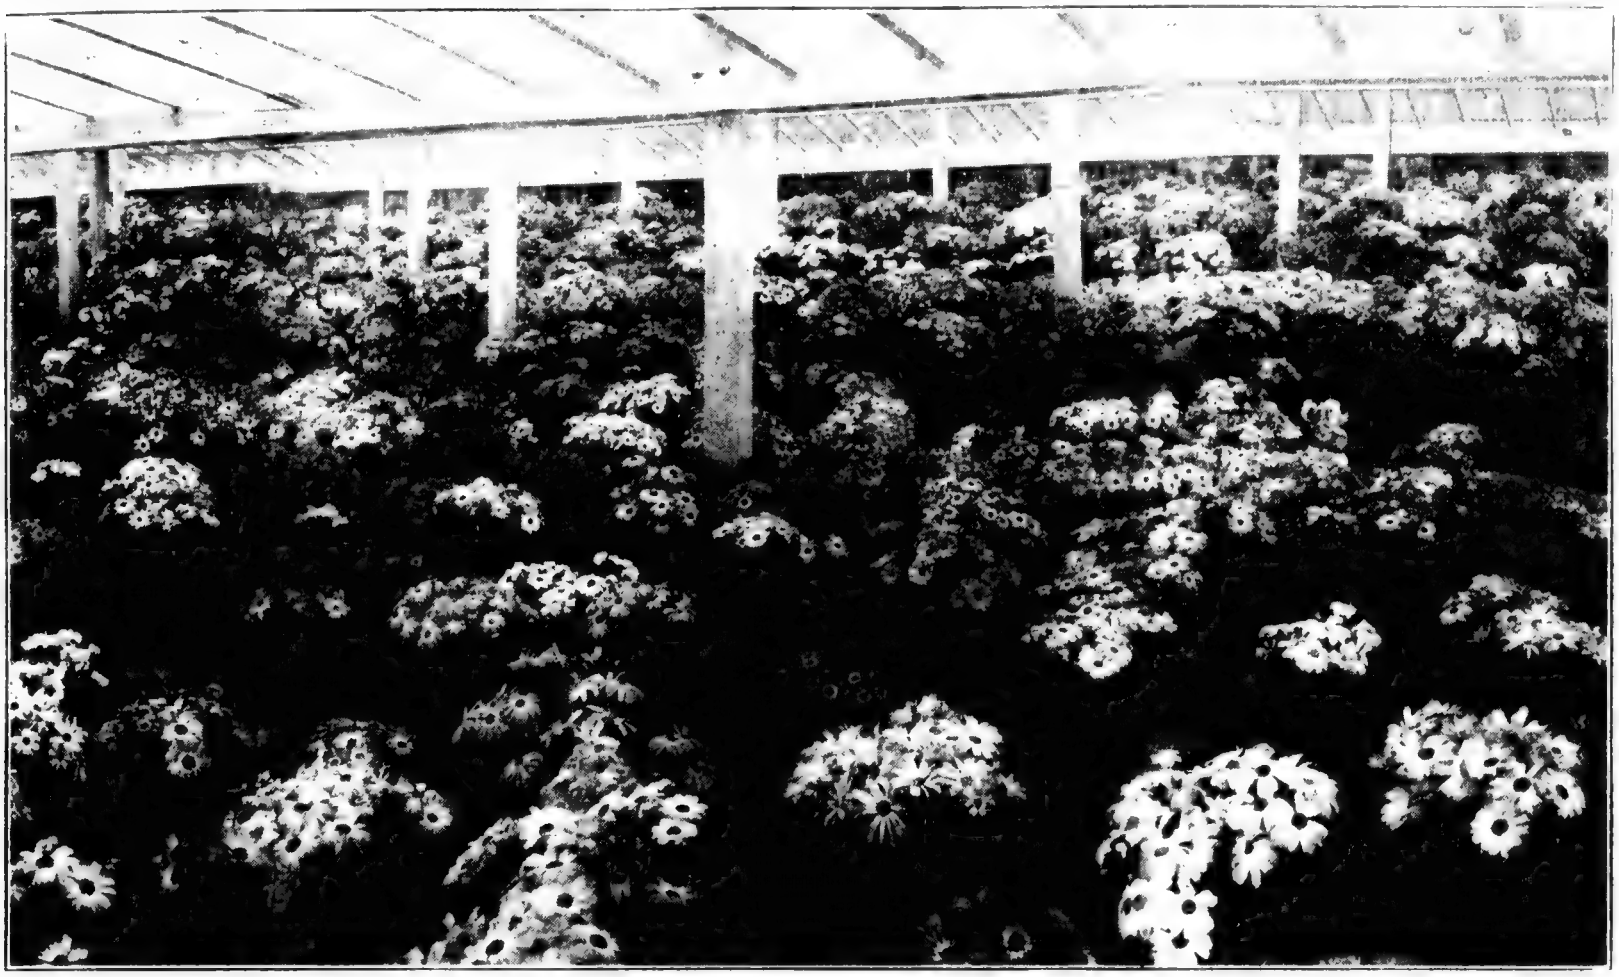
A regular monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held Monday evening, May 9, in the club's rooms, in the Engineering Societies' building. President I. S. Hendrickson presided, and there was a good attendance of members.

It was New Jersey night, the attendance from that state numbering twenty-four, including both old and new members.

Newton H. Porter, president of the Chamber of Commerce of New Jersey, addressed the meeting at some length, describing the resources of the state and the part the chamber was taking in the development of various industries.

F. F. Rockwell, of Seabrook Farms, Seabrook, N. J., gave an interesting lecture, illustrated by lantern slides, on "The Work and Development of Seabrook Farm." The farm has been devoted to the growing of truck crops under most improved methods and is now engaging in fruit culture on a large scale. Both gentlemen were given a rising vote of thanks.

Committee Reports.



Clifford Lowther, chairman of the committee on transportation, reported for his committee in regard to proposed arrangements for travel to the Washington convention of the S. A. F. A plan to leave New York at 10 a. m. Monday, August 15, was adopted. The Trunk Line Association has granted a rate of one and one-half fare for the round trip.

C. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported progress. He announced that it had been definitely decided that the Grand Central Palace would no longer be available for exhibitions; therefore, if a flower show was to be held next spring, other quarters would have to be obtained, and at present there seemed to be none in sight.

The following were elected to membership in the club: Paul E. Atkinson, 7 West Forty-fifth street, New York; James Hageruk, 15 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn; Frank S. Bosolvage, 15 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn; Henry J. Appel, Whitestone, N. Y., and Anthony Denis, 314 Lenox avenue, New York.

The secretary announced the death since last meeting of Alfred J. Demeusy and Mrs. Rigby, wife of Percy B. Rigby, a trustee of the club. He also referred to the death May 5, by drowning, in France, of B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., only son of B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass. Committees were in each case appointed to prepare resolutions of sympathy.

A letter from Vincent J. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, was read, asking that the club give its support to the establishment of a list of flowers especially for each month. The matter was referred to a committee for consideration and report.

Exhibits.

Anthurium Sergt. Manda, shown by the Joseph Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., was awarded a silver medal.

A collection of cut orchids, shown by James Goodier, superintendent for F. E. Dixon, Elkins Park, Pa., was awarded a silver medal.

A new orchid, Læliocattleya Helena Dixon, parentage Læliocattleya C. G. Roebling x Cattleya Gaskelliana alba, shown by James Goodier, was awarded a silver medal.

A collection of orchid plants, hybrids, shown by S. G. Milosy, gardener for George Schlegel, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., was awarded a silver medal.

Vases of Antirrhinum Orlando and Didiscus cærulea (blue lace flower), shown by Roman J. Irwin, New York, were awarded a vote of thanks.

SOME SUCCESSFUL STRAINS.

New Race of Cinerarias.

It is a pleasure to chronicle a real advance in anything pertaining to florists' flowers and the cinerarias shown in the illustration on this page are much in advance of those usually seen. Right at the start, it should be mentioned that this is no aggregation of other types, no mixture of other strains, but a straight new race of cinerarias, the fruit of ten years' work. For that is the length of time that Fred H. Howard, the president of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., has given his close personal attention to the improvement of florists' flower seeds, and the cineraria was one of the earliest plants to receive this attention.

The writer has already referred to these plants, but the illustration shows better than words can the excellence of the strain. In all, 15,000 are grown, for it is a well known fact that these extra choice flowers do not produce so many seeds per flower or per plant as the smaller and commoner types. For their accommodation this year, 8,000 feet of new greenhouse space was erected and the sight of these magnificent plants, when in full bloom, was worth a long journey to enjoy. The individual plants were up to three feet across and averaged from eighteen inches to two feet in height from the top of the pot. Some of the plants had flowers which were four and a half inches across, were broad-petaled, of great substance and of every color and shade known to the cineraria. Constant roguing has led to the retention of the most acceptable shades, and the unpleasing tints, such as some of the magentas, have been entirely eliminated. The strain is particularly well balanced, as there is no preponderance of any particular shade or tint. While looking them over, one comes across, say, a blue that appears to be the finest imaginable, but, upon moving away a few yards, a deep crimson comes into view and alters the first opinion and makes a selection of the best color impossible.

Ninety Days' Display.

The display in the houses here has been maintained for three months—ninety days of an exhibition that could hardly be surpassed with any other florists' flower. While, of course, the method of culture practiced here tends to large plants and fine display, yet it is a fact that, even in the smaller plants grown for market purposes, the Howard & Smith strain is easily recognized by the clear tints, the large petals, the size of individual blooms and the perfect habit of the plants. Needless to say, Mr. Howard is enthusiastic over his success with this plant.

At Rivera Seed Grounds.

A few miles from the Montebello nurseries, where the cinerarias are grown, are the seed growing grounds of the firm. Many acres are devoted to the production of seed of the various specialties. To the eastern seed grower, early May would not seem to be a time for seed harvesting, but in California it is different. The aquilegia, as usually known, is not a plant to excite much enthusiasm. It is pretty and attractive, but it is not commercially valuable as a cut flower. Here the columbine hybrids are wonderful. They have just passed their full beauty, and seed pods are developing. The plants are from three to four feet high and so full of bloom that they make a great display and the individual stems are fine for basket work. This strain is the result of crossing the Aquilegia cærulea with the long-spurred A. chrysantha and every shade of color is represented. The principal colors are the pink and blue shades, each ranging from nearly white to the deepest tints. And here again a wonderful progress is noted. The flowers are immense, with long spurs delicately poised on the long, wiry stems. One can hardly imagine a more perfect flower for the basket trade, which is now so popular. The number of flowers that can be secured from a few easily grown plants is remarkable.

The excellent strains of Orange King calendula which are grown here are frequently commented upon. The large breadths grown to seed plants are just going over and seed gathering has begun. Here again, truth to type, fine habit and wonderful coloring are noted; every flower is perfectly double and all stems are stiff and erect. The single petunias, too, are gorgeous, great flaunting blooms with beautifully marbled throats, so freely produced as to be a perfect riot of color. A splendid stock of aster, zinnia, celosia and other flower seed specialties has been secured and the plantings are much heavier than usual, because of the increased demand. Another splendid display is made by several acres of amaryllis, or hippeastrum, in full bloom. The gorgeous blooms are visible for a long distance. These two have long been the pets of Mr. Howard, who has brought them to a wonderful perfection. H. R. R.

The Market.

A continuance of cold, dark weather, lasting through the whole of the last week, created an unusual shortage of flowers for Mothers' day. May, so far, has proved to be much more inclement than March and vegetation has almost come to a standstill. The low temperature and lack of sunshine seriously affected indoor crops and it is a long time since wholesale markets were so completely cleared out as they were May 7.

Roses scored some advance and cleaned up well right through the week. Only a small number of American Beauties are arriving and the best have made $35 to $40 per hundred. Such varieties as Hadley, Russell, Columbia, Pilgrim, Crusader and Premier sold May 6 and 7 at from $8 to $35, with Ophelia, Miller and Stanley all selling higher. The Killarneys and Cecile Brunners all sold well. The supply of roses was far below normal, although the quality was excellent.

There was the usual scramble for both white and colored varieties and prices were forced up to $12 per hundred for ordinary flowers, with fancies making $15 and, in a few cases, $18. Every flower was sold on arrival without any effort and many thousands more could have been disposed of at even these prices. The retailers protested against paying these prices and averred that it was spoiling Mothers' day trade, which is undoubtedly true. Carnation supplies were utterly inadequate, owing to the cold weather. This is regrettable, as the general public kicked against the high prices retailers had to charge in order to break even.

Other flowers cleaned up well, but there was little change in prices for these. Marguerites are in almost overwhelming supply and, while great numbers are sold, there is trouble in clearing them out at even low prices. Sweet peas have been rather less plentiful, but the quality is, as a rule, poor. A good many are wasted. Lilies are less plentiful and selling a little higher; so are callas, which are fewer in numbers and apparently nearing the end.

Small lots of Gladiolus Peach Blossom have appeared and a few primulinus hybrids came in this week. A few iris are also seen. Good supplies of Gypsophila elegans, bachelor's buttons and calendulas are coming in and some fine forced delphiniums, which are eagerly purchased. There is a normal May crop of cattleyas, but cypripediums are scarce. Gardenias and valley are in fair supply.

So completely were the retailers sold out Mothers' day that May 9 saw all the wholesale houses cleared of stock at 9 a. m. Prices remained high. Carnations all made $15 per hundred. It is estimated 100,000 were sold for Mothers' day.

Various Notes.

The auction sale at receiver's hands, of the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., May 9, attracted a large attendance of florists and others. The greenhouses which were offered cover 160,000 feet of glass, the largest house, a Hitchings structure, being 950 feet in length. Two other Hitchings houses are each 750 feet long. All these houses are planted with roses, the only other crop now grown here being chrysanthemums, for which one or two of the oldest structures are used. This once noted rose growing establishment was started in 1870 by the late Edmund M. Wood, one-time president of the S. A. F. John C. Craig acted as auctioneer. The greenhouses and sixty acres of land were sold for $30,000 to the Park Trust Co., of Worcester. Two other parcels of land were also sold.

Mothers' day business at the stores was good, but the extreme prices of carnations acted as a damper. Many would-be purchasers refused to pay retail prices charged, or did so under protest, and, unless some means can be devised to let other flowers share in the demand, there is a strong likelihood of the goose which lays the golden eggs being killed. The matter should receive serious attention of both growers and retailers. Of course, the low temperature created rather unusual conditions this year, but it is not easy to explain these things to the buying public.

Mrs. Catherine Woods, of Winchester, filed suit last week in the Superior court, at East Cambridge, against Janiten & Kunan, the well known and popular florists at Arlington, in the sum of $10,000. She alleges that March 1 she purchased from them a primrose plant, Primula obconica, as a home ornament and was given to understand that the plant was safe and suitable for that purpose. She contends that the plant proved to be poisonous and made her seriously ill. Her husband, therefore, filed suit for expense of his wife's illness and loss of her services. The outcome of this somewhat novel suit will be awaited with interest. That P. obconica poisons some people is well known, especially if the foliage is handled while the hands are warm and sweaty. This is the first case, so far as known, where actual court proceedings have been taken against anyone for selling the plant. A good number of retailers refuse to handle this primula and some growers have cut it out on account of its poisonous properties, but it continues to be a popular market plant just the same.

Paste This Up in the Potting Shed.

Below is the answer to an inquiry asked of The Review nearly every week. Cut it out and paste it in a conspicuous place, or in a scrapbook. Then you will save the delay of writing for the remedy when you need it.

CUTWORMS AND SOWBUGS.

Two methods present themselves for the extermination of cutworms and sowbugs: Poisoning and trapping. Poisoning is the easier and the more common. The following is one formula: White arsenic, one-half pound, or Paris green, one pound; bran, fifty pounds. Mix thoroughly and then add enough water to make a wet mash. Sugar or molasses may be added, but is unnecessary.

Another grower separates remedies. For cutworms he says: "Use corn meal; mix with Paris green, just enough to color; at nightfall scatter among the infested plants; don't water for six or eight hours before or after and you will have no further trouble from cutworms." For the sowbugs he uses two parts rye flower, two parts sugar and one part Paris green, preparing only enough for immediate use, as the mixture will not keep. He scatters this along the top of the edge-board of the bench in the evening, being careful to see that the board is dry, so that the mixture will not become lumpy.

Pyrethrum powder dusted over the plants and soil has also been found helpful.

The other method, trapping, may perhaps be termed the more certain method. The insects once secured, hot water ends all trouble. As to securing them, various methods have been used. One grower places dry moss in empty flower pots and places the pots on the benches and beneath them. The insects are trapped in surprising numbers and hot water poured in, when the trap is reset.

Potatoes or squash with part of the interior scooped out form excellent traps when placed in the greenhouse. They can be put in hot water in order to kill the insects and then replaced on the benches to do the work over again.

For wholesale slaughter, try this: Mash a few potatoes and rub the pulp on the surfaces of several boards, which should be a foot wide and four or more feet in length. Place the boards on the ground under the benches, leaving a space between the boards and the ground of one-quarter of an inch or less. In a remarkably short time you will find the sowbugs collected by thousands on the under side of the boards. Boiling water from a sprinkling can with a fine rose cleans the boards of anything living as they are turned over, one at a time. One grower cleared out his houses in one week by this method.

cases of oranges from Palestine from the orchards of the American Fruit Growers of Palestine is interesting from the fact that Nathan Fishelson, of Boston, and Robert Koppelman, of Providence, with some other Jewish florists, are actively identified with this movement. Oranges, lemons, almonds, grapes and raisins are the principal products, shipped principally to Great Britain and America and grown by Judeans under American management. Nathan Fishelson and M. Feinstein are soon expected back from Palestine, where they have been for a considerable time.

H. A. Boothman, of Adams, Mass., who lost one of his legs a year ago from blood poisoning, was in town last week to secure a new artificial leg.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, president of the American Carnation Society and a noted grower of the divine flower, is erecting a new Hitchings house, 36x239, to be devoted to carnations.

William R. Nicholson, of Framingham, often gets something new or original in ahead of his fellows. At present he has a wonderfully fine batch of Delphinium Belladonna, which he is cutting with 3-foot to 4-foot stems and for which there is an eager call. He continues to grow quantities of fine Gypsophila elegans and yellow marguerites in addition to his great staple, carnations.

Max Lakin, of the New England Florists' Supply Co., is busy passing cigars. It is a bouncing boy and, being the first, is naturally the finest of its species ever produced.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, May 17, William H. Judd, of the Arnold Arboretum, will deliver a lecture on "New and Desirable Trees and Shrubs for New England." There will be special displays of flowering trees and shrubs and herbaceous perennials.

J. Eisemann, of the Beacon Florist, had splendid trade for Mothers' day. He has some good wedding orders booked and trade this season has been far ahead of a year ago. He has a large staff busily employed making an immense number of artificial wreaths for Memorial day. Of these he makes a wide assortment and the demand last year completely cleaned him out.

S. J. Goddard, the well known Framingham carnationist, is now sporting a fine new Hudson Supersix car.

Miss Christine A. Norton, treasurer of the Medfield Farms & Greenhouse Co., met with a painful accident May 3 when riding to Boston in her car to deliver some flowers. The car she was driving ran into a post at Westwood and Miss Norton, her mother and aunt all suffered painful injuries. The car was badly damaged.

Charles F. Boyle, president of T. F. Galvin, Inc., was married quietly at St. Agnes Roman Catholic church, Arlington, April 30, to Miss Margaret Collins, of Arlington. Mr. Boyle was well remembered by his store confreres and many friends, all of whom wish him a long, happy married life.

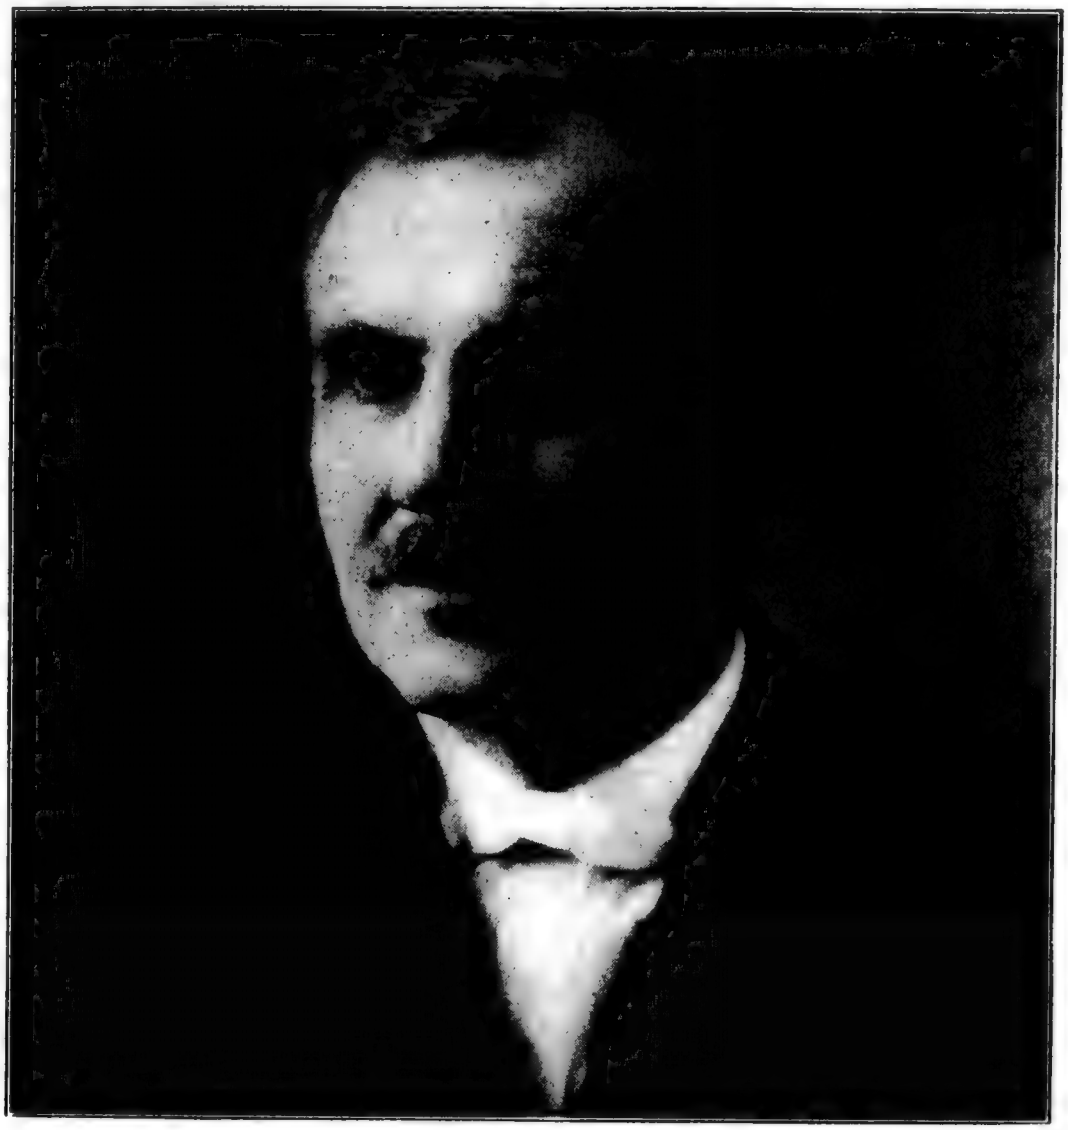
William A. McAlpine seems to be followed by a hoodoo. Last year he had a car badly smashed up and last week he was unfortunate enough to lose a Stutz touring car and Ford sedan by fire at Scituate, where the cars were stored.

The great bank of Rhododendron (azalea) Kaempferi will be in fine bloom at the Arnold Arboretum about the end of the present week. The lilacs are not blooming quite as freely as usual this season and some of the flower trusses and foliage have been blistered by the long spell of cold and inclement weather.

J. Frank Edgar never had a finer lot of cyclamens than he has this season. He has many thousands now, mostly in 3½-inch pots. Begonias look equally well. For Memorial day he has a grand lot of hydrangeas and roses.

There is a fine display of early tulips in the public gardens this week. Specially fine are Pink Beauty, Thomas Moore, Chrysolora, white Joost van Vondel, Keizerskroon, Prince of Austria, scarlet Pottebakker, Proserpine and La Reine.

The obituary column contains a note on the untimely death of B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., son of B. Hammond Tracy, the well known gladiolus specialist of Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass.



A hitch has occurred in the letting of the contract of the new range of city greenhouses on Franklin street and it is now said that new bids will be called for.

There will be a prize exhibition at Horticultural hall May 28 and 29. Lilacs, cut shrubs, iris and other seasonable flowers and vegetables will be displayed.

Oswald Ralph, of South Weymouth, and William C. Stickel, of Lexington, are sending in nice blue irises, which sell well in the market. W. N. C.

Dayton, O.—Mrs. E. M. Phebus has sold out her interests and is no longer connected with the florists' business here.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

LEWIS EDWARD HITZ.

LEWIS EDWARD HITZ, president of the Indiana State Florists' Association, ascribes his trade connection to his grandmother and her intense love of flowers. He says she is responsible for one son, two grandsons and one great grandson all having ranges of glass. Mr. Hitz was born in Madison, Ind., in 1868. He purchased his first greenhouse, that of his father, soon after he was 21. Mr. Hitz has many activities besides operating his own range. He is president of the North Madison Floral Co., a director and superintendent of the Madison Springdale Cemetery Association; a director of the Mite Building Association, a member of the Chautauqua, a hard worker in the Methodist church, a Knight Templar, a Knight of Pythias, a Red Man, a Modern Woodman, a life member of the S. A. F. and, to top it all, president of the Indiana State Florists' Association.

The Review brings results.

SOME florists try to do too much business. No money ever was made by filling orders with stock that does not give satisfaction.

No florist can for long maintain a reputation as prompt pay unless he makes a continuous effort to collect his own outstanding accounts.

A KNOWLEDGE of costs is essential to the grower who would reduce expenses, in order that he may distinguish between sane economy and unsafe parsimony.

OVERPRODUCTION is not one of this trade's problems. The use of that efficacious sales promoter, advertising, has grown far faster than our glass area.

THERE would be few, if any, controversies regarding grades and quality if florists filled orders only with such stock as they themselves would wish to receive.

THE annual meeting of the Texas State Florists' Association is announced for July 11 to 14, at San Antonio. Plans are being made to get up a comprehensive trade's display.

POLITENESS draws customers to a store a second time and a third. It is a cheaper way of advertising than spending money to bring people in once and driving them away by inconsiderate treatment.

IF passers-by pay no attention to your window, try another kind of display. If they stop to look at it, your display is a good one. If they stop to look and then enter the store, it is an excellent one.

TOO many florists attempt to do business without printed stationery. It is a waste and a loss, as most of the houses best worth while doing business with decline to allow wholesale rates to those whose letterheads do not show them to be in the business.

BY increased express charges, florists who did not read the article in The Review at the time of the change, are becoming aware that most of the things the trade ships are now in the first class. The increase is from one-third to one-half over the old second-class rates and seems unjustified when sorts of merchandise requiring more careful handling and involving greater risk of loss are still in the lower classification.

WHEN prices were high, not much notice was given to increases in freight and express rates. Now that they are appreciable items, since other costs are being lowered and receipts are not so large, there is a growing opinion that the S. A. F. should use its influence for reductions.

PAINT FOR PECKY CYPRESS.

Has any reader of The Review, asks one of them, any knowledge of there being a paint on the market for new benches of pecky cypress, which will make them last longer? Of course, the paint should be of a sort that will not injure the plants when sun and steam heat act upon it.

DID YOU SEE ANY DANDELIONS?

Read a newspaper dispatch May 4: "Mount Vernon, N. Y., has declared a boycott on profiteering florists and a movement has been started by the Rev. Otto F. Bartholow, pastor of the First Methodist church, substituting dandelions for carnations for Mothers' day next Sunday. 'Some of the florists have boosted the price of carnations beyond all conception of their worth and as a result many will wear dandelions instead of carnations,' said the minister."

Did you see any dandelion boutonnieres?

MOTHERS' DAY GROWS BIGGER.

The only serious handicap felt by florists at Mothers' day this year was the shortage of stock that prevailed in many places. Of the depressed conditions which affect other lines of business the only indication was an aversion to high-priced plants and flowers. Sales were modest, but many. Some stores closed early Saturday and remained closed Sunday, not for religious observance, but because the orders already taken consumed every bit of available stock. In localities where this happened, the assertion is made that May 8 surpassed both Easter and Christmas, excellent as these two holidays have been. From such enthusiastic report of this holiday's business, accounts run down the scale to statements less roseate, but still quite favorable. Evidently the public viewed Mothers' day as an excuse for eschewing the widely preached admonition of economy and spent gladly in flower stores throughout the country.

Largely responsible for the wonderful business of this day was the publicity given it in a general way in addition to florists' advertising. The front cover of the Literary Digest of May 7, showing mother and roses, brought the day strikingly to the 1,300,000 readers of that magazine. Mayors, business houses and newspaper editors published encomiums of mother, often referring to the observance of the day with flowers. And, of course, florists themselves advertised heavily in every city.

MEMORIAL DAY NEXT.

The interval between Mothers' day and Memorial day is short, though this year it is as long as it can be. Scarcely two weeks away is the day of honor to the nation's soldier dead. Observance of the holiday in honor of those who died in the recent great war in addition to the veterans of the Civil war will increase its importance as a flower day. The American Legion will decorate the graves of the soldiers in this country and conduct exercises in schools and churches. Flowers will be laid on the graves by members of their families and their friends. The addition of this demand to that of the day in previous years should make this Memorial day better than ever before.

WILL WE GET BENEFIT?

Announcement has been made to employees of the American Railway Express Co. to the effect that wages will be reduced effective July 1 next and that working conditions will be altered to conform to the general situation at the present time. The action taken by officials of the company is expected to affect about 80,000 men. It is estimated that the men will not accept the pay cut suggested and that the matter will be placed before the United States railroad labor board. Decision No. 3 of the board, rendered last August, allowed an increase averaging about thirty per cent for all employees. It is expected that the reduction to be made will eliminate the increase granted by the Chicago board.

If the wages of 80,000 men of the American Railway Express Co. are cut thirty per cent, some reduction might, without exceeding the bounds of probability, be expected in traffic rates.

BRIGHTER PROMISE.

Rifts in the clouds that loom on the commercial horizon and threaten to cast shadows on the flower business are indicated in positive and unhesitating terms by that unenthusiastic index of the business situation, Dun's review. It said last week:

"A year has elapsed since the economic readjustment began to gather momentum, and the process is yet to be completed. Forces of rehabilitation are now operative, however, and the general outlook is better. Gains are not easily achieved and none at all appear in some quarters, but the price and wage revisions and the easing in money are factors making for further improvement in conditions. The strengthening of sentiment, upon which business recuperation so largely depends, has continued, and confidence in a gradual revival of activities finds more frequent expression.

"Recovery has come first in those trades and industries which were the first to react from the boom of the war years and afterward, and in isolated instances enough new demand has developed to bring a rally in prices. The buying disposition and the buying power are not yet such as to effect a return to sellers' markets, although there is a tendency to hold prices firmer in some quarters after many months of steady yielding.

"A protracted period of restricted purchasing by distributors has resulted in depleted stocks of goods in not a few cases, but consumptive requirements have also diminished and nearly all orders that flow to manufacturers are of moderate size and mainly for filling-in purposes. The fact that such transactions are increasingly numerous, however, is encouraging, and present prospects, despite unseasonable weather, labor troubles and other drawbacks, are of brighter promise."

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market, for several days prior to the opening of Mothers' day business, was dull, arrivals being light and the demand equally so.

Prospects for a good cut for the great day were dimmed considerably by atmospheric conditions. The prices reported for the week previous held firmly until Friday, May 6, when carnations took an expected spurt, advancing to $10 per hundred. Saturday they advanced to $15 for the morning sales, and before night reached the $20 mark for flowers of good quality. Sunday, $25 was the average and some sales are reported at $30 and even more. The supply was considerably less than the demand, which condition, of course, boosted the price and brought out the usual crop of articles in the public press, although it must be said that the newspapers were fair in their criticisms, taking pains to explain that flowers are subject to the laws of supply and demand, just as are other perishable products. The carnation was paramount among the flowers in use for the day and prices exceeded those for special American Beauty roses, some grades of which brought as little as $20 per hundred and the best, outside of a few selected flowers, $50 per hundred.

All other flowers moved well and at prices which were more or less nominal and shipments were received throughout Saturday evening, May 7, and until nearly midnight.

Roses were not particularly abundant, but were of good quality and moved at a maximum range of from $8 to $25 per hundred. The demand for long-stemmed grades was light and that stock cleaned out only at the normal prices in vogue all week. American Beauty was well on crop, as might be judged when the prices quoted for specials are considered for as important a day as Mothers' day. As a grower said, retailers kick when called upon at other seasons to pay $200 or more per hundred for American Beauty, yet when they have a chance on a special day to drive them at one-tenth of the price, they pass them up.

Miscellaneous flowers met a good demand, particularly yellow daisies, which were in liberal supply. Lilac was in short supply and arrivals sold readily. Darwin tulips were in small supply and sold readily.

Orchids were in scant supply, but there was no particular demand for them and prices remained still. There were a few gardenias, which did not prove attractive.

Retailers, almost without exception, report an excellent Mothers' day business and that much more could have been done had stock not been so scarce.

Monday, May 9, arrivals were so light that the early demand practically cleaned up the market and the prices of Saturday were more or less in force. With the weather more settled and bright sunshine, normal conditions are looked for soon.

Various Notes.

Samuel Lum, the one-time Chatham, N. J., rose grower, is ill. He was taken to a Morristown hospital a few days ago, supposedly suffering from appendicitis, but other serious troubles were found and his condition is alarming to his friends.

Liberal use was made of the newspaper columns for advertising Mothers' day. The Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York carried an advertisement in eight New York papers, including one in Brooklyn. Several Brooklyn retailers collectively occupied almost a whole page in the Saturday, May 7, edition of the Brooklyn Eagle. The advertisements of two Brooklyn furniture dealers on the same page featured Mothers' day in their copy, but, of course, in their own interests.

The many friends of B. Hammond Tracy, the gladiolus grower of Wenham, Mass., a frequent visitor among the trade in New York, are extending sympathy to him and Mrs. Tracy in the death by drowning of their only son. Obituary notice appears in this issue.

The big 6-passenger aeroplane, which was expected to leave New York for Chicago as the pioneer in the new commercial air service between those cities, Wednesday, May 4, did not get away until Saturday morning, owing to stormy weather, but it carried a new supply of flowers with the greeting of Mayor Hylan to Mayor Thompson of Chicago. Among the passengers in the plane was Charles Dickinson, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, who at the age of 63 is an enthusiast in aviation.

Max Schling is using billboards on the elevated railroad lines featuring the telegraph service.

The wholesale florists of the Eighteenth street flower market have arranged to close their establishments during the summer at 4 p. m. In former years the summer closing hour has been 3 p. m. The employees are much disappointed over the change, as they have organized a baseball club and are having weekly try-outs with the idea of evolving a first-class team. The team now under trial will play LeMoult's baseball team at Hempstead Sunday, May 15.

GREENS SHIPPERS OF PIERSON.

Community spirit will crop out at all times. In the April 21 issue of The Review, there was a small item about the Ridgewood Ferneries, of Beresford, Fla. Subsequently The Review received a letter from the Pierson Civic Association, Pierson, Fla., calling attention to the fact that there were other towns in Florida besides the one mentioned. Here is the way the champion of the town put it:

"There are thirty slat houses at Pierson, ranging in size from one-fourth of an acre to three acres each, and five new houses under construction, of one acre each. All houses are covered with 1x3-inch slats spaced three inches apart, making a half shade, which is all that is necessary in this mild climate. In these houses are grown Asparagus plumosus, Asparagus Sprengeri and smilax, which all grow well here. One grower also roots 500,000 rose cuttings each year for a large firm in the north. No artificial heat is needed in the houses here and plants, flowers and decorative greens can be grown much cheaper than in the north, where expensive houses must be built."

The owners of these thirty houses are:

The Market.

Perhaps the most illuminating statement which can be made in regard to Mothers' day is that in this market it exceeded Christmas.

That a special flower day unheard-of ten years ago should have, within that decade, developed so rapidly that it means more to florists than does Easter, or Christmas, or Memorial day is a business marvel. What do you suppose manufacturers and retailers in other lines would give to create another day as good as Christmas? Of course, the post-card people, the confectioners, the jewelers, even the telegraph companies are trying to horn in on Mothers' day, but we have such a long lead that, if the trade does not commit the folly of stopping its advertising, the second Sunday in May belongs to us, of all merchants, as long as flowers retain their eloquence.

It is estimated about $500,000 worth of cut flowers, wholesale, were sold in Chicago last week.

The course of the market had been predicted with unusual accuracy. There were not enough flowers, on the whole, to go around, although there were one or two surpluses.

Of chief interest was the carnation supply. It was short, as had been expected. How many more could have been sold, nobody knows, nor how high the price could have been carried had an attempt been made. There seemed to be a general agreement that, under the circumstances, 15 cents was a fair price for good stock and a larger part of the receipts went at this rate than ever was the case before. Of course some fancy stock, Laddie, Superb and Ward, brought more and there were some shipments too poor to bring the market price.

There were more roses than anything else. Not only was the supply large, but quality was excellent. A heavy volume of orders called principally for short and medium lengths. Many more roses might have been sold at from 10 cents to 20 cents; at 25 cents and up the demand fell away rapidly. Although it is reported Premier and Milady sold as high as 50 cents per flower, the longer grades did not bring their real worth in comparison with the shorts. There were long roses at all times available and some left over in spite of the willingness of the wholesalers to listen to anyone who showed an interest in such stock.

The sweet pea was the one slight disappointment. The arrivals were heavier than had been expected and the demand did not prove to be so strong as wholesalers thought it would be. A pleasant Sunday morning and an otherwise bare market helped to clean up the peas, but they did not realize so good an average price as they should, compared with other flowers.

The supply of peonies did not prove much of a factor. One house had perhaps 15,000 dozens for the week and other houses had limited quantities, but these were only a drop in the bucket compared with the demand. At $1.50 to $2 per dozen, they did not nearly go around.

Nearly all flowers cleaned up closely, as Mother's favorite flower has come to include about everything in the Mothers' day demand.

The present week opened with the demand scarcely abated, as it was apparent all the retailers had cleaned up over Sunday, and they came back with smiling faces for stock with which to start business afresh. The orders from out of town also were unusually heavy May 9, indicating that the good business had been general. Indeed, most of the local retailers said that, thanks to the fine weather Mothers' day, they had a big business Sunday morning and could have sold considerably more stock had it been on hand. Many of them had visited the market Sunday morning and they had bought up about everything in sight, so there was little stock with which to start the new week and prices held up unexpectedly well on the first shipments to arrive. There has been steady retrogression, but the fall in values has not

In spite of the busy season, numerous members of the trade devoted a considerable part of May 5 to the affairs of the midsummer Pageant of Progress. Twenty-eight persons, representing nearly all branches of the trade, attended a noon meeting at the Randolph hotel. The committee reported that participation in the pageant necessitates raising a fund of approximately $25,000 and, after discussion, it was decided to ask the trade to subscribe that sum. The result was largely due to the enthusiasm of Everette R. Peacock, who asserted that never in his experience had well planned publicity failed to pay. His view that, although the pageant comes at the worst time of the year for florists, the results of the display will be apparent all through the following season was shared by Prof. J. C. Blair and Prof. H. B. Dorner, of the University of Illinois, who were present.

It is the plan to combine the florists', seed and nursery sections and several exhibitors stand ready to take good blocks of space for commercial purposes. The balance will be used for a general flower show, for which $5,000 in premiums will be paid by the management. The parks will help make the general display.

George Asmus is chairman of the trade committee and feels that there will be little difficulty in raising the funds. J. E. Pollworth has been asked to act as secretary. Another meeting to report progress will be held this week.

Club's May Party.

The Chicago Florists' Club added to its prestige as a promoter of social events May 5, when the regular meeting night was converted into a double-bill social event, with a short business meeting as a curtain raiser. At this opening session routine matters were disposed of. Two new members were elected:

Gustaf Bloom, 11936 Eggleston avenue, and Anthony Batek, Shermerville, both growers.

When the business matters had been completed, dancing commenced, to fill the time until 9:30, by which hour those whom Mothers' day orders had kept busy at the wholesale houses were present to witness a performance of "The Florists' Shop," a one-act play, acted by students from the University of Illinois.

This clever bit of comedy, written in Professor Baker's playwright class at Harvard, has won the notice of the trade in a number of places. Its performance at Urbana, by the same cast that presented it May 5, at the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, was so enjoyed that the officers of the Chicago Florists' Club immediately made arrangements for its repetition before the Chicago trade.

The cast was composed entirely of students in floriculture at the university. The parts are five. Maude, the clever and diplomatic salesgirl in the florists' shop, promotes a romance between Miss Wells, "a timid spinster," and Mr. Jackson, "a conceited bachelor," with the alternate aid and opposition of Henry, a typical errand boy, and Mr. Slovsky, an irritable Jew, the proprietor of the shop. The performance won much praise from the florists.

The setting of the play at the Hotel Randolph was a complete retail flower store with the most modern equipment, furnished by the A. L. Randall Co.

After the play, dancing was resumed, to the expert strains of Mowshine's orchestra.

The committee on arrangements, responsible for the excellent evening's entertainment, was composed of T. E. Waters, chairman; Paul E. Weiss, William Wienhoeber, J. E. Pollworth, Charles Erne, Paul R. Klingsporn, Ed. Goldenstein and E. A. Ollinger.

Pink Part Publicity.

At St. Valentine's day, Max Cohen, who operates the Jackson Floral Shop, doing a neighborhood trade near the corner of Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, on the far south side of the city, took twenty-four orders for out-of-town delivery—but he did not receive any orders from out-of-town for Chicago delivery. As Mr. Cohen transferred each of his outgoing orders to one or another of the advertisers in the Pink Part of The Review, it was a natural conclusion that there was where he should put his card to let the trade know of his facilities for

They came from all over America and went to all corners of Chicago, but as the average size was a little over $5 he could well afford to send a messenger with each delivery.

Is it any wonder Mr. Cohen called The Review on the telephone to say how pleased he is?

Various Notes.

The Albert F. Amling Co. has registered with the American Rose Society its Ophelia sport, Silver Wedding. It is similar to Ophelia as to flower, but differs in foliage, which is described as "cream colored, red tinged on the young growth." Quite a novelty, we'll say.

its city store, will celebrate his twenty-sixth birthday anniversary May 15.

W. J. Keimel was called to Little Rock, Ark., last week by the death of his venerable mother.

May 7 was the opening day for Henry Wittbold & Son, at their new store, 75 East Adams street. So far as known, it is the only carpeted flower store in Chicago and the atmosphere is distinctly different from most places where flowers are sold. A big business was done on the opening day and that night a decoration was put up in a downtown store for $1,000.

The Alpha Floral Co., accustomed to handling large numbers of transient customers, never has had its store, at Adams street and Wabash avenue, more crowded than during the afternoon of May 7. There always is a large quantity of stock in the windows there. The features of the display on the afternoon preceding Mothers' day were vases of Laddie carnations grown by the Richmond Greenhouse Co., marketed by the E. C. Amling Co., and vases of Gladiolus Mrs. Frank Pendleton, forced by the Weiland-Risch Co.

William Beyer is making a first-class success as working manager of the Alois Frey place at Crown Point. The colored freesias were fine and brought a larger sum than any preceding crop, the Ward and Matchless carnations have been excellent all season and the spring crop of snapdragon, Mr. Frey's special pink, are turning out splendidly.

P. J. Foley celebrates his fifty-fourth anniversary this week. He was born May 12, 1867.

Returning from St. Louis May 4, M. C. Wright brought three orders for large-sized Lord & Burnham hot water boilers, to be installed in Kirkwood and Webster Groves greenhouses next summer.

A page in the North Shore Weekly carried Mothers' day advertising of four leading florists in the Wilson avenue district, Stollery Bros., Lakeside Flower Shop, Schiller the Florist and La Bonte Florist. Schiller's advertisement, in department store fashion, offered five "specials" at shoppers' prices, led by Boston ferns at $2.90.

Max Cohen, of the Jackson Flower Shop, is planning his summer vacation. He will take it in July, making the trip to the Pacific coast with his lodge of Elks.

Eric Johnson reports that last week made a new record for the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., the week's sales exceeding in value the largest week in the history of the business.

Many big wedding orders are keeping things humming at the new store of Henry Wittbold & Son, at 75 East Adams street, while other business is especially active for such a recently established store.

following night had practically cleaned them all out.

By dint of energetic advertising among its local patrons, Stollery Bros., who have an excellent business in the Wilson avenue district, brought Mothers' day buyers into the store in such numbers that early closing on Sunday became a necessity.

The big windows of Harry C. Rowe, advantageously situated at Montrose and Sheridan, attract much transient business into the store. Fine weather on Mothers' day made the store so alluring to the pedestrians on the boulevard that he had few flowers left by evening.

The Central Floral Co., on State street, has adopted a new plan of window decoration. Instead of filling the windows full of many kinds of flowers, as in the past, only one or two vases of blooms now are shown, well arranged, staged on a velvet background. Sometimes a slender vase will contain only one rose. The new method seems to attract more people than did the massing of flowers and it has the further advantage of permitting a full view of the store, in which there always is a profusion of blooms.

The Goulds cut their first peonies for the season at Grayville, in southern Illinois, May 7. They reached the market May 9. The entire crop will be in before Memorial day.

The Everette R. Peacock Co., operating a seed store and flower store near the intersection of Milwaukee avenue and Irving Park boulevard, has installed a nursery department on the vacant property at the street corner. A planting has been made to show the stock in use, while the trees and shrubs for sale are heeled in or otherwise cared for at the back of the lot.

When the first commercial aeroplane started from Chicago to New York May 7, Mayor Thompson replied in like man-

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la,
This week didn't do any such thing, tra-la.

Never has the cut flower market seen such a week in May. No flowers and many orders. The thing seems impossible, yet it really has happened. The explanation lies in the weather. An unusually mild March brought heavy crops of flowers in April. Then came the first week in May, cold, dark and stormy, and you have the story.

The week opened quietly. There was no especial demand. The rather light supply was sufficient. But, as the week progressed, a change came. The supply did not increase. The demand did. It kept on increasing until the close of the week, when there was a perfect whirlwind of business for Mothers' day, Sunday, May 8. The effect on the prices was extremely unfortunate. Values rose to an extraordinary degree, little short of phenomenal.

The amount of business turned down was simply staggering. One wholesaler, who does a large business, thought he had been obliged to decline more business during the week than he had accepted. Others took an even more gloomy view of the case.

The retailers had a tough time. Their orders were heavily cut and the prices were advanced in a way that was simply distracting. They endeavored to protect themselves by overbuying, but they could not begin to get enough stock.

There were encouraging features—the strength of the demand and the wide range covered. People wanted flowers for Mothers' day. They did not just want white carnations. They wanted all kinds of flowers. It is most unfortunate that they could not get them.

The supply of carnations was fair. The average price was $12 to $15. A few brought $20. The usual method of selling was to make the white carry the colored. In other words, better average returns were secured by selling the colors together, instead of separately. This also made possible a fairer distribution of the whites.

Roses brought surprisingly high prices, $6 to $30. The short-stemmed ones were most sought. Some wholesalers did not sell short-stemmed roses under $10 during the last three days of the week. The supply was rather light.

Sweet peas did not amount to much. The unfavorable weather affected them more than anything else. While the other flowers, save orchids, were eagerly taken, their prices did not advance as much as those of carnations or roses.

The outdoor flowers were a disappointment. Southern peonies and Spanish iris were scarce and, except a little cornflower, there is little from nearby. Outdoor valley is over.

A Queer Sight.

The unusual conditions which prevailed in the cut flower market just before Mothers' day were provocative of unusual happenings. In one of our leading wholesale houses, Saturday afternoon, a street merchant was busily employed at a quiet counter in making up boutonnieres. A cruel fate had deprived him of any stale or blown flowers, so he had invested in some muslin blossoms. He had wisely selected white carnations of a size and luster that suggested Timbale d'Argent

The Best in Cut Flowers

We aim to have our growers produce the Best to be had in the cut flower line, regardless of the time of the season. There is an ample supply of good flowers, and we especially recommend to you during May:

Beauties of a quality as good as they can be grown so late in the season.

Russell Roses in any quantity. We will be very strong on Good Russell during the summer months. It is the Best variety of all the Pink Roses known.

Columbia, Hadley, Ophelia, Sunburst and Aaron Ward are varieties that show very good quality.

In Carnations, we continue to have a large supply of C. W. Ward, the Best Rose-pink Variety for size and keeping quality.

The Peonies that we have had so far were very good, and we will continue to have them in quantity until the end of the season. White, several shades of Pink and some Red.

Delphinium Belladonna, Valley, Orchids, good yellow Daisies are other good cut flower items.

We devote our entire efforts to the selling of cut flowers. That is a fact that you should take into consideration when buying your cut flowers.

chrysanthemums and was making them up with a bit of natural green. Surely, he was doing good work.

A Notable Absentee.

Everyone who attended the May meeting of the Florists' Club missed him. The ladies whispered to one another over their saucers of cream, "Mr. Kift is not here." The men said to one another, "Why, where's Kift?"

Everybody was sorry to hear that Robert Kift has not been well. Everybody was glad he had gone to Cape May for a change and hoped it would do him a lot of good.

Robert Kift's genial, happy disposition and his enthusiastic devotion to the cause of floriculture have made him deservedly popular. May he soon be restored to health.

A Problem.

Thoughtful men believe that a serious problem confronts us today, a problem that must be solved if we are to continue to merit the confidence of the public. The problem lies in the wonderful development of the telegraph delivery idea. As long as an individual or a firm is responsible to a customer for the proper filling of an order, that order is almost certain to be properly filled. When the responsibility is divided; when the order is given at one place and filled at another, the danger of an order not being properly filled is evident. In order that our position be maintained, that people retain their confidence in us, it is absolutely necessary that telegraphic orders be filled with fidelity.

Various Notes.

Frederick J. Michell says that the present season has been an excellent one in the seed stores. Mr. Michell believes that a long season is always a good season. The demand this year commenced three weeks before Easter.

H. Bayersdorfer writes from The Hague, Holland, that the flowers are blooming outdoors.

There was lots of pep in the May meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society. A plant exchange, a wild flower collection and dissertation and an entertainment by the high school girls were enjoyed by the members and their friends.

Much comment has been caused by the effort of the candy people to appropriate Mothers' day.

The Market.

Mothers' day this year passed all bounds; it exceeded all expectations! The demand was overwhelming, but the supply did not begin to keep pace with it. In comparison with other years, the demand was heavier, this being the best one yet experienced, and the supply was shorter. Hundreds of people were turned away.

Carnations were limited in supply and those available were quickly used. Snapdragons and sweet peas were the most plentiful of all flowers, but these did not hold out. Carnations sold for $12 to $15 per hundred. Snapdragons brought $8 and $12 and sweet peas $3. Roses sold quickly at from $10 to $35.

Anything in the shape of a flower was eagerly sought. Stock was cut unusually green to help still the cry of "More flowers!" A few daisies, candytuft, lilies of the valley, calendulas, orchids and pansies were available. Some gladioli were in evidence and moved quickly at $15 per hundred.

Potted plants were also entirely sold. Calceolarias, begonias, ferns, hydrangeas, rose bushes and even blooming geraniums were called for.

Business in general has been improving in the last two weeks. Warmer weather is here and the demand for bedding stock will begin to be brisk. The supply of this seems to be fairly large, but is not overplentiful, as the last two and for cemetery calls throughout the year, you will find these beautiful, dignified and practical cemetery basket vases popular, sure-selling and good repeaters. Glass vases break and metal holders are cheap looking. You can now offer your customers a flower holder that is really attractive instead of merely a container for water and flowers.

In each basket is furnished a heavy rust-proof spiked galvanized iron container and this spike protrudes through a hole in the bottom of the basket so when stuck in the soil it holds the basket in position. Colors: Green, Brown and Gray. We furnish you advertising folders to send to your customers with each dozen baskets. Order today and you will order again.

years have proved to the florists that there is usually a shortage in this line.

Various Notes.

Glen Moore and family, of Rushville, were in the city the early part of last week.

Paul Tauer, florist and mayor of Lebanon, Ind., was unfortunate in causing the death of a small child. The child ran from behind a car before his moving automobile and before the car could be stopped she was fatally injured. Mr. Tauer was exonerated of all blame.

I. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and W. C. Siebert, of Marion, Ind., were visitors last week.

All the florists experienced the largest Mothers' day business yet. Bertermann Bros. Co. had six extra automobiles and all were kept busy.

E. E. T.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

For the retailers, last week was a busy one and also an anxious one. It kept everyone guessing about how he could get flowers enough to fill the orders for Mothers' day. There was a variation in prices, some being unusually low and others extremely high. That business exceeded that of other years is the report from both the wholesale and retail florists. Cut flowers of all kinds were hard to get by the afternoon of Saturday, May 7. Several florists were sold out entirely by the middle of the afternoon.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

Plans for the June flower show were discussed at considerable length at the regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held in Music hall, Tuesday evening, April 26. There was a large attendance. The premium list was presented by the executive committee and it was announced that efforts are to be made along several lines to make the exhibitions this year surpass in size and importance those held in a number of previous years. As an incentive to this end, in addition to the usual prizes offered for exhibits of roses, sweet peas and other flowers incident to the early season, a place has been given for the exhibit of orchids, calceolarias and others which make unusually attractive displays and which will give not only additional beauty, but increased interest.

The executive committee has made more liberal provisions in this year's list of prizes for exhibits made by amateurs, who in the last few years have been showing more and more active interest in floriculture and a greater inclination to exhibit their products at the society's shows.

The June show will be a one-day affair and the public will be admitted free of charge. The management of the exhibition will be in the hands of Richard Gardner, who has staged the society's shows for several seasons.

ELCO BRAND OF RIBBONS

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The dark, drizzling weather that shrouded this section for the ten days previous to Mothers' day had a deteriorating effect upon the quantity and quality of flowers offered and caused a material increase in prices. Carnations were especially hard hit. These have been none too plentiful for the last two weeks, being held at about $8 per hundred for the best varieties. But Thursday, May 5, they began to stiffen and Saturday morning went to $12.00 and $15 per hundred, retailing at $2.25 to $4 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Mothers' day was more generally observed here this year than ever before, due in a great measure to the coöperative advertising in the daily newspapers by several of the larger downtown florists. Not only was a series of display advertisements used, but attractive display cards were placed in the florists' windows calling attention to the day more than a week in advance. Among those who joined in the coöperative advertising were Johnston Bros., T. J. Johnston & Co., William A. Bowers, T. O'Connor, Smith the Florist, Macnair, Burke & Burns, V. J. Berarducci, Eugene McCarron, F. Macrae & Sons and Westminster Greenhouses.

William Chappell is somewhat improved in health this spring.

Hugo DeWild is making repairs on the Elmwood Greenhouses.

The store of T. O'Connor had a handsome large casket cover of roses and maidenhair for the funeral of Harry C. Arnold, superintendent of the General Fire Extinguisher Co., last week.

K. J. Murphy, East Providence, reports a big demand for nursery stock this spring, especially Japanese barberry and California privet for hedges.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, of Quidnick, are shipping some fine roses to the Boston market, including Premier, Prima Donna, Russell, White Killarney and Pilgrim.

The Colonial Flower Shop had several large wedding decorations last week.

William A. Bowers made an automobile trip through Connecticut last week, looking for stock.

Extensive repairs and alterations are being made by the Westminster Greenhouses.

Frederick B. Luther has some exceptionally fine geraniums for bedding this spring.

"Say It with Flowers"

Telegraph Delivery Department

The florists whose cards appear on the pages carrying this head, are prepared to fill orders from other florists for local delivery on the usual basis.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

Friday, April 29, the market was demoralized through overproduction; just one week later it was again in the same state, but, contrary to that condition, there were simply no flowers on the market on the eve of the largest Mothers' day business known in the history of the trade. Every retailer in the city reported more orders booked for this holiday than ever before; the problem with most of them was how to get the orders filled. The oldest men connected with the market say they never saw a situation to equal it. Stock became scarcer each day during the week. The retailers were frantically using the telephone and telegraph to nearby flower centers, but no relief was forthcoming. The same situation seemed to exist along the entire Atlantic seaboard. Prices on all lines of stock soared sky-high and, strange as it may seem, there was no grumbling about prices. Any price would have been satisfactory could the stock have been procured.

All the small towns throughout the state, where local greenhouses are generally sufficient to supply the demand, were piling orders into the market. These orders were for stock for funeral work rather than Mothers' day orders. A considerable business was done in artificial flowers, magnolia and galax leaves. A peculiar instance was the manner in which asparagus piled up, this being plentiful and coming in normal supply, but there was not sufficient cut stock to use it up.

Last week was a rainy one. As most of the growers had stopped firing and expected it to clear off each day, the houses were standing full of buds that a day's sun would send on the market. Outdoor stock was in the same condition. Peony buds were ready to burst into bloom; a few days of sun would flood the market with outdoor stock.

It was an off week with bedding plants, as it was so wet that nothing could be planted. However, those who are fortunate enough to have this stock are not worried, for they know the state of the market on plants.

Various Notes.

Albert G. Fiedler has an unusually large funeral demand, and last week was a particularly heavy one. His Mothers' day orders were also heavy.

Mary Johnston had a heavy week of funeral work, and her Mothers' day orders broke all records. Never in the history of this firm have so many telegraph orders been sent.

Samuel Feast & Sons were booked to the limit for Mothers' day and had a busy week in all branches of the business, getting the supply from their own range and what they could pick up from the wholesale houses. Charles Feast was just able to take care of all the orders on hand.

The supply from John Cook's range was not more than twenty-five per cent of normal. Mothers' day orders were the heaviest this store has ever known.

Fishing Where Fishing Is Good.

A couple of years ago while driving along a back road down South, I came upon an old negro sitting on the porch of his ramshackle cabin, fishing in a slough that ran along its side.

Chuckling to myself at this picture of contentment, I called: "Any luck today, Uncle?"

"No, suh," he replied, complacently sucking his pipe.
"Do you think there are any fish in that half dried slough," I fired back.
"I dunno, suh."
"Did you ever catch any there?"
"Naw, suh, I never did."
"Well," said I, "why on earth do you fish in a place where you never caught a fish?"
The old man grinned, "I dunno, suh; I reckon it's just cause it's close."

"Silly story"—"old fool," you say. You're dead right! But did you ever notice how much business is like fishing, and how many business men follow the same old methods, "just cause it's close"?

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Throughout this locality, business appeared to be active last week. The weather has moderated considerably and is springlike. Most days have been clear, with a fair amount of sunshine, but the days remain cool. Every effort is being given to rush the large amount of outside planting, which appears to be of larger volume this season. The cool days have stiffened up stock considerably and the quality is much improved. Stock has come along favorably and in good quantities, but the unusually heavy demand for Mothers' day trade found the market with not enough to go around. Up to the present writing it is acknowledged that Mothers' day business was, without doubt, fifty per cent larger than that of last year and that was a record. In every way the stores looked like Easter or a Saturday. Unusually good weather boosted the business a great deal. Much individual advertising for this day had been done by the various flower shops and it produced gratifying results. Carnations, the ever-popular flowers for this occasion, were in good supply and the demand was heavy.

Sweet peas are slowing up in supply and the quality is poorer. Fancy iris is reaching us and moves well. There is a big supply of roses and it includes all grades. Roses now are good. A good quantity of outdoor-grown bulbous stock is reaching us and finds a ready market. Darwin tulips are especially sought for. A few late freesias are seen and sell well. Callas and Easter lilies are seen, but the former are more plentiful. Mignonette, forget-me-nots and sweet alyssum are seen, but the demand is not large. Large quantities of yellow daisies are reaching us and move well. Some extra fine snapdragons are seen in many shades and are especially good and much sought for. Outdoor-grown lilac is reaching us in good supply and was useful for Mothers' day trade. Orchids are of fine quality and clear well. Marguerites are in small supply. Outdoor-grown valley is plentiful and sells well. The violet season is over now; the last of them arrived a few days ago.

Various Notes.

Felix Albert, of Albert the Florist, who has been confined to his bed for nearly a month with sciatica, was able to be at his place of business for the first time May 6 and assisted in the big business for Mothers' day.

in with a big shipment of Darwin tulips last week. They were particularly good. The colors were exceptional. They were planted for Memorial day business, but the early season brought them in at this time.

brought her armfuls of daisies. The window was tastefully arranged in the background with a trellis and potted marguerites.

George B. Hart did a big wholesale business for the Mothers' day trade. Up to Friday night, May 6, the sales exceeded any previous Mothers' day business and, according to figures, were three times larger than the business of 1919. This is not including the Saturday business, which was in every way like the Saturday before Easter.

Jacob Thomann & Sons are bringing in good quantities of lilac, which finds ready sale. This has escaped the frost a good deal better than the lilacs in the city parks.

Charles Lee, of Barnard, N. Y., is cutting good carnations, although the supply was not heavy for Mothers' day. He is growing some fine delphiniums, which he expects to cut in about a week.

Lilac Sunday was observed in Rochester May 8. Unfortunately, the late spring frosts have touched most of the lilacs in the city and the damage done

ALLIANCE, O.

The funeral of a prominent young man in Alliance, Saturday, April 23, was the reason for a big rush for the local florists. The deceased was a veteran of the late war and a member of a prominent family. The work was all good work and required high-grade flowers.

H. T. Miller has been busy ever since Easter and finds ready sale for all kinds of stock, especially the fine snapdragons and lilies of the valley he is cutting.

Norman Reish, recent addition to the florists' business, entered H. T. Miller's Main street store, Monday, April 25.

Woodman's Flower Shoppe, formerly A. C. Eastwood, on Arch street, shows the effects of the combined efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Woodman in improved appearance and increased business.

The motormen and conductors of the Stark Electric Co., who run between Salem and Canton and run through Alliance, have adopted the set piece of a street car in flowers for every funeral of a member of their association. Koch's Quality Floral Co. was desig-

HAMILTON, ONT.

The florists of Hamilton repeated their Mothers' day effort of last year, running a full-page advertisement in the Spectator May 4. It was a most attractive piece of copy, signed by many more florists than contributed to last year's space. They were Arbor Florist, Avondale Greenhouses, Benton & Fairey, Breezy Hill Floral Farm, John Connon Co., W. B. Gautby, C. F. Guthrie, Malham & Sills, Marshall Bros., M. McKay & Co., Miss J. E. McMeekin, W. Norman, Price's Flower Shoppe, Royal Flower Store, Sawell Greenhouses, G. Sharples, Frank B. Smith Co. and G. N. Sones & Sons.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Stock came in steadily last week and there was a market for everything. Gladioli are being cut by some growers and are bringing a good price.

Various Notes.

The Chicago Grand Opera Co. had a successful week here and did considerable to help business. Among the many orders was a large basket of roses sent Spring really seems to have put in its appearance at last. Some of the flowering shrubs were killed back so badly that they will produce no flowers at all. Hence, people who must have flowers have to rely on the florists. The continued warm sunshiny weather of the last two weeks has increased the supply of flowers until now sweet peas and lilies are added to roses in the more-than-can-be-disposed-of list. On the other hand, business is good for the season of year. There has been comparatively little sickness here this spring, and funeral business has been light. This probably accounts for the surplus of flowers.

The major part of the business is in bedding plants and pot plants. The business seems to be good this spring although it has come on more gradual than usual. This year more than ever before the florists are selling 4 and 5-inch pot plants instead of the little 2¼ and 2½-inch plants of days gone by. Time was when a florist expected to get 45 or 50 cents per dozen for plants. Now he gets $2 or $3 per dozen for a plant that have cost him only a little more to grow and both he and the customer are better pleased. On the whole, about as many plants are sold as before and the total of the money received is much larger.

The city parks are busy getting out their bedding plants. The new pink and yellow woolflowers are being tried out this year. The ordinary woolflower has proved to be such a wonderfully good bedder here that it is small wonder the appearance of a good pink was hailed with delight. The new sunflower, Helianthus latifolius, discovered by the United States Department of Agriculture a few years ago, has proved a popular perennial here. I have never seen this sunflower listed by any seedsman, but it seems to me it is worth backing up.

Iris fanciers have been much interested this year in the newer varieties of iris planted in Centennial park and in some of the private collections since the organization of the local iris society a year ago. Two or three amateurs have taken up breeding and are making crosses with great avidity. Not knowing what the experts have learned can not be accomplished, some of them are making supposedly impossible crosses with success, at least insofar as the formation of seed pods go.

Floyd Bralliar has an interesting iris in bloom as a result of a cross made six years ago by pollinating Iris pallida dalmatica with Siberian Blue. The flower closely resembles Iris pallida speciosa, but foliage and color of blossom show Siberian parentage markedly.

STEUBENVILLE, O.

The florists of Steubenville have joined together in an agreement which has proved a benefit to all concerned. A custom prevailed here in regard to loaning baskets without charge for funerals and other occasions. This, of course, is a poor policy and by no means profitable. The Steubenville florists have posted in their stores a copy of an agreement signed by each florist which reads like this:

We, the undersigned florists, agree that we will not permit any baskets to leave our stores unless charged for at the regular selling price. We will not loan or rent any baskets. This action is necessary due to the damage and losses of baskets loaned. A copy of this agreement is to be posted in a conspicuous place in each store.

Business in general has not been up to Steubenville's standard, due to the closing of the factories here for the first time in the history of the city. There is, however, enough business to go around and the stores are kept well stocked, with little loss in unsold flowers.

Mothers' day, the day with a great future to all florists, lived up to local expectations and showed the greatest returns of any years so far recorded. fine and brought a good price without complaint.

Flowering plants, of course, were in great demand and practically sold out, with an exception here and there of a few which were high-priced. The rose bushes and hydrangeas were worthy of special mention. There were also some fine pelargoniums that filled in nicely, where moderately priced articles were sought.

The agitation against flowers for this day was not elaborated upon by local newspapers and, in consequence, no ill effects were noticed. In fact, Saturday, May 7, most of the papers had front-page comments, photographs of mothers and a eulogy by the mayor, which was the greatest piece of publicity that the florists could hope to receive, especially gratis. Some of the more progressive retailers used advertisements in the daily papers, while others confined themselves to window signs and banners for their delivery cars to gain the needed publicity.

Various Notes.

Schramm Bros. report big business, both local and telegraph. This firm has had the store frontage redecorated in 4-color display work, featuring flowers by telegraph to all parts of the world. A recent order called for delivery in the duchy of Luxemburg.

Harry Heinl was well prepared for the rush and, among other well-grown stock, his pelargoniums were worthy of special note.

tor gave great satisfaction to local dealers.

Hirzel Bros. had fine hydrangeas and sold out early.

Feniger's two stores did a record business. All the plants were sold out early.

Metz & Bateman enjoyed the best business of their career. Saturday afternoon, May 7, the answer, "Nothing left," had to be made use of.

W. F. Krueger's houses were in heavy crop with roses and peas, but he cleaned out everything.

Otto P. Krueger had all he could handle. Some nice marguerite plants were noted at his store.

Henry Krueger says that his business compared with Easter returns and he was well pleased with the results.

The Market.

Weather conditions were certainly against the production for Mothers' day. The demand for stock this holiday was exceptionally good. It was impossible to supply the regular demand with cut flowers last week.

The cut of carnations was small. Many customers have received only about twenty-five per cent of their requirements. There was no surplus of carnations the last two weeks. Each morning has found the wholesale houses cleaned up entirely.

The rose crop was fair, the quality being exceptionally good. There has been no trouble in disposing of the entire production of roses. Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Pilgrim, Richmond, Crusader and White Killarney are the principal roses in the market during this week. American Beauty roses have also been in demand and have been cleaned up daily. The quality of carnations has been exceptionally fine and each flower has brought a good price. Easter lilies and calla lilies have also been in great demand and bringing fair returns. Snapdragon has been exceptionally fine, but there was not enough to answer the requirements of the regular trade. Valley and orchids have been in demand and have been moving out rapidly at fair prices. Yellow daisies were in demand last week and have been bringing fairly good prices, especially the long-stemmed yellow daisies now on the market. Some fine gladioli are on the market and are bringing a good price. The quality of the stock is exceptionally fine and the demand far exceeds the supply. Spanish iris is in the market and is moving rapidly.

Dagger ferns from the south are in the market and are of fine quality. The shipments of regular fancy ferns are about over and the florists are finding the dagger ferns useful.

No peonies were on the market last week, although the demand would have been large had it been possible to secure peonies for Mothers' day. Judging from the demand from florists for flowers, they all anticipated a large business and had it been possible to supply the demand, Mothers' day this year would have surpassed any before. No doubt, some of the business must be attributed to the local advertising now being done by the Pittsburgh Retail Florists' Association in the daily morning newspapers.

Retail Florists' Association was held Thursday evening, May 5, at the Chatham hotel. Owing to the nearness of this meeting to Mothers' day, there was a small attendance, considering former meetings. Chairman Ira C. Harper was absent, due to the illness of his mother. Harvey Sheaf, vice-chairman, was in the chair. Election of officers for the ensuing year was postponed until a later date. "Coöperation among Retail Florists" was the chief subject of the evening. It was urged that new members be obtained. To make the association a success, every retail florist should be a member. Printed lists of the members of the association were distributed, giving the names and addresses of all members. H. J. H.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

The outstanding feature of last week was the heavy demand for flowers and plants for Mothers' day and the shortage of flowers. Some of the growers have advanced their prices considerably. High prices prevent the flowers getting into the hands of the lowly citizen on Mothers' day and this condition is not desirable, especially at this season of the year.

However, there is a distinct shortage. The warm weather we have been enjoying brought on the flowers too quickly. We have, therefore, had plenty of stock up to the present, with the possible exception of carnations.

Various Notes.

Both Toronto and Hamilton florists have been doing some effective collective advertising in the local papers. Probably one of the best "stunts" was that carried out by the publicity committee and the Canadian National Telegraph Co., which sent out 15,000 folders with the telegrams delivered during the week previous to Mothers' day.

A special meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association was held at Sir John Eaton's Monday, May 2, to discuss the prize list for the winter fair, in November.

The annual meeting of the F. T. D. will be held at the King Edward hotel and all social events will be held there. Visitors will be taken to visit the stores

Orton, of the bureau of plant industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, met the members of the horticultural staff, teachers, research men and extension specialists, daily for lectures and discussion. The general topic of Dr. Orton's lectures was "The Interrelations of Horticulture and Pathology." Lectures and discussion, however, covered a rather wide range, the specific subjects being as follows:

1. Transit and market spoilage of horticultural products.
2. Horticultural aspects of the control of disease by diet.
3. Vegetables for invalid diets; their culture and supply.
4. The biological basis of plant quarantine.
5. United States plant quarantines and their effects on American horticulture. Can foreign pests be permanently excluded? Domestic vs. imported plants.
6. Plant problems of the tropics.
7. Disease resistance in plants.
8. Breeding for disease resistance.
9. Inspection and certification as an aid to seed and plant improvement.
10. The organization and upbuilding of American horticulture.

much stock was to be found on the market. However, what was found was of good quality. With the exception of valley and Easter lilies, the market cleaned up early. Roses and carnations were at a premium, while the few peonies coming into the market just about gave each customer a sample. Some good sweet peas were to be had and, considering everything, the quality of the stock was far superior to the usual holiday stock, although the quantity was sadly lacking. The few carnations and roses that arrived were excellent. Some lilac and bridal wreath also arrived. Indoor-grown valley did not move fast, owing to the debut of the outdoor stock, some of which is of just as good quality as the indoor.

customers among the people who waited until the last minute. Business passed all expectations and everything was sold. Some florists offered artificial flowers after others had given out.

Much funeral work came in and pieces such as magnolia wreaths were made in place of fresh flowers, while on pieces that were made of flowers, large ties of ribbon were used to increase the size of the piece.

Many bright geraniums, etc., in assorted pots, were sold and, although carnations sold first as usual, the demand for them was less than ever before.

Several florists here closed at noon Saturday, May 7, because they were sold out.

Various Notes.

Many florists were surprised to receive notice of a sheriff's sale of the greenhouse property at 182 North Broadway. This place has five glass houses and was appraised at $8,000. It is to be sold to the highest bidder.

Pittsburgh, visited Columbus Tuesday, May 10, on the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce trade tour. He gave notice by personal letter to several friends here that he was desirous of meeting them and arranged to make the best of his time during his short stay.

The telegraph business here for Mothers' day was nothing short of wonderful and wire after wire was delivered to the Western Union office after the barrage of coöperative advertisements and the many notes put in by reporters were read in the dailies. Governor Davis issued a proclamation urging gifts of the mothers' favorite flower rather than carnations.

Mothers' day windows attracted much attention. Of these, McKellar's was one of the most suitable for the occasion. The floor was charmingly covered with old rose silk, while in the middle of the window stood a papier-mache model of mother. Near her was a "Say It with Flowers" sign. In the rear of the window was a large photograph of a happy family, along with other tasteful pictures of mothers and babes. J. W. T.

Mothers' Day.

The weather was ideal for a big supply of flowers for Mothers' day, but the quantity of stock in the market was not enough to meet the demand. It was impossible to fill orders completely.

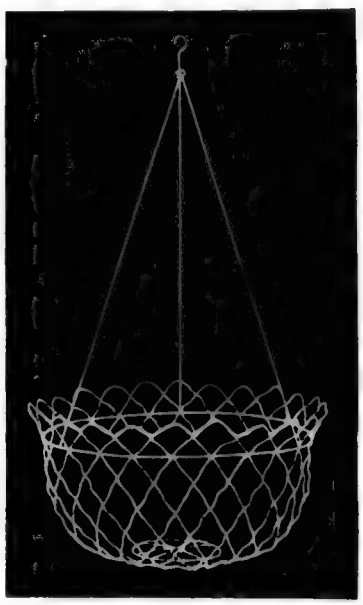
The demand for carnations was unusually heavy and beyond the supply. Roses and sweet peas, likewise, had a heavy call. There was considerable snapdragon in the market, but this found a ready sale.

There was also a big demand for plants in bloom of every description. Large quantities of geraniums in bloom were sold. Many geraniums were worked up in baskets and boxes. These made an attractive Mothers' day gift.

In order to keep the price of flowers at a reasonable basis for Mothers' day, every variety of flowers and plants was pushed.

The local advertising committee ran some fine Mothers' day ads in the various newspapers, which, without doubt, gave big returns. Many other lines of business also advertised in the local papers, pushing their stock for Mothers' day.

In plants there was a large quantity of geraniums, daisies, cinerarias, calceolarias, pelargoniums and heliotropes in bloom.



Various Notes.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club held its annual May ball at the Calumet Club Thursday, May 12.

The recently appointed chief of police took his oath of office at 11 a. m., Saturday, May 7, and friends of the new chief from all parts of the city sent flowers. This caused an additional rush for flowers while the trade was right in the midst of the Mothers' day rush. It was good business, but would have been more welcome at another time.

H. Locker & Sons are building a new residence, which is well under construction. From the looks of the plans, it will be one of the finest homes in Wauwatosa.

The Market.

Mothers' day has fully arrived. From now on florists will place it at the top of the list of big days. It was ahead of Christmas and Easter at their best. No one had enough stock. Last week opened with a good demand, which increased each day and ended with a frantic appeal for anything at any price. Carnations gave out early. They had been off crop for more than two weeks. The short supply week before last gave rise to a suspicion that stock was being held back, but there was no pickled stock on this market. Growers cut and brought their crops in to the limit every day. There would have been no object in holding back after the first of the month, as there was such constant call for it. Stock was sold as soon as it was laid on the tables at the wholesale houses. Customers were there to get all they could. When the shipping orders were packed the iceboxes were clean. Prices were better than at Christmas. The market was cleaned up at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, May 7. Twice the amount of stock could have been sold at the prices asked if it could have been obtained.

Various Notes.

John Klaus cut about 8,000 sweet peas. He expected a cut of 25,000, but the cloudy weather caused the buds to drop. He cut 11,000 roses, Premier, Columbia, Ophelia and Butterfly.

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. turned down wire orders for between 30,000 and 35,000 carnations and orders for about 15,000 roses. Beginning Thursday, May 5, all orders for stock were refused.

The Alpha Floral Co. had as heavy a stock of plants as it had for Easter. The shipping tables were loaded every morning and emptied by 10 o'clock. More than a dozen additional packers worked the latter half of the week.

Eleven salespeople, six packers and five deliverymen were added to the regular force of the William L. Rock Flower Co., Thursday, May 5, and worked the remainder of the week. The floor was cleared of plants by noon Thursday, and had to be refilled by stock from the greenhouses. That day sixty-seven telegraph orders were sent by mail. Between twenty-five and thirty per cent of the orders up to Friday were for out of town.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. had about 4,000 Easter lilies from Texas, a single bloom to the stem and of excellent quality; a big crop of gladioli and peonies. This company's roses were in crop. Every day was a clean-up. Stock was so short compared with demands that about fifty per cent of orders were unfilled.

state he returned May 5. He contracted with the Kemble Floral Co., Ottumwa, Ia., for a steel-frame house, 61x200, with complete Agmco gravity steam system, and for a conservatory in connection with the home of G. H. Payne, a banker in Omaha, Neb.

Among the recent visitors in the city were Glenn Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Henry Knipe, Leavenworth, Kan., and William Hasselman, Independence, Kan.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. last week sent in a heavy stock of hydrangeas and other plants. The crop of cut flowers, roses especially, was big, but not nearly equal to the demand.

Samuel Murray had a number of good orders for the Monroe funeral in Lawrence, Kan., last week. His shop was a busy place three or four days before Mothers' day. He thought he was well supplied, but everything gave out at the last.

T. J. Noll, president of the Florists' Club, has been appointed chairman of the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen to solicit funds for the entertainment of the American Legion convention in October. The Chamber of Commerce is naming one representative from the various professions and lines of business, going through the list in alphabetical order. A fund of $100,000 is to be raised for the convention and fifty per cent is already contributed. The quota for the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen of the city is $500. May 10, 11 and 12 have been designated as the days for the drive, but Mr. Noll intends to have the full amount before the first day.

A meeting of the Florists' Club was held in the office of the T. J. Noll Floral Co., Thursday, May 5. Coming so close to Mothers' day, there was not a large attendance and no matters of special importance were brought up.

Galesburg, Mich.—Edward H. Woodhams, formerly of Kalamazoo, is operating a quite successful business in this town. Mr. Woodhams takes charge of the greenhouse and garden and Mrs. Woodhams takes charge of the sales.

Hamlet, N. C.—This is a town of 5,000 inhabitants with no florist and few flowers. This spring, Mrs. Felix Cannon has sold a few hundred plants and all the cut flowers she could grow. She hopes by next winter to have a small greenhouses and hotbeds, so that she can more amply take care of the floral wants of the town.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Forest Grove, Ore.—A small greenhouse is operated here by Miss Evelyn Buffum.

Berkeley, Cal.—A. H. Gregory, of Miles City, Mont., has bought out the Flowershop, at 2114 Center street. In the Montana town Mr. and Mrs. Gregory conduct the Miles City Greenhouses and Gregory's Flower Store. They have taken the Berkeley place so that they may have something to keep them busy in each city part of the year.

VENTURA, CAL.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Paquette have taken over, by purchase, the old and well known Shepherd's Gardens, founded by the late Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd in the early seventies and made famous by her because of the wonderful production of rare plants and flowers. For many years it has been successfully conducted by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Francis, who will continue the seed-producing part of the business. Mr. and Mrs. Paquette will specialize in nursery stock, potted plants and cut flowers. Besides the Paquette Flower Shop, on California street, they will have branches at Oxnard and Ojai.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

An unusually heavy demand for good funeral work and plenty of low-priced stock made last week an exceptionally good one for the retailers, while the approach of Mothers' day improved the shipping business. The high express rates are, doubtless, checking the business in out-of-town shipments and will continue to do so until conditions again settle down. Not only the florists, but also the produce men, are being hard hit by these conditions.

Stock is moderately plentiful. Roses and carnations continue good. Gladioli and baby gladioli are coming in more freely. Shasta daisies are in big demand and, although the supply is large, there will be a scarcity this week. Cecile Brunner roses are at their best and there has been an oversupply for a week or two. The exceptionally hot weather and drying winds about put an end to local callas. Yellow daisies and cornflowers are in big demand. Greens are plentiful and good.

Various Notes.

A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., when he was returning from Detroit, where he attended a directors' meeting of the F. T. D., said that a most successful meeting was held and that he expects great things of the organization. Jimmie Jordan has joined the staff here. He is well known as an old-timer in Los Angeles. Several of the staff had hay fever badly, but stuck gamely to work. Frank Reymond is getting out his gun ready for a hunting trip; first stop, Alaska.

R. G. Fraser & Son have most of the new 20-acre ranch at El Monte planted. Asters, celosias, zinnias, cosmos and other flower seed specialties are seen, fine stands of all being noted. Douglas Fraser is enthusiastic about the company's Sensation strain of stocks, a fine type with long flower stems and extra large individual blossoms.

The city council, at its meeting May 2, authorized the employment of the necessary engineering and laboring forces to construct and make ready the sunken garden for the use of the California Nurserymen's Association for its big fall show. This action was taken on the recommendation of the park commission, which is heartily in favor of the project and is helping it along. President Wilcox and his various committees are working strenuously on the details of the exhibition and there is little doubt that this will be the biggest thing in the way of a trade show ever held in the west.

J. Francis has secured the business formerly known as the University Nursery, on South Vermont avenue. It is now known as the Bluebird Florist and will be an addition to the North Broadway business.

Howell, the Hollywood Florist, has opened a fine and attractive new store.

Fine gladioli are coming in from the Downey ranch of the H. N. Gage Co. At the Long Beach place there is a fine crop of Asparagus plumosus being harvested. This is late, but, owing to the good climate there, it is always of exceptionally good germination.

The Rose Florist is the latest addition to the trade in San Pedro, having opened at 256 Sixth street.

The store of W. Armacost & Co. was a busy place last week, when it was preparing for and shipping stock for Mothers' day.

Glazing and bench building are in full blast at the new Santa Ana range of Amling Bros., and the houses will be ready for planting soon.

"Everybody busy" is the report of the California Floral Co., where Mothers' day shipments were unusually heavy.

The Athletic Club Florist is showing some splendid gladioli, these having been grown by J. Rolleri at his nursery. One variety in particular, a fiery, glowing, rosy red, is a sure winner and magnificent in every way. Carl Brose, of the staff here, has bought himself a new home at Belvedere, on the east side of the city.

At the store of the E. C. Amling Co., extra large shipments of carnations were sent out to Texas, Utah and other points.

Leon D. Stoute, formerly connected with Howard & Smith, some time ago opened several grocery stores and at all of these he is now introducing flower departments. This is to keep his customers away from the large markets where flowers are shown in connection with groceries and other household necessities.

Fine rose stock is being shown at the store of the Alexandria Florist, on Fifth street.

Arthur Howard, manager of the cut flower department at Howard & Smith's, at Ninth and Olive streets, says that funeral work has been of unusually large proportions of late. The removal of the lath house and planting north of the store is a great improvement.

After a somewhat dull April, the present month has opened up well at the store of S. Murata & Co., on Los Angeles street. Mr. Murata says that the Mothers' day business was exceptionally good. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

A spell of extremely hot weather during several days of last week caused flowers, especially roses, to open prematurely, with the result that the crop at present is short. This fact, coming in conjunction with Mothers' day shipping orders, has caused the market to take a sharp upward trend. Roses are double the price that they were a week ago and carnations have gone up in the same proportion. It is anticipated that prices will drop again within the next few days, as the weather is now cool. White peonies are, to some extent, filling the place of roses. Iris, while by no means cheap, is fairly plentiful. Hawthorn is still in bloom and there is now an abundance of strawflowers. Lilies of the valley, gypsophila, orchids and gardenias are all helping to fill the demand, which is fairly brisk.

Various Notes.

The seamen's strike is tying up shipping and is keeping florists out of their usual brisk business in bon-voyage baskets for passengers leaving for the Charles Clarke, well known to the florists' trade here, has been for several years in Portland and Seattle. He has now returned to his home city and is with Stoppenbeck, the American Florist.

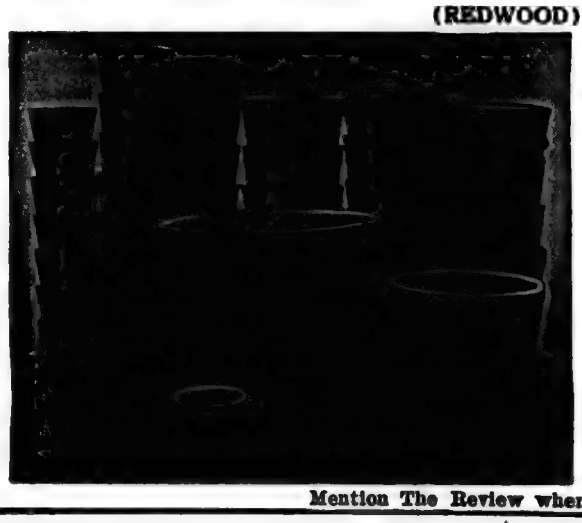
F. C. Jaeger & Son are making extensive plans for next September, when they intend going more heavily into the wholesale business, in addition to their retail work. The new store which they have taken over on Powell street gives them 5,000 feet of floor space, which they say will facilitate handling the wholesale end of their business satisfactorily.

Considerable preparatory work for a Memorial day window is being done by C. Kooyman & Co. The whole display will consist of wreaths and set pieces, nearly all of magnolia leaves and strawflowers, which form an effective combination and one that proves lasting.

E. W. McLellan & Co. tried to divide their rose crop between shipping and the local trade, as the demand for roses was heavy last week.

J. A. Axell believes that prices are due to take a drop, as the recent hot spell merely placed a brief and fictitious value on certain crops. Heavy shipping orders for Mothers' day helped to boost prices, in conjunction with the temporary shortage of stock.



The United Flower & Supply Co., being dubious as to long-distance shipments at this season, canceled all orders for Mothers' day goods in territory east of Denver. "Last year, some of our goods did not carry to eastern points for Mothers' day as we could have wished, owing to the uncertainty as to refrigerator cars," said I. Inque. "This year we confined shipments to coast and Rocky mountain points for Mothers' day."

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is still slowly recovering from his recent illness, but is not yet able to take his accustomed place at the store.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. began booking Mothers' day orders unusually early this year.

Brown & Kennedy say that funeral work, Mothers' day orders and telegraph delivery orders are combining to make May begin with a rush.

Podesta & Baldocchi report having the decorations for a number of dinners and luncheons. A costly pall which they recently made contained 100 dozen lilies of the valley, combined with roses.

Albert O. Stein has been doing a number of decorations for luncheons and teas. Some clever work for a wooden wedding included a bouquet of old-fashioned clothespins and a beautiful Japanese tray, to which was tied a graceful bouquet.

Joseph's, believing that the old-fashioned mother is popular, sent to France for a consignment of the real thing in market baskets, the kind with wicker lids at both sides of the handle. These filled with flowers pleased customers. A handsome Paisley shawl was used as the background for the Mothers' day display. M. M.

The Market.

General sales last week were good, with no outstanding lead noted for either decorations, sales or funeral work in the aggregate total. The weather conditions have been against rapid development of outdoor stock and this has been a subject of satisfaction to the florists in that it counteracted the lighter transient demand which always comes with bad weather.

New offerings for the week included the first indoor-grown gladioli of this season, the product of local greenhouses. A heavier cut on lilac, freer arrivals of California iris and gypsophila and an increased cut on local violas were other features.

Potted stock was still scarce as to quantity and in many cases quality was also hard to find. Hydrangeas were the chief item in popularity with the buyers and also in heaviest supply. There has been some increase in the deliveries of primroses and fuchsias and a few potted wax begonias and daffodils were available. The stock of rhododendrons was more than ample for the demand.

Little change is to be reported on roses, except that heavier deliveries were seen of Irish Elegance from California growers. The local growers are Chariton, Ia.—Mrs. Grace West has sold nursery stock, greenhouse plants and cut flowers here for more than fifteen years.

Liberty, Ind.—The City Garden Greenhouse, formerly operated by Osa Coryell and Mr. Tharp, will be opened soon by Mr. Kenworthy and his sons.

Salem, Ill.—N. Merz grows cut flowers here during the summer months and plans to start next winter to grow flowers and small vegetables during the winter months.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The florists and landscape gardeners of Colorado Springs have recently organized and the name of the new organization will be the Colorado Springs Florists' and Gardeners' Association.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ALEXANDER P. DEWER, manager of the store of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, will leave soon with his wife on a trip to England.

M. C. MAIN, manager of the Seabright Bulb Co., Santa Cruz, Cal., recently returned from an extended trip to Honolulu and the surrounding islands.

THE retail seedsmen in Chicago complained that the counter business slowed up a bit last week. They blamed the cold weather, that seemed to make the people wary about planting.

THE business of D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis, Mo., will be continued by Robert W. Pommer, partner of David I. Bushnell, whose death was reported in last week's issue of The Review.

LAST week burglars secured diamonds worth $1,500 from the home of Wilmot H. Lilly, treasurer of the Charles H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash. Police search has as yet failed to recover the jewels.

CHARLES DICKINSON, whose interest in aviation succeeded that in seeds, made the trip from New York to Chicago by air last week, when the first aeroplane in the new commercial air service made its maiden voyage.

AT the meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association at Omaha, April 30, the following were elected officers: President, Fred Mangelsdorf, Atchison, Kan.; vice-president, Carl Chesmore, St. Joseph, Mo.; secretary, M. Wilhelmi, Lawrence, Kan.; treasurer, Henry Windheim, Omaha, Neb.

P. L. VAN BAARDA, for twenty years with Joseph Breck & Sons, Boston, most of the time as traveling representative, and one of the most esteemed men on the road, has been appointed general sales manager in succession to Henry Brackett, who has retired. Harold E. Leary, for fourteen years with R. & J. Farquhar & Co., succeeds Mr. Van Baarda as traveling salesman.

As a result of the cables, reported in The Review for April 28, announcing the prices for the 1921 crop of Paper Whites and other bulbs at Ollioules, dealers here have been exchanging views with the purpose of developing something in the nature of the concerted action of the growers. It seems probable that, unless the Hollanders who deal in French bulbs take hold of the crop, there will be little business done with Paper Whites and Soleil d'Or until the prices come down. The Hollanders, having taken some orders at open prices, may buy to fill these orders regardless of their ideas of actual values.

"DUTCH bulbs are more reasonable in price than the French bulbs," said R. B. Howe, president of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. "And speaking of the French bulbs, there is an important item to be considered. If ordered now at the present prices and at the present rate of exchange, the bulbs, by the time they are paid for, if the rate of exchange continues going up in the meantime, will be even more costly than they seem now. For instance, suppose that some bulbs are ordered at 150 francs while the exchange rates are about fourteen francs for a dollar. Then if the exchange rate goes up to, say seven francs for a dollar, the number of dollars spent for the bulbs at the time of paying will be just twice as much as it would have been at the time of ordering.''

ONE of the seed trade visitors in Chicago last week was W. A. Philippo, the Holland manager of M. Van Waveren & Sons, Ltd., of Hillegom, Holland.

PRICE OF FRENCH BULBS.

The French growers appear to hold the idea that if they cannot get the Germans to pay the cost of the war, the next best thing will be to make America pay it, for bulbs. American buyers were amazed at the recent development of French conceptions of the value of the 1921 crop of Paper Whites and Romans, but that the idea there is no limit to what our people will pay for bulbs is not exclusive with the growers at Ollioules, is shown by the circumstance that now comes a Paris concern with quotations on Lilium candidum more than fifty per cent above some shippers' quotations a year ago. It is, of course, explained that the crop is short and that it will be impossible to fill orders in the usual volume.

For the information of the trade, the firm's 1920 and 1921 advance quotations are here printed in parallel columns. The prices are f. o. b. Paris and do not include packing, carriage, freight, insurance or any costs accruing at this end, for July and August shipment:

Circumference in centimeters	1920 Per 1000	1921 Per 1000
18 to 19	$22.00	$34.00
20 to 21	26.00	38.00
22 to 23	32.00	45.00
24 to 25	37.00	53.00
26 to 27	46.00	60.00
28 to 29	50.00	68.00
30 to 31	54.00	75.00
30 and over, extra selected	58.00	90.00

It seems quite possible that a small crop will meet the needs of the American trade so long as these prices prevail.

FRANCS AND BULBS.

Unless the Poles precipitate a new martial struggle by their Silesian insurgency, the settlement of the reparations question and of other of France's problems is likely to continue the rapid rise in value of the exchange of that country. In that event American buyers who contract at present prices, in francs, for French bulbs are likely to pay, in dollars, considerably more than they figure the cost in our money to be at the present time. The rise in the exchange rate of French francs has been accelerated as the reparations question neared settlement, and since

D. I. BUSHNELL'S WILL.

Large Bequests to Charities.

The will of David Ives Bushnell, head of the firm of D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis, whose obituary appeared in The Review last week, sets aside $50,000 for charities, but excludes the Y. M. C. A. and the St. Louis Provident Association from benefiting by it. He suggests that old people's homes, foundling and orphan asylums and Salvation Army institutions are worthy.

The property disposed of approximates $500,000. Mr. Bushnell died of bronchial pneumonia at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium April 30. He was 75 years old.

To his son, David Ives Bushnell, of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, he leaves $100,000 and the first shirt, that he, the father, ever wore, together with his coin, stamp and photograph collection; to his brother, S. H. Bushnell, 87 years old, of Sheffield, Mass., $100,000, and to Arthur Ives Hoyt, Sheffield, Mass., also $100,000.

Five thousand dollars each are bequeathed to the Congregational, Methodist Episcopal and Catholic churches, and the Friendly Union Library, all of Sheffield.

Robert W. Pommer, Mr. Bushnell's business partner, who is continuing the firm, Henry A. Baker and Fred B. Chamberlain are named executors.

Western Seedsmen's Resolution.

At the annual meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association, held at Omaha, April 30, the following resolution, presented by a committee composed of C. C. Massie, J. C. Robinson and Henry Field, was passed in memory of David I. Bushnell:

The seed trade suffered a distinct loss in the passing away of our friend, David I. Bushnell, of St. Louis, Mo., April 30.

He was a very active member of many associations and always had a keen interest in the advancement of the trade. Few men have had so wide an acquaintance among the seedsmen. Those of us who had opportunity to enjoy close personal contact with him appreciate most what a rare type of splendid manhood he was and his memory will be cherished forever in our hearts.

His life was a real benediction to all who knew him.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Southland Nurseries, Miami, Fla., were recently incorporated, capitalized at $150,000.

S. J. VERHALEN, of Scottsville, Tex., stopped in Chicago May 10, leaving that night for Iowa.

IN attendance at the recent Shriners' conclave at Seattle was J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, Ore.

THE annual convention of the A. A. N. will be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, June 22 to 24.

THE Clarksburg Nursery Co., with a c pitalization of $100,000, has been incorporated at Sacramento, Cal.

MASSACHUSETTS nurserymen express appreciation of the long spell of cool, dark and damp weather they have had. It has enabled them to make longer shipments than at one time seemed possible. All have had a remarkably busy season. Roses, in particular, are well cleaned out.

JOHN M. HARDYZER and wife are spending a couple of weeks in and around Boston. Mr. Hardyzer is with C. R. Burr & Co., Manchester, Conn. He says the nursery business has been remarkably good, that Manetti for rose stocks is scarce and that both privets and Berberis Thunbergii are sold out so clean that higher prices on each are probable.

AT SCOTTSVILLE, TEX.

The opportunity for the man who can grow at low cost nursery stock which is in wide demand was seen by George F. Verhalen when he went to Texas a dozen or so years ago with his father, S. J. Verhalen, then manager of the Standard Orchard Co., which contemplated establishing large peach orchards near the thriving county seat of Marshall. So the property of the projected peach orchards now is growing nursery stock in large quantities. What was the idea of a young man, interested in flowers from the time he carried asters from his home in Elmhurst to the wholesale market in Chicago, has become an enterprise that demands all the efforts of George F., who handles the office work; his brother, Raymond, who superintends the field work, and his father, S. J., whose long experience in the commission produce business enables him to estimate the market and see the opportunities in such a business as the nurserymen's. George F. Verhalen, in whose name the business is conducted, and his father, are both known to the nursery trade through their attendance each year at the convention of the A. A. N. and their connections with the large wholesale houses which handle their output.

Growing for wholesale has been the plan to which this firm has held from the first. Wise in seeing their big opportunity, they have not yielded to temptation to depart from it. Now is grown at Scottsville each year close to half a million roses, which are absorbed annually with such ease that it seems the number might be largely increased. There are in addition large plantings of spiræa, Amoor river privet, cannas and some other items that do especially well in the soil and climatic conditions obtaining at Scottsville. These are shipped in the fall in carload lots only, most of them going to northern wholesale nurserymen.

In this country, thinks Mr. Verhalen, are many varieties of growing conditions. There are some localities best suited to producing stock of certain kinds and for certain uses. Elsewhere are places suited for other kinds for other uses. In this vast country will be found, in time, the localities most suitable for each item, where it can be produced best and most economically. He seems to have found at Scottsville conditions well fitted for what is grown there, judging from the ready market for what is produced and the constant increase in acreage under cultivation.

MISUSE OF CERTIFICATES.

A recent statement of the federal horticultural board warns shippers and receivers about quarantine No. 26. This quarantine covers the shipment of currant and gooseberry plants with pine blister.

The board says that several nurserymen in the quarantined area have made arrangements to get orders of the plants from nurserymen west of the quarantine line. This practice in itself causes no trouble, but there is decided objection to the misuse of the state certificates in connection with such shipments. A number of instances have come to the attention of the board in which the tags of the firm situated in the quarantined area, bearing the inspection certificate of the state, have been attached to the shipment.

The use of these tags under these circumstances, says the board, is not only fraudulent, but is likely to cause much trouble both for the shipper and the receiver of the stock. There is not only the risk of prosecution as violators of the quarantine, but there is also the expense of having the stock seized and destroyed.

The board, therefore, warns nurserymen who have engaged in this practice that the certification of such goods must be made by the officials of the state from which the shipment is actually made.

THE WHY OF INSECT CONTROL.

Pests' Habits Guide to Spraying.

A better knowledge of the life and habits of the more common insect pests and of the nature of insecticides will add much to the efficiency of control measures in nurseries and orchards. The general character of sprays to be used depends on the character of the mouth parts of the insects.

Broadly speaking, all insects secure their food in one of two ways: (1) By actually biting out and swallowing portions of the food material; (2) by sucking out the juices. The first type includes caterpillars, or the larvæ of moths and butterflies, adult beetles and their grubs, grasshoppers, crickets, sawflies and their larvæ, bees, etc.

All biting insects are subject to destruction by arsenicals or other stomach poisons. Some biting insects, however, such as borers and certain root-infesting forms, do not feed in situations where poisons may be applied, and for these a different treatment is necessary.

Contact Sprays for Sucking Insects.

Among sucking insects may be listed plant lice, scale insects, leaf hoppers, the pear psylla and the true bugs. For their control the so-called contact sprays are used, sprays that corrode the body or permeate the breathing spores of the pests or otherwise effect their destruction.

Biting and sucking insects often occur in a way to permit their destruction by poisoning the air which they breathe, as with hydrocyanic acid gas or carbon disulphide, but in many cases the expense and danger make this method impracticable.

Summer spraying is directed against bud, leaf and fruit-eating insects, and for these arsenicals chiefly are used. Dilute contact insecticides are also employed in the control of certain insects, such as aphis, red bugs, leaf hoppers, etc.

The arsenicals in most common use are arsenate of lead, Paris green and arsenate of lime, used as strong as the foliage will stand.

Chief Insecticides.

The important insecticides may be grouped principally into these three series:

Stomach poisons for biting insects: Arsenate of lead, Paris green, arsenate of lime, arsenate of soda, Scheele's green, London purple, white arsenic, hellebore, etc.

Contact sprays for sucking insects: Lime-sulphur solution, self-boiled lime-sulphur mixtures, fish oil soap wash,

The President

The Grandest Red Canna in Existence

The President Grandest Red Canna in existence

Height, 4 feet. In color, a rich, glowing scarlet, and the immense, firm, rounded flowers, 7 inches across when open, are produced on strong, erect stalks well above the large, rich green foliage. "The President" is superior to any other red variety in the quantity and also quality of bloom, and the firm flowers resist drought and heat to a remarkable degree. A large bed of this variety was planted on the grounds of the Washington Monument, Washington, D. C. Another "President" Canna bed was on the Garden Pier at Atlantic City, while several more were to be seen in the largest public parks in this country, where these beautiful flowers received the unqualified admiration of every Canna lover. Naturally, a tremendous demand has been created. Strong roots ready now. Plants from 3-inch pots, $2.00 per 10; $15.00 per 100; $125.00 per 1000.

Extract from Florists' Review, September 28, 1919:

"I have been much impressed with some of the new Cannas that I have tried this summer, and cannot refrain from mentioning two. These are The President and Snow Queen. President is by all odds the best red Canna today, larger and better than Firebird and a free bloomer; the foliage is strong and does not burn, as does that of Firebird. Those who have tried Firebird and lamented that it would not do on account of diseased foliage will rejoice to know that at last we have a Canna that is 'right.'"—Floyd Bralliar.

"The most sensational introduction of recent years."—From another firm's catalogue.

Well established plants from 3-inch pots, ready now.

Prices, f.o.b. West Grove. This stock is well and carefully grown, and will, we feel sure, give excellent satisfaction.

kerosene emulsion, crude petroleum emulsion, distillate emulsion, nicotine solution, pyrethrum, caustic soda, caustic potash, carbolic acid emulsion, sulphur spray, resin, resin wash.

For fumigating, the specialists recommend hydrocyanic acid gas, carbon disulphide or sulphur dioxide. These are effective against all classes of insects when it is desirable to use them.

Arsenate of Lead Widely Used.

Arsenate of lead is the best known and most extensively used stomach poison for insects. It has a wider range of usefulness than has any other internal poison now available. It is safe for use on the foliage of most plants, has good adhesive qualities and, owing to its fineness, remains in suspension well in water. Moreover, it can be safely combined with certain contact sprays, as nicotine, kerosene emulsion, soaps, etc., and with a number of fungicides, such as lime-sulphur mixture and Bordeaux mixture. It should not be combined with sodium or potassium sulphides.

Commercial arsenate of lead may be obtained as paste or powder. Powder is coming into extended use by reason of the convenience with which it may be handled and stored, and the saving in freight by the absence of water. Paste arsenate of lead, however, may be stored from year to year if properly covered with water to prevent drying, and protected from freezing temperatures.

This method for home-made preparation of arsenate of lead will give a good product without any material waste of chemicals, and will require a minimum amount of time. For every pound of lead arsenate it is desired to make, use either of these:

	Ounces
Sodium arsenate (65 per cent)	8
Lead acetate (sugar of lead)	22

Or this formula:

	Ounces
Sodium arsenate (65 per cent)	8
Lead nitrate	18

Information touching methods of spraying and directions for using the various preparations are contained in farmers' bulletin 908, which may be obtained free upon application to the division of publications, United States Department of Agriculture.

Clarke, of Clarke Bros. Mrs. Clarke also made the trip, while Guiseppe Ghilarducci, of the California Florists, Tacoma, was in Seattle for the same event.

Trade visitors last week included Robert Newcomb, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., and W. R. Nichols, of the Garrett Co., Brooklyn.

The Hollywood Gardens showed the first of the season's gladioli for this market, and the distinct novelty of the offering and fine quality of the flowers proved a real feature. An improved cut of roses and some of the best snapdragons yet shown here are included in the late deliveries from the greenhouses.

The Orpheum Floral Co. has about completed repainting the shop, both inside and out. The general sales have been holding up well and clean up regularly the supplies of violets coming from local growers.

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ¾ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

through for this season and that a material increase in plantings for the 1922 market is certain. This grower has been showing a number of unusual varieties of tulips this year, and is receiving favorable comment on the dark red Darwins being cut at this time.

The City Flower Shop has been showing gypsophila and Irish Elegance roses from California with splendid results and continues to offer the largest stock of baby roses. A generally satisfactory current business is reported and this shop reports that the addition of telephone book advertising is the means of developing some business.

While late in starting this year, due to backward weather conditions, Hans M. Hansen reports a fine trade in bedding stock and decorative shrubs. The large number of new residences in the section about his greenhouse and shop makes for greater business of this sort.

Rosaia Bros. have been featuring, with good effect, miniature Japanese gardens in shallow bowls and this showing drew general comment. A more plentiful supply of roses is noted at the greenhouses and next month should see heavy cutting of Ulrich Brunners. Tulips of the Darwin variety are at almost the height of their cut at present and there were thousands of these flowers available for Mothers' day. The cut of lilac is increasing and there is more demand for this item to be used in smaller decorations.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop continues to feature the late tulips in its window displays and has found the buying public receptive. This shop issued a handsome booklet for inclusion in local Mothers' day deliveries, containing "Mother, a Prayer."

The Burdett Co. effectively handled the Yacht Club decorations for a Pioneers' Society meeting, using only native stock. Greens, dogwood and red tulips formed the chief motif. This same company is starting on a late planting job at the Bremerton navy yard, where some 4,000 plants are to be used on a bank. A special watering system is being installed, so as to counteract the effects of late planting.

Kenney's Home of Flowers already reports definite returns from early reminders to the flower buying public that flowers can be handled by wire. A better cut of roses has been coming in lately and late tulips clean up fast. Funeral work has been brisk of late.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop developed a novel window for Mothers' day. The two back sides of the window were set to represent a screen door into a home and the side wall of a porch with a French window opening on it. Before this door was set a model symbolizing a mother receiving a box of Woodlawn flowers from a small messenger attired in Western Union uniform. At night, lights, set behind, lit up the "interior" and showed vases and baskets of flowers standing inside the door and French window. Cards set in the foreground of the window advised the purchase of bright-colored flowers for living mothers, and white flowers for mothers passed on.

Eugene Lamble, of McCoy's, has purchased a new 5-passenger touring car and will probably make a number of trips this summer. Some nice examples of Cattleya Schroederi and French hydrangeas are being received from the greenhouses of this firm.

Carl Melby, of Melby's Flower Shop, reports a growing sale of flowers to transient customers in this new shop, along with more general work. H. M.

Linton, Ind.—Mrs. Ella King plans to enter the florists' business in this town.

Montgomery's Priscilla

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

The Market.

The local wholesale market was in such a condition, especially the early part of last week, that neither the wholesaler nor the retailer knew where he stood. Stock suddenly became scarce and advance orders were taken only with the proviso as to amount and price. From all appearance of the market in general, it looked as though the local growers were all off crop with anything seasonable at the same time. There has been plenty of dark, rainy weather the last ten days and the scarcity of stock shot up the prices, especially on carnations. These, of course, were in greatest demand for Mothers' day and everybody wanted carnations. The price of $15 per hundred for fancy stock and $20 per hundred for Laddie caused the retailers to switch and push plants and other cut flowers. The public must be educated to the fact that any kind of flower or plant is used for Mothers' day, for the great majority of the buyers are under the impression that only carnations are used for the day.

Roses, too, have shortened up, although Friday and Saturday, May 6 and 7, there seemed to be plenty, but the great demand placed them on advance orders and by Saturday afternoon the market was cleaned up of anything good.

Sweet peas were many, but were advanced in price. Snapdragons had a big week and a great quantity of extra fine stock came in all week. Peonies, too, had a heavy call, but the stock received was not any too good and some of the blooms looked as though they had suffered from the recent frosts.

Valley, yellow daisies, pansies, mignonette, tulips, irises, lilies, calendulas and some fine delphiniums cleaned up in good shape.

The wholesalers report a heavy demand from out of town and say that shipping orders were heavy all week. Flat ferns are becoming scarce. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri met a heavy demand and so did all other greens.

publicity committee. Many good points were brought out during the discussion, in which all took part and which ended in the endorsement of both movements. Next came the election of officers for the ensuing year. This resulted in the election of Martin Ude as president; George Hartmann, vice-president; Joseph Deutschmann, treasurer, and August Hartmann, secretary. These were reëlected to the places which they had so ably filled for the last five years. For a trustee for a 3-year term they elected Philip Goebel, Jr. The meeting was then adjourned. The installation will take place June 1.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held a well attended and interesting meeting at the municipal greenhouses, at Forest park. The interesting feature of the meeting was the subject, "Formal Landscape Gardening," presented by L. P. Jensen and featured with lantern slides, which showed many fine estates of both olden time and present day landscape architecture. Secretary Schaff reported that outdoor meetings will start with the next meeting.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club were entertained at the home of the president, W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, May 5. During the evening they arranged an interesting program for this week's club meeting, which will be held at publicity headquarters, 1316 Pine street.

The automobile delivery of Haun & Weis, East St. Louis, Ill., was stolen April 30 and was found a few days later, almost burned up, at the outskirts of the city. It was fully insured.

The executive committee of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association will meet Tuesday, May 17, at Edwardsville, Ill. This committee is composed of A. C. Brown, of Springfield, Ill.; J. W. Ross, of Centralia, Ill.; Ludwig Stapp, of Rock Island, Ill.; C. E. De Wever, of Olivette, Mo.; J. A. Cole, of Peoria, Ill.; W. J. Hembreiker, of Springfield, Ill.; Walter A. Amling, of Pana, Ill.; L. Jules Bourdet, of St. Louis; J. J. Beneke, of St. Louis, and W. A. Rowe and J. Deutschmann, of Kirkwood, Mo. They are all expected to be present at the meeting. It will open at 1 o'clock at the Woodland Garden at the invitation of Henry J. Blixen, who is also one of the committee. The purchasing, the pot plant growers', the retail growers', and the auditing committees will all have interesting reports to make.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

CHOOSING THE PIPES.

We have a greenhouse, 26x100 feet, with 6-foot sides, in which there are twenty-eight inches of glass. It is protected on the north end by the service building, while the south gable is of glass. We have 3-inch boiler flues and will have solid beds. There will be a line of purlin supports down the center. The sashbars on each side will be fifteen feet long. It will be thirteen or fourteen feet from the ground to the ridge.

How large a boiler will be needed to heat this house to a temperature of 50 degrees, with zero weather outside?

H. W. A.—N. Y.

To heat a greenhouse of the size described to 50 degrees when it is zero weather outside, it would be well to use a boiler with a grate about twenty-seven inches in diameter, if soft coal is to be burned. While it would be preferable to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns, good results may be secured by using 3-inch boiler tubes for both flows and returns. Use three flow pipes, locating one on each wall plate and the other on the posts, four feet below the ridge. For the returns, use nine pipes. No definite suggestions can be made without knowing how the beds are arranged. Two or three of the returns may be upon each side wall, and the others in the walks or on the sides of the beds, according to the way the walks and beds are arranged.

FOR RANGE AND LEAN-TO.

We have water power enough to run a large generator. Can you advise as to a firm that manufactures that sort of outfit? Can a common boiler be changed so as to heat and make steam by electricity? Send me the name of an engineer who can figure the size and power of generators.

What is the best arrangement of steam pipes for a range of greenhouses, 176 feet long, having two sections, each thirty-six feet wide, and a lean-to on the north side twenty-seven feet wide. The south wall has seven feet of glass. The boiler room is in the northeast corner, as part of the lean-to. What distance from the ground should the pipes be put, and how many should be used? At this time I have 1¼-inch pipes as distributors and 2-inch pipes as feeds.

D. R. G.—Neb.

Considering the cost of installing a generator and electrical heating devices, it is doubtful if it will be feasible to make use of the water power for either of the methods of heating the greenhouses suggested above.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

CAST IRON BOILERS—FOOL ECONOMY (false ratings, fuel waste, danger of breakdowns by cracking of sections, dealers' commissions on sales)—OR KROESCHELL BOILERS—FUEL ECONOMY (honest and "true blue" boiler ratings, safety, quick heat, factory-to-user prices).

Kroeschell Replaces 4 Cast Iron Boilers

Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now." (Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.

July 21, 1913, Menominee, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."

(Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.

July 21, 1913, Marysville, O.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron Boilers

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows:

"The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler proposition. We have a (—— ——) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place." (Signed) C. PETERSON & SON.

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

From the description of the range above, there are two houses, each 36x 176 feet, with seven feet of glass in the south wall of the south house, and with a lean-to on the north side of the north house twenty-seven feet wide.

To heat these houses with low-pressure steam, it would be advisable to run three 2-inch mains in each of the 36-foot houses, placing one on each side wall plate and the other at about the same level under the ridge or on one of the rows of purlin posts, with nine 1¼-inch returns in the north house and eleven returns in the south house, which has the glass in its south wall. There should be three return pipes on each wall except on the south wall of the south house, where four returns should be used. The wall coils should be three or four feet above the beds and the other returns should be carried singly on the purlin posts, about six to seven feet from the beds.

In the lean-to house use two 2-inch flow pipes on the wall plate and at the same height on the back wall, with eight 1¼-inch return pipes, placing two on each wall and the others on the purlin posts.

NEWARK, N. J.

Most of the florists in Newark and its vicinity had a good Mothers' day trade. The high prices charged for carnations on this occasion for the last two years has injured the trade. Great quantities of flowers are being sold on Mothers' day, but more could be sold if the prices were more reasonable. Not only that, but the high carnation prices have resulted in a reaction on the part of many and they are observing the day in some other way than by wearing this flower. Unless more moderate charges are made, the florists, in this vicinity at least, may soon find this source of trade seriously impaired.

Some Newark florists occasionally receive orders for flowers to be delivered to some outgoing ships at New York, Jersey City and Hoboken, but the large trade in bon-voyage remembrances which they had before the war has not come back. R. B. M.

Baraboo, Wis.—W. A. Toole, of Wm. Toole & Son, reports the best season ever experienced in hardy plants.

No Air Wanted!

Air may be all right in its place, but your hot water main is NOT that place. Air is like an iceberg. It chills water rapidly.

Florists know that even heat is essential to growing plants. They attempt to maintain the proper temperature at all times and ALL THROUGH THEIR RANGE.

Fisher Air Trap

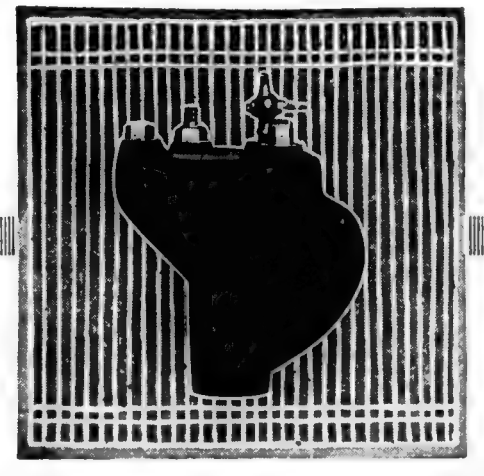
is positive assurance of even heat throughout your greenhouses.

Its quick, positive elimination of air has made it the faithful friend of thousands of florists. Placed at the highest point on a hot water system, it will keep the mains free of air at all times. It prevents all hammering and chattering, and the consequent danger to pipe.

The Fisher Air Trap is simple in construction—requires no adjustments. It is extremely sensitive to air—yet will not permit the escape of hot water.



Valve and nozzle can be removed at any time without disturbing pipe connections.

Bulletin No. 1001 tells you all about this sturdy, heat-saving air trap. Write for your copy today.

DEVIL'S PUTTY

Plastic, yet when properly baked and vitrified PLIBRICO—Devil's Putty—shaped into walls, baffles or arches makes one-piece, heat-resisting fire brick as strong as rock and impervious to heat.

Destruction of boiler settings always starts in the joints. Mortar falls out and clinkers find a splendid place to cling. They fuse to the brick ends and when broken off take part of the brick with them. Patchwork repairs are necessary and frequent until finally a new setting is demanded.

PLIBRICO JOINTLESS FURNACE LINING

settings eliminate all this trouble. No mortar to fall out—no crevices to disintegrate. PLIBRICO withstands temperature up to 3100° F. Its smooth, jointless surface leaves no place for clinkers to lodge.

If your furnace does not give service it was not lined with PLIBRICO.

PLIBRICO comes neatly packed in large steel containers as shown below. We make prompt deliveries from stock carried in all principal cities. Building the setting is a quick and simple task.

Our interesting booklet, "D 3," on Furnace Building tells just how to do it. Write for a copy today.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

Waldbridge, which occurred May 1, in his seventy-fifth year, recalled to the writer the fact that he was a great lover of flowers and brought back the memory of the flowery address of welcome to the members of the S. A. F. at the time of its annual convention here in 1893. He was mayor at the time and his address was recorded in the trade press as the most fitting address of welcome that the society had ever had. William R. Smith was the president of the society at the time and it was the ninth annual convention.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club accepted the invitation from the board of trustees and director to be present at the dedication of the new entrance of the Missouri Botanical Garden, Tuesday, May 10, at 1 o'clock. All prominent citizens were there and luncheon was served in the floral display house.

The state vice-president of the S. A. F., August H. Hummert, and L. Jules Bourdet and W. J. Pilcher compose a committee to start a campaign to sign up all the members of the St. Louis Florists' Club who are not members of the S. A. F. The club's membership is 210 and 115 of these are S. A. F. members. That leaves ninety-five to sign up in order to make the local club 100 per cent S. A. F. A meeting of this committee will be held this week.

Grimm & Gorly had a most remarkable display of plants and cut flowers all last week. The display was for Mothers' day, which this store expected to be the largest it ever experienced, judging from the advance orders and the telegraph orders for local delivery.

John Steidle, Olivette, Mo., furnished the trade with many fine begonias. Several thousand were disposed of for Mothers' day.

vance orders for weddings this month. Miss Gussie Malloy, the artist at this store, showed splendid work on the corsages and baskets for the many Mothers' day orders.

The fine weather for last week gave the plantsmen all the work that they could handle. This branch of the business was held up all during the month of April by the cold and rainy weather.

Oscar Ruff, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., and Edward Guntly, of Windler's Flowers, remarked early last week, "Look out for Mothers' day this year. It's going to give us all the business we can handle."

Henry and William Meier, Kirkwood, last week consigned to this market exceedingly fine snapdragon, a splendid pink variety. The 100 dozen sent in each day cleared rapidly.

Jacob Kropp, Creve Coeur, Mo., left May 5 for Colorado. He took with him his son, Jacob, Jr., who has been in ill health for the last three months. Mr. Kropp will return this week, but the young man, who is 25 years old, will remain in Colorado for some months in order to regain his health.

The trade extended its sympathy to Fred J. Foster in the loss of his mother, who died May 2 at the age of 79. Many expressed their sympathy by sending floral emblems.

Mrs. Bertha Buechel, mother of Edward, Pauline and Emma, of the Riessen Floral Co., died May 5, at her home, 919 Morrison avenue, after a long illness. The members of the family have the sympathy of the trade. The funeral took place Sunday, May 8, and many beautiful floral emblems were sent by her many friends.

June 28, 1886, the St. Louis Florists' Club was organized and at the June meeting of the club its thirty-fifth anniversary will be celebrated. Only one of the organizers is still a member of the club, Luther Armstrong, the club's first secretary.

The "Say It with Flowers" league really wound up its season May 6, when the six high-average men rolled in the City League tournament in both the doubles and singles and again came to the front when George Kuehner and A. Y. Ellison topped all double entries with the fine score of 1206, an average of 402 each game. Herman and Ruff totaled 1083 and Beneke and Plotz had 1080. In the singles, Ellison shot 554; Herman, 546; Kuehner, 543; Beneke, 539, and Plotz, 538. Should the double mark stand up against the scores for the rest of the tournament, each of the

Roses or Onions

You can grow onions almost anywhere—in all kinds of temperature—from near freezing to scorching summer heat. But roses are different. You can't get the big "prize" blooms unless you grow them in a house in which you can maintain an even high temperature. Houses that are "drafty" and leak heat—that are unevenly ventilated—do not grow good roses. A "cheap" house often delivers a "cheap" product.

FOLEY BETTER BUILT GREENHOUSES

Grow the finest roses because they are designed, fabricated and built right. And you know that any house which will grow roses or orchids will grow anything else.

A Foley Greenhouse—either an iron frame or pipe frame house, heated with a Foley Heating System—pays the biggest dividends in better returns.

ASTERS

100,000 TRANSPLANTED ASTERS.
In order to be reasonable and fair, I will reduce price, which belongs to me, but never quality, which belongs to you.
"QUALITY" seeds were germinated and later each one transplanted from the strongest in 7½ cu. ins. of sterilized soil as a sure preventive against disease that works havoc in the plant's future life.
They are as good as from 2-in. pots, stocky, clean and healthy and are ready for either benching or field planting.
Queen of the Market, white, pink and lavender.
Peerless, large flowers on long stems, appearing about the middle of August, pink and white only.
Daybreak, excellent for cutting, flowers large and double, shell-pink color.
Purity, similar to Daybreak, pure white color.
Semple's Giant Branching, extensively used for outdoor planting as well as under glass, white, pink and lavender.

MOONVINES

THE WONDERFUL GIANT MOONFLOWER,

Ipomoea Maxima, a giant in growth and flower and wonderfully fragrant. This grand new Moonflower is a decided improvement over the old well-known variety Ipomoea Grandiflora. The flowers are more than twice the size of the old variety, oftentimes measuring from six to seven and one-half inches across, and are produced in such wonderful profusion that they completely cover the vine with a veil of glistening white. Fine plants.

NEW MOONFLOWER.

Heavenly Blue, this makes a splendid companion plant to the White Moonflower. It is equally rapid in growth, and a much freer blooming variety than the white one. The blooms come in clusters of five to twelve, and at times almost hide the vines. The flowers are the most heavenly blue, with reddish-purple rays, and six inches across. Nothing is more beautiful.

We have a splendid lot of these vines which we will close out at the price of $4.00 per 100, $37.50 per 1000.

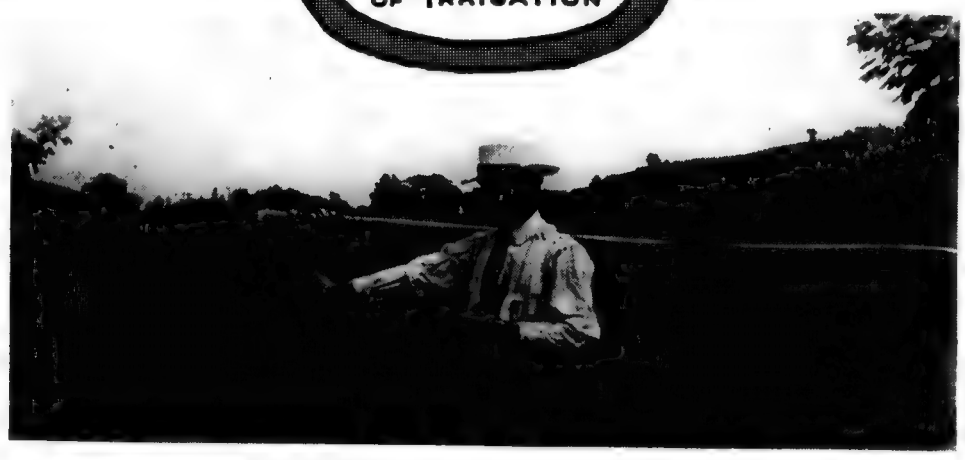
WHITE FLY ON SALVIAS.

I am sending you a few salvia plants. They have been attacked by an insect. Can you tell me what it is and what I can do to get rid of it? F. F. S.—O.

The trouble is caused by white fly. One of the best remedies for fighting these insects with which I have had any experience is the white fly remedy made by the Tobacco Products Co., Kansas City, Mo. M. P.



HOW TO GROW SHAMROCKS.

Will you advise us as to how we can grow shamrocks? W. C. H.—Pa.

Sow seeds in shallow flats of light sandy loam, from the middle of October until the beginning of November, in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. Keep the flats well up to the glass and avoid overwatering as well as cold drafts, which may start mildew. The seedlings should be potted off into small pots or small shallow pans sometime in January, and a temperature of 45 to 48 degrees at night is ample for them. A mixture of loam, fine sand and a little old, well decayed manure will grow good shamrocks.

Perhaps you know what the true shamrock is. Small white clover, Trifolium repens, is sold for it and often at a prodigious price. Sometimes wood sorrel, Oxalis Acetosella, is grown and there are several other substitutes, usually clovers, but white clover seems to fill the bill as a rule. C. W.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION

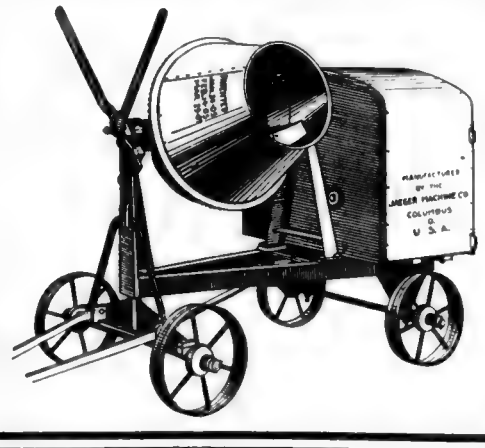
How Stackhouse and Iden Stack Their Houses With 100% Carnations

Our friend all dressed up in his Sunday suspenders, is no less than Mr. Stackhouse himself.
He has his hand right on the secret of their 100% field grown carnations.

Water a plenty when set out. No set backs.

Water a plenty all the season through.
No hold ups.

Water a plenty when lifting time comes so they can be lifted exactly at the best time.
No delays in benching.



Control of the situation from start to finish.

When lifted, the plants are regular huskies and filled with leads.
Stackhouse says "the day he put money in the Skinner System, it was just like putting money in the bank." It's money at compound interest and then some, and then some more.

Give us the length and width of the piece of ground you want to irrigate, and we will send you some interesting facts.

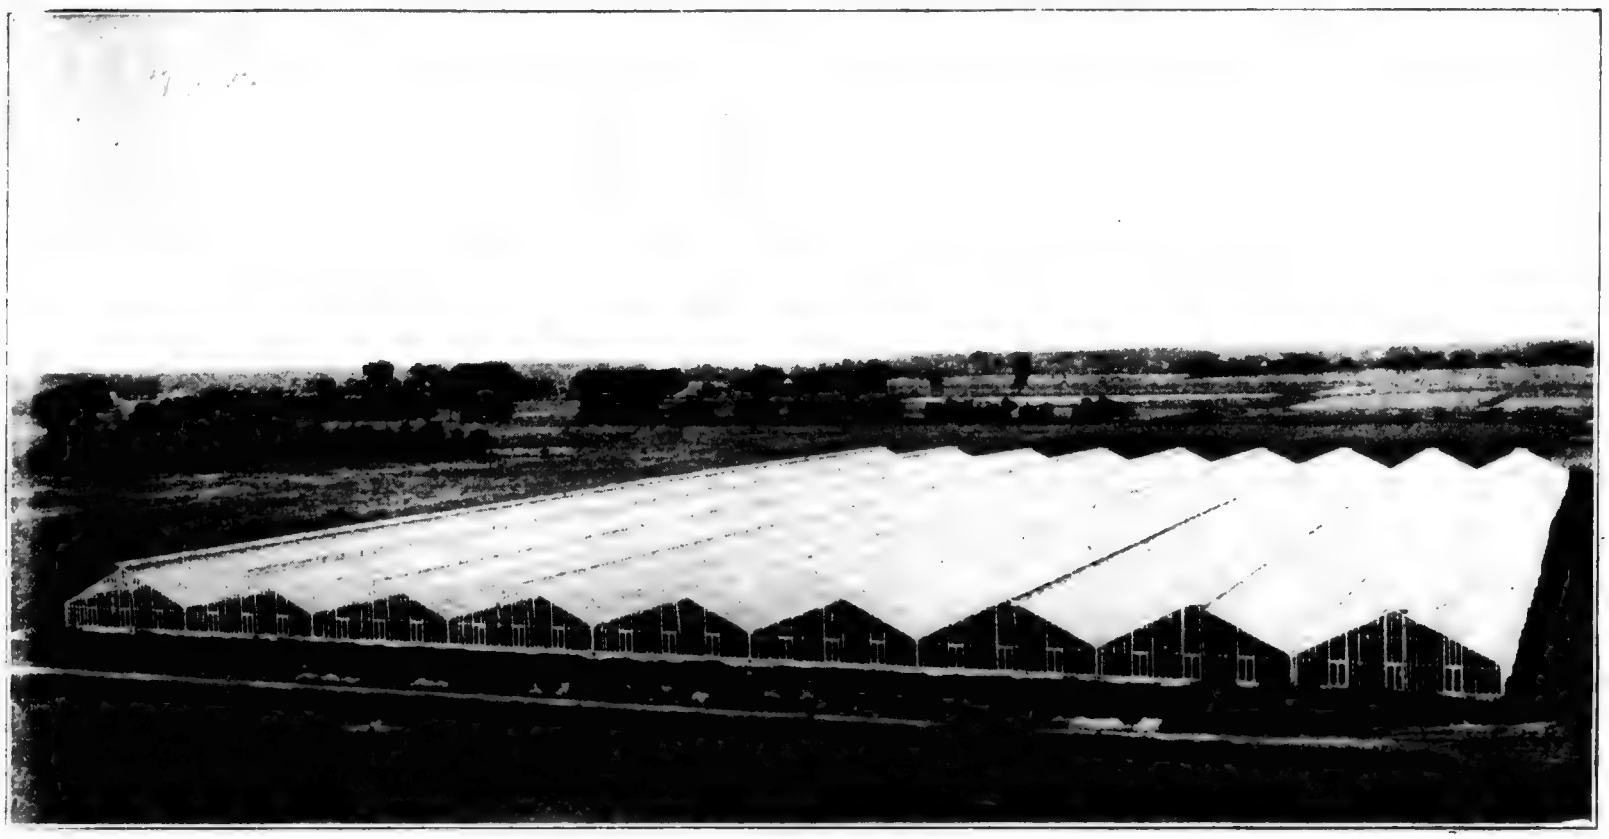
The Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator

Will Pay For Itself on Your Place In One Month's Time

By doing the work of four men with hand cultivators and doing it better, easier and faster. In the saving of hired help and in the return netted from bigger and healthier plants it often pays for itself in one month's time.

The Merry Garden does the work better because it works well in any soil; easier because there is no pushing or pulling; and faster because of the continuous forward movement regulated by a hand throttle. It straddles 12-inch rows and works between rows that are planted 24 inches or more apart. It can be easily pulled backward because of its light weight. Besides, it will operate a 30-inch lawnmower, and with the power pulley frame it's always useful for pumping water, running grindstone, saw and washing machine.

Improved 1921 Model. Equipped with a Bosch Magneto, case hardened gears, improved bearings, a trouble-proof lubricating system, improved cooling system and the Atma Air Cleaner. Gears are protected from dust and dirt, thereby giving long life.



Try a Merry Garden for 5 Days

Order a Merry Garden. Try it for five days on your own work. We guarantee your money back if it doesn't do all we claim. The price, with a set of hoes, is $230.00 f. o. b. Cleveland, Ohio. With Lawnmower attachment $305.00 f. o. b. Cleveland, Ohio. Write for interesting literature and what other florists have to say.

Ever try to put a quart of water into a pint bottle?

Well—

It's just as easy as taking a big-greenhouse-range profit out of a one-house greenhouse range.

Both things are impossible.

If you want to carry a quart of water, you've got to get a quart bottle at least. If you want a big-greenhouse-range profit, you've got to build a Big Greenhouse Range.

We show here a section of a comparatively inexpensive steel truss house.

You would be surprised if you knew how little additional the cost of this steel frame house is over the pipe frame construction.

Also you would be surprised if you knew what a splendid and strong greenhouse this construction really makes.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

A JOURNAL for FLORISTS, SEEDSMEN and NURSERYMEN

MEMORIAL DAY NUMBER

Greenhouse Builders

Paul Weiss, Secretary of "The Premier Rose Gardens" and five other big successful enterprises.

He Said It With a Check

Max Schling is always going the other fellow one better. Shortly after most of the florists added "Say It with Flowers" to their bill heads, Max added under it: "Then Say It with a Check."

When folks say things with checks, it talks about as loud as talking can be done.

Paul Weiss, the well known Secretary of Six, said it with a check, then added something that said as much as the check and as much more.

Here's a copy of his letter:

> "We attach our check for $10,000 in final payment of our contract with you, for the erection of four steel frame greenhouses 70 by 400.
> "We are more than pleased with the material, workmanship and general construction of these magnificent houses.
> "Want to thank you for the SPLENDID SERVICES you have rendered."

To which let us add, prices on steel and pipe are down. When ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

Golden Yellow Sweet Peas!

McClenahan's Yellow Flower Dye

Will quickly and uniformly dye white, light-pink and rose-pink peas to golden yellow, apricot and burnt orange respectively

For two years I have supplied dyed peas to the Oklahoma City market, and they are now more popular than ever. The peas take the dye perfectly. It never streaks, but diffuses through the petals so the veins are not distinguishable, and the dyed flowers appear so natural that many people search seed catalogues and make diligent inquiry for seed of these new colors.

White Carnations take the dye to a medium yellow, sometimes leaving part of the central tuft uncolored, but producing a charming effect.

So far as we have experimented, roses seem to take the dye as readily as peas do. Cecile Brunners quickly change to orange.

See What a User Says:

"We have been handling Sweet Peas from you for the last two years, and have always been more than pleased with the yellow, apricot, and the burnt orange, which you have colored with McClenahan's Yellow Flower Dye. The colors have a ways been clear and real, never showing streaks as we have noticed in other dyes. We know the dye to be a great success."—THE FOSTER FLORAL CO., Oklahoma City, Okla., April 30, 1921.

This dye keeps indefinitely in dry form, dissolves instantly, and we use same solution for one to two weeks.

PRICE, sufficient to make one quart, $1.00, prepaid. Six for $5.00.

DAHLIAS

Dahlias are becoming more and more popular and for the small outlay of cost, there are few plants which give such big returns as Dahlias. They furnish an abundance of flowers, late in the Fall, before the Chrysanthemums come into bloom. The varieties which we offer are especially adapted for blooming in the central west—many growers complain that Dahlias are not profitable to grow, as the early frost kills them before they start blooming, but this is mostly the case with old-fashioned varieties and sorts which we are offering have been thoroughly tested and are sure to give entire satisfaction. Stock offered is field-grown divisions. Our stock is limited, so please give a second and third choice in each instance. The best time to plant Dahlias is around June first.

Dahlia Patrick O'Mara

The 1920 Gold Medal Dahlia

Flowers will be in great demand next Autumn at good prices. Tubers will bring a high price the following Spring.

Be Ready to Supply the Demand and make a good profit

Patrick O'Mara began work as a boy for Peter Henderson, and grew up with the house, becoming general manager. In appreciation of his life-long efforts for horticulture, we named for him this, the best Dahlia we have sent out in nearly half a century of growing reliable stock.

Awarded

Gold Medal, American Dahlia Society for best new variety; Silver Medal, Society American Florists; Bronze Medal, Toronto Horticultural Society; American Dahlia Society Certificate, highest score at the trial grounds, at Connecticut Agricultural College, under ordinary field culture, a test that shows what results any grower may expect

Our reputation for square dealing covering half a century is back of the Decorative Dahlia Patrick O'Mara.

The flowers are large, 8 inches or more in diameter and the stems are sufficiently strong to hold the massive blooms erect as long as the flowers last. The petals are regular and of unusually firm substance, the face of the flower showing nothing but petals with no open center, making a perfect bloom.

The color is a rare attractive Autumn shade, an unusually soft and pleasing orange-buff, slightly tinged with Neyron rose, showing most on the petal backs. It is a striking combination.

It is the best shipping Dahlia and the best keeper we ever saw—sure to prove a money-making commercial variety and will be included in choice garden varieties.

Editors of horticultural journals and Dahlia experts pronounce it a real acquisition.

Price, $10.00 per plant, $100.00 per doz. Safe delivery guaranteed. Cash to accompany order Correspondence invited from catalogue houses and retailers.

THE JOHN ELLSWORTH GREENHOUSES

Mr. George Lawler, Grand Island, Nebraska, 5/1/1921.
Gardenville, Tacoma, Wash.
Dear Sir:

Enclosed find $1.00, for which send that amount of Poppy Seed, ''Mrs. Lawler.'' The dollar's seed we bought last spring did not get sown out of doors, was too busy. I sowed it in the greenhouse the 23rd of August and cut our first blossoms the 24th of April this spring. Has made a very nice flower inside and we are using everything that comes in bloom. So far the center flower is the only one that has come out. We think the others will be out for Memorial Day. If they do, it will surely be fine. We are certainly pleased with it.

Very respectfully,
ELLSWORTH GREENHOUSES.

FACING EAST TO FLANDERS' FIELDS

Memorial day now means more than the memory of Gettysburg and Richmond. The ranks of this nation's soldier veterans have been swelled by the millions who participated in the recent great war. The loss of those who died in France is poignant and their memory will be honored with flowers.

VETERANS of the Civil war are mostly gone. The old blue-coats that remain of the Grand Army of the Republic to parade on the day sacred to their memory are fewer and fewer each year. But the day they instituted to honor their earlier-departed comrades has become, not merely an emblem of their sacrifices and their service, but a day of national reverence for those who, in each of its wars, have served our country. May 30 we honor all the nation's soldier dead, whether they served in our grandfathers' time or in ours.

World War Lengthens List.

The Spanish war, not a great military exploit, cost few lives and added little to Memorial day. That occasion still remained, primarily and principally, the day of Civil war veterans. But now another war, exceeding even our country's internal strife in its cost and loss of life, has added to the honor roll of this country's soldier dead a long list. Of them, 70,000 died on the battlefields and in the hospitals of Europe. As many more died of disease in camps at home. The total number of American youths who served in the great war made the vast armies of 1861-65 small by comparison. All these, whether they were among the two million who served overseas, or among the millions that were in the camps in this country, preparing to follow, count friends among those who died in uniform. So, this year, May 30 becomes a day of observance, not just to the few blue-coated old men of the thinning G. A. R. ranks and to the descendants of those who once wore that uniform, but to the great mass of the nation who served or whose sons and brothers served in the recent great war. All that vast number feel the nearness of those 60,000 who lie in the war cemeteries of France and Flanders and of the 10,000 whose leaden coffins have borne them home to American graves. Armistice day is a day of thanksgiving, recalling the world-wide rejoicing on that unforgettable November 11 in 1918. But Memorial day is the day of honor to the dead, when all, whether G. A. R., Sons of Veterans or American Legion, unite in paying homage to departed comrades.

Memorial Day Memories.

So, this May 30, instead of merely recalling the memories of Gettysburg and Richmond, most of us will be facing east toward Flanders' fields, in thought if not in act, in remembrance of those above whom the poppies of those foreign fields bloom each spring.

Those poppies have become symbolic of the lives which were the cost of victory. As the emblem to be worn in memory of them on the day set for that purpose, the poppy has been designated by several organizations of war veterans. In choosing that flower, their minds ran back to such fields of poppies as that depicted on the cover of this issue. Fields such as this were familiar to the soldiers who fought in Flanders and to the many American lads who occupied trenches in Lorraine. In April and May, when the young green wheat stood but a few inches high, the poppies, outdistancing the slower grain in growth, covered the rolling fields with a veritable mantle of red. The poppy there is the rankest of weeds and fills the meadows with color, producing blooms that are commonly four and five inches across.

Spring Landscape.

The vivid sight created by this flower in the spring landscape along the battle front seemed a marvel to the youths accustomed to the small, paler poppy that blooms in American gardens. As its bright color seemed emblematic of life in surroundings where death was dealt on every hand, the poppy of Flanders is the Memorial day flower of those Americans who saw, in the spring of 1918, fields such as this.

And part of such a landscape, in truth, was the wrinkled old woman who stands in this field. She typifies the impassive, stoic peasant who continued to till the fields in the day, though guns thundered at night. Her husband and brothers left her to fight in '71, and after two score years her sons and grandsons left her to fight again. So she, and many like her, labored to till what fields she could and to harvest what grain she was able. To her the poppies were weeds, making no appeal to her sentiment. But that she was not without such sentiment was, perhaps, shown by the care she lavished on the rectangular mounds, marked by white wooden crosses, that occupied a corner of her field until their contents were removed to the great cemeteries at Romagnes or Bois de Belleau or another such place, where French and American comrades will tend them in her stead this May 30, when kinsfolk and friends will decorate with flowers thousands of similar graves in this country.

ANOTHER BIG DAY COMING

EVERYWHERE one moves in the business world, he is greeted with the tale of woe that "business is all shot." Newspaper and magazine articles without number are bewailing the fact that someone has thrown a monkey-wrench into the machine of industry. And it is true. Business all over the country is at a standstill—almost, for there is at least one industry that is not at all bothered by the prevailing depressed conditions and that industry is our industry.

Christmas, 1920, came and went and, although it came at the darkest hour in the industrial sadness, it carried with it a tremendous business in flowers, a total sales record that some say is a new high mark for Christmas sales. Then New Year's day came and went and left a touch of happiness in the hearts of florists, for that day, too, was an unusually big one. Soon afterward, St. Valentine's day departed, leaving in its wake another day's business that came in a close second to the record. Next, Easter came and went and that too was a recording-breaking day. Following close on the trail of a tremendous Easter business, Mothers' day fulfilled our highest hopes and expectations, and from all parts of the country comes the dark blue story of empty iceboxes and turned-away customers.

What Is Coming?

With all these big, record-breaking flower days behind us, what can be expected for the one before us, Memorial day? First of all, we may analyze the day and find out the outstanding features which make it a day that florists always look forward to as a business-producing day.

All the other big days have some flower or group of flowers that have an exclusive right to the day and for that reason far outsell any other plants or flowers. Christmas makes a heavy demand on roses, poinsettias and other seasonable plants which display bright red blooms. Easter demands a large supply of lilies. And carnations are always the first to give out on Mothers' day. But Memorial day does not occasion an extra heavy call for any special plant or flower, though peonies, by reason of their timeliness, have come to be associated with the day by florists. Everything in the store, including wreaths, pots, designs, etc., goes strongly.

Though the custom on this day has been to place flowers on the soldiers' graves, there is aversion to just strewing them on the graves, probably because of the fact that in just a few hours this beautiful symbol of devotion withers. With spiked vases, however, this objection is overcome, and cut flowers may be placed on the grave and be held gracefully in an upright position.

Special Wreaths.

Another feature of Memorial day is wreaths. Wreaths of magnolia leaves, galax, oak leaves and many other flower leaves all go well. Many florists, especially in New England, advertise, as a special for Memorial day, a wreath of novel design and moderate price. They feature this wreath in their advertisements, in their windows and in their stores to any customers who come into the store without anything definite in mind except the limit in price which they desire to pay for a fitting and attractive decoration. Sometimes this wreath is of magnolia leaves, trimmed with some blooms of some other flowers and with some ferns. Sometimes it is made of some other combinations. The whole idea is to present an artistic and attractive wreath at a price that will induce a heavy sale. Yes, wreaths sell well on Memorial day.

Potted plants, of course, are the best Memorial day sellers. Everything seasonable sells well on this day.

Added Memories.

Another thing to consider is the meaning of the day. Memorial day was established in 1868 by the members of the G. A. R., who desired to set aside a certain day for honoring their lost comrades. The surprising thing is not the way that the use of flowers on this day has increased, but the manner in which the significance and the observance of the day has broadened. The Spanish-American war, in 1898, added more soldiers' graves to those of the Civil war. And the day has also become significant for the decorating of all graves, whether or not they are the graves of men who were army men.

The great world war has made the day much more full of meaning. It brings the thought of honoring the dead heroes closer to the hearts of the present generation. With few of the old G. A. R. veterans left and with the ranks of the Spanish war veterans getting smaller and smaller each year, an added impetus to the celebration of this day has been furnished. One florist advertises that "Chateau Thierry adds its memories to those of Gettysburg to make more universal the observance of Memorial day." Those words tell the whole story. For that reason Memorial day should grow larger and larger for florists.

Advertising's Aid.

If one analyzes the reasons for the phenomenally large business which the florists are enjoying this year, when all other lines are in the throes of an unprecedented slump, he is likely to conclude that the individual advertising and the general publicity working in this trade's behalf tell the tale. "How so?" say some, "aren't other lines advertising as well as florists?" Certainly they are, but not with the same results. The very nature of florists' advertising means an uplifting of the whole trade. While firms in other lines are advertising "buy such-and-such an article from so-and-so," florists are advertising "Say It with Flowers," with the idea of educating the public to the fact that they can get flowers wherever they desire, but they should get flowers.

Hardly an advertisement about flowers appears that does not feature the words of the slogan. Through all of the advertising that florists have done all over the country, the outstanding feature has been that slogan. This can be easily seen by reading magazines and newspapers. They often have a reference to "Say It with Flowers," even in their news sections. It is also easily seen simply by talking flowers or advertisements or slogans to anyone outside of our trade.

With that kind of advertising, the whole trade benefits from individual advertisements. Suppose that a man reads a Chicago paper and sees an advertisement of some Chicago florist. He pays little attention to the name of the florist, for the reason that he is only in Chicago for a little while. But the catchy slogan attracts his attention. His next stop on his trip is, say, St. Louis. He remembers that some St. Louis friend of his is celebrating a birthday or some other event at that time. In racking his brain for a suitable remembrance, the slogan comes to his mind. "By Jove! That's a capital idea," he says, and goes to the St. Louis florist and buys his flowers. In that way, the St. Louis florist gets the return from the advertising of the Chicago florist. And that seems to be the logical reason for the great lead we have over other industries in this crisis. Plenty of advertising and that cooperative, for, in a sense, all advertisers who employ that slogan are coöperators, is what has made this year's big days bigger and better than ever for florists.

Special Advertising.

That brings up the question of advertising for Memorial day. Taking for granted the fact that advertising should be done, the next question arises as to what style and type of advertising is suitable for this day. Surely, all advertisements should be patriotic and sentimental as well. That is one big thing in favor of Memorial day. It appeals to those two dominant passions of the heart, patriotism and sentiment. So the advertisements for the day should carry in them the idea of both. The thoughts do not have to be plainly expressed in words; they may be suggested. An attractive, attention-getting illustration or a line like that quoted previously will do more for bringing home the sentiment of the day than a whole page explaining to the readers what Memorial day is for and, perhaps, quoting prices on some flowers and plants. A simple advertisement that does not take long to read or give the reader too many things to think about is, perhaps, the best. One advertisement that was commented upon quite freely last year was one that had the trade slogan at the top of the advertisement, a special wreath with its price in the center and the name of the advertiser at the foot. Two other advertisements, which tell the story plainly and well and also tersely, are shown on this page and that opposite. They are advertisements printed by two florists' associations. They show what can be done in the way of simple, attractive copy.

This Year, What?

We are back to the old question again. What can be expected of Memorial day this year? With other days breaking records, with an added incentive for observing the day, with advertising boosting the entire trade, with all flowers selling strongly—with all these things true, how can Memorial day be anything else but one of the best in years? There is little doubt that it will be as big as it ever has been before, and indications are that it will be added to these days already on this year's list of record-breakers.

MINNESOTA COMPENSATION LAW.

Every Minnesota florist, nurseryman and seedsman, as well as anyone else engaged in business in that state, who employs one or more persons in his shop or business, is affected by the recently enacted amendments to the Minnesota Workmen's Compensation Act. Although not entitled to any credit or blame for the general nature of the provisions in the new act, the law editor of The Review had the honor of having a prominent part in drafting the new law, as secretary of the state senate interim commission, which reported the bill to the legislature for passage.

A copy of the act can be obtained by writing to the Industrial Commission of Minnesota, at St. Paul.

The law provides a scale of benefits to be paid by employers to injured workers, whether the injury be caused by fault of the employer or not. The amounts fixed, however, are much below what would ordinarily be allowed by a jury in a personal injury case. So, what an employer loses under the act, by being made liable for accidents not due to his fault, he gains by the small amount he must pay in any case.

An employer is not bound to be governed by the act. If he wants to, he can give notice as provided by the law that he will not be covered by it. In that case, he is not liable for accidents not traceable to his fault, but as to accidents due to his fault he must pay all that a jury may award and the court may allow in a personal injury case.

One of the most important provisions added to the act by the amendments is a requirement that every employer either carry insurance against liability for injuries to his employees, or prove to the Industrial Commission his financial ability to carry his own risk. After the taking effect of the act, June 1, 1921, the employer who fails to take out insurance or obtain permission from the commission to carry his own risk is subject to a penalty of $50.

Free and official information concerning rights and liabilities under the act can be obtained any time from the Industrial Commission. A. L. H. S.

Baltimoreans Believed This Their Best.

WABAN AUCTION SALE.

The second day's sale of the personal property of the Waban Rose Conservatories, of Natick, Mass., was held in the Federal court at Boston May 12 and proved to be disappointing because of the low price the few bidders present offered. Auctioneer John H. Craig, of Natick, put up 25,420 new rose plants and 54,870 old bushes, and the best offer he could get was 5 and 6 cents each.

The auctioneer tried to sell in small parcels and again tried to sell in large lots, but the bidding was lifeless and far below the actual cost of the plants and bushes. In fact, the offers were so discouraging that Receiver Francis G. Goodale withdrew the bids.

Finally the Park Trust Co., of Worcester, which had purchased the greenhouses and real estate the day before, through its representative bid $6,000 for the lot, which conditional sale will be held subject to the approval of the court.

The sale was continued to June 7 to await the action of the court.

TAR FOR PECKY CYPRESS.

In answer to the inquiry in The Review for May 12 concerning paint for new pecky cypress lumber, I would say that I think the best thing is coal tar, or, as some call it, gas tar. I have used it for many years on all new pecky cypress boards. It is best to put the tar on with a whitewash brush on a bright day, as it spreads easily when the weather is warm. Use enough to fill all the holes, let it stand a day, put on some straw, and you are ready for filling. If you leave the ventilator sashes open, the fumes will not hurt the plants. If you are unable to get the tar, a good, heavy wash of cement is the next best thing.

Just now I am rebuilding some benches that have been up eight years and most of them are good enough to use again. To my mind, there is nothing to the talk that gas tar is injurious to plants, if it is put on in summer and the ventilators are left open day and night for at least seventy-two hours.

Geraniums

INSUFFICIENT PROTECTION.

We have some geraniums from cuttings taken last fall which were outside all winter in frames. They were taken from pits, repotted into 3-inch, 4-inch and 5-inch pots and placed out in the open without covering other than windbreaks all about them up to the height of the plants. In addition to this, they were protected from the north and west by buildings, and when the weather was severe at night, they were covered. When potted they were given a pinch of bone meal. The stalk is apparently in good condition and they bloom and bud easily, but their leaves turn yellow and drop off, leaving the plants almost denuded of foliage. Previous to this we have handled the plants for three or four seasons with good results. What is your opinion as to the cause of the trouble? W. A. S.—Kan.

It is not at all surprising that the plants are losing foliage. Your method of culture is far from an ideal one. To take plants from pits where they had been wintered, to repot, place outdoors and plunge pots half their depth with no protection but a low windbreak seems sufficient to account for the plants doing badly, but a spell of cold and rainy weather which would chill the plants and stagnate the soil was no doubt the main reason for their losing foliage. Had plants, after potting, been kept in the frames or pits for some time, until they became established in their new pots, and were then moved outdoors, all probably would have been well. To improve your plants, it would be advisable to put them back in the frames for a time and water carefully. Also loosen the soil with a pointed stick. C. W.

POTTING THAT CHECKS GROWTH.

I am sending you a 4-inch geranium with which there is something the matter. The geraniums are potted first in 2-inch pots, being taken from a bench under which there are steam pipes. They grow well, have a good color and show no sign of disease until they are potted in 3-inch or 4-inch pots. Then they turn red and look as though they were dried up. H. R.—Pa.

Doubtless, the trouble with your geraniums is caused by the treatment you are giving them. I have had to grow geraniums in quantity for a number of years, and this experience teaches that it is not good policy to carry plants over from the fall of the year to well toward spring in 2-inch pots and then to pot them directly into 4-inch pots and expect them to do well. They receive a severe check and the roots suffer because they are not in condition to assimilate the substance of the new soil. If the same plants were given a shift into 3-inch pots early in January and then into 4-inch by March 15, you would not have this trouble with your plants. M. P.

GERANIUMS DISEASED.

We have mailed you three geraniums which are diseased. Our entire stock is getting in the same condition and we do not understand the reason.
C. F. S.—S. C.

The plants arrived much shriveled and it is not easy to tell from these specimens what the trouble is. I should throw away all badly diseased plants. In potting avoid using manure which is not old and well decomposed. Fresh manure is a fertile cause of such troubles. Keep the house well ventilated, with a dry atmosphere, and avoid spraying the plants overhead. Keep the plants well spaced apart and remove dead and decaying foliage. Give them all possible sunshine and keep rubbish away from below the benches. Perfect cleanliness, careful watering, keeping the plants rather on the dry side, full sunlight and plenty of fresh air are the conditions that geraniums need. Avoid a close, stuffy atmosphere, which would breed such diseases as you have.
C. W.

CULTURE OF PTERIS TREMULA.

Will you inform me as to the best method of culture of Pteris tremula?
F. P. H.—Can.

This vigorous-growing pteris, Pteris tremula, commonly known as the Australian bracken, is of easy culture. All ferns, of course, prefer some shade and this variety cannot be successfully grown in full sun. Use a compost of leaf-mold and loam in equal parts for young plants. For those of larger size, loam with a little quite old and well decayed manure, such as is to be found in a spent hotbed, and a dash of sharp sand, makes a suitable medium. Pot firmly, water well and place the plants on a side bench where the glass is shaded. This variety does not need much artificial heat and grows well in a temperature of 50 degrees at night, but by all means keep it shaded moderately. C. W.

PELARGONIUMS

PELARGONIUMS DROP PETALS.

Can you tell me any reason for Pelargonium Easter Greeting dropping its flowers as soon as it is taken into a home? I have had several complaints last year and this year.
W. K.—N. Y.

This is an old complaint held against pelargoniums as a class. It has, I believe, caused someone to invent a varnish to drop in the center of the flower in order to hold the petals together.

The first Easter Greetings that we shipped were sent to a store as an exhibition. The flowers dropped. At another time some were sent to decorate a banquet, with the same result. We attributed this to sudden change to cold air, for, when we put them in a cold room for two days or carried them out in the cold, the petals would not drop. A great many of our flowers of this kind are carried in paper to distant points, but we never seem to hear complaints about the petals dropping. On the contrary, we have had reports about their keeping qualities after they are cut.

We make many sprays by stemming and using Easter Greeting blooms as carnations, for Memorial decorations on graves. They have met with general favor because of their keeping qualities in the open air.

We mention these facts to show the complexity of the problem. Everything considered, we are led to believe that sudden changes in temperature and moisture, or possibly cultural conditions, may be the cause. We have noted that occasional fumigating with tobacco stems will cause a shedding of the petals, while in many other instances heavier fumigating will not affect them.

We have had so few complaints regarding petal-dropping that we hardly consider it an objection, because Easter Greeting is such a profuse bloomer that there are always flowers to quickly take the place of those that have dropped. S. C. T.

TIMING PELARGONIUMS.

I have been growing Martha Washington geraniums for a number of years, but I cannot make them bloom. They have much foliage and are rich in cuttings, but, at the best, they have had no more than one blossom apiece. Will you advise me as to what I can do?
A. L. & S.—Mich.

Pelargoniums, or Lady Washington geraniums, are spring-flowering plants and should be grown with that object in view. They have more than one blossom, but after the cool days of spring are gone and the weather becomes hot, the plants start into growth again and will not flower until the following spring. The variety Easter Greeting has become a valuable plant for Easter, when it can be had at its best.

The best method of culture is to take the cuttings late in September or early in October and, as soon as rooted, grow them along in a light, cool house, shifting them into larger pots as they need it, with the object in view of having them at their best about Easter time.

BEATING QUARANTINE 37

I WENT to Porto Rico to get rid of an attack of bronchitis. While there I became interested in the place and saw that there was a good chance of developing a plant-growing business. You know Porto Rico is now part of the United States, so that Quarantine No. 37, which excludes plants from other countries, does not exclude plants from Porto Rico. They can come into this country, and there is no duty. Porto Rico is much nearer to us than is Belgium. A shipment of plants from Ghent to New York takes two weeks to cross the ocean. The boat from San Juan to New York takes only five days. So you see Porto Rico has advantages.

Robert Craig returned from a six months' stay in Porto Rico April 28. A fortnight later Mr. Craig gave an extremely interesting description of the island and his work there. This description is reported below as nearly as possible as Mr. Craig gave it at his home in West Philadelphia on that bright afternoon in May.—Phil.

Climatic Conditions.

The chief advantage, however, is the climate. The night temperature is from 70 to 72 degrees all the year around. The day temperature goes up to about 80 degrees in winter and sometimes reaches 90 degrees in summer. When the temperature falls to 68 degrees at night people say, "How cold it is!" From a plantsman's standpoint this is ideal. There are no chills. Some plants can be grown in the open ground, others in houses built of lath, covered with tobacco cloth, as the asparagus houses are built in Florida. There is no expense for fire heat.

The soil is mostly a light, sandy loam, in which good crops can be produced provided it is well manured. There is also some clay loam, which grows good roses. In the gardens I have seen fine Columbia, Premier and Ophelia that have made 6-foot canes in a single season. Francis Scott Key produces freely there. Gruss an Teplitz does well; it produces a light growth, as it does elsewhere.

Labor is plentiful. A good man is worth $1.50 to $2 for an 8-hour day. He does about one-third less work than a workman here would be apt to do. The natives are docile. Some of them can be taught to pot quite nicely and to do general greenhouse work.

The climate of Porto Rico is just right for growing crotons, dracænas, Pandanus Veitchii, aspidistras, sansevierias and kentias. Phœnix Roebelenii, Phœnix canariensis and Phœnix rupicola could be grown there as they are in the south of France, whence they are sent to Belgium or to England to be grown in greenhouses for a season before being sent all over the world.

The bright-colored marantas might be grown in quantity—varieties such as Sanderi, rubra lineata and Oppenheimer. They are beautiful for boxes at the holidays, and there are never anywhere near enough of them.

The newer and finer sorts of fancy leaved caladiums do well in the open ground. There is a great chance for producing them for a retail catalogue mail business.

For Early Growth.

The value of a Porto Rico plant farm would be to produce plants in the rough to be finished in the greenhouses of the north. Shipments might be made in April to fill the empty houses after Easter with stock fine for growing on, stock that would prove much more costly if grown here during the earlier stages.

I purchased three acres of good land on the seacoast, just outside of San Juan, securing an option on four acres more. The trolley line stops at my gate and a good road passes my little farm. I put in city water, securing a good pressure with a 1-inch pipe. We built one house, 40x200 feet, with sashbars covered with tobacco cloth and coconut matting on the sides. The house is filled with Kentia Forsteriana and Belmoreana, Aspidistra lurida variegata, Dracæna Tricolor, a striking novelty, and the golden sansevieria, Laurentii. They are growing finely. Outside I have 17,000 dracænas. Henry C. Geiger helped saw up the dracæna canes, while James McClain put them in the ground. They are cut in pieces about ten inches long and stuck in the soil as we do California privet here. They root with ease and grow like weeds. I have no buildings on the farm, just two tents. Fred Pennock has been growing some dracænas, and an orange grower has a lot of kentias; so you see horticulture is only just starting in Porto Rico. I hope to go down again in August. I enjoy the life and find the work interesting.

GETTING MONEY TO BUILD.

Topeka, Kan., is a town with a population of about 50,000 and supplies a surrounding territory which has about 350,000 inhabitants. Yet this populous area depends almost entirely on outside sources for its flower supply.

Arlo Hubbard has been actively engaged in the seed, flower and nursery business all his life. He has worked in his father's store, at Topeka; at the seed store of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and has graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural College. He saw the need for a grower in the vicinity of Topeka and he knew that he was capable of operating the establishment which he had in mind. But he didn't have the necessary capital. He didn't want to begin on a small scale and grow, but he wanted to start right in to supply this greenhouse-poor market.

Those two things explain an advertisement that covered almost a full page in the Topeka Daily Capital for May 11. The advertisement told about the wonderful market for greenhouse products that there was around Topeka, told how well equipped Arlo Hubbard was to operate the greenhouse range, told about the location of the new range, and, in fact, told everything in connection with building the range. It also told about some seven per cent, tax exempt, cumulative preferred stock certificates which were to be sold for the purpose of capitalizing the Hubbard Gardens Co., of Topeka, Kan.

There is a news note and a moral to this tale. The news note is that Arlo Hubbard will soon build three greenhouses, 36x250 feet each, and a properly equipped service building, 36x50 feet.

The moral is that if you want a new or an enlarged greenhouse you don't have to refrain from erecting it because there is not enough cash on the credit side of the bank account. You can sell stock in the enterprise just as was done in Topeka.

MANURE ON LILIUM CANDIDUM.

For two years my Lilium candidum did beautifully, but this year about two-thirds of them are coming blind. Would lack of water after blooming affect them? Is it advisable to give them well rotted cow manure? Can well rotted cow manure be used with lilies, such as candidum, tigrinum, etc.?

H. A. H.—Cal.

Your experience with this beautiful lily is not at all unusual. Occasionally it can be found in some old cottage garden in the east blooming beautifully year after year for a decade or more; then it will gradually deteriorate, due to the bulbs becoming overcrowded. When replanted in new soil or in a new location; to be more correct, as soon as the growths have died down, this lily usually improves gradually. I prefer to cover the bulbs about four inches deep and plant in August or September. Lack of water after blooming would certainly hurt the plants.

Regarding the use of cow manure, if it is extremely old and will crumble in the hands, I consider it beneficial to candidum, tigrinum, speciosum, auratum, Harrisii and Henryi. The new and beautiful L. regale, or L. myriophyllum, however, seems to resent manure in any form, either in the soil or as a top-dressing or mulch. I have more faith in a mulch of well decayed manure for candidums to help conserve moisture and feed the plants than in placing it near the bulbs in the soil.

I consider L. candidum the finest of all garden lilies when well grown. Unfortunately, a disease often attacks it about the time the flower buds appear. Grown in pots and tubs with cool greenhouse culture, no disease ever affects it, and spikes six feet high, carrying as many as ten to fifteen buds per spike with foliage right to pot, are the rule. Pots eight to twelve inches in diameter and tubs ten to fifteen inches across grow candidums admirably, and I do not know of any more inspiring sight than one of these plants carrying ten to twelve spikes of immaculate flowers.

TO GROW BEGONIAS.

What is the best method of culture of Begonia Chatelaine and Begonia Rex?

F. P. H.—Can.

Begonia Chatelaine needs a light, sunny house and a light, rich soil, avoiding the use of chemicals and fresh animal manure. The plants should not need any spraying with nicotine and even spraying from the hose should be unnecessary. Cut out any dead or blind wood. The plants can often be much improved if cut back quite hard and allowed to start up from just above the soil.

A shelf, even if shaded, is not a good place for Begonia Rex. Place the plants on the bench, where they are less liable to dry out and where they get shade. The finest begonias imaginable of this type can be grown below greenhouse benches, where they may be frequently soaked with the hose. This begonia enjoys syringing overhead and a similar soil to the one advised for Chatelaine.

TOBACCO-STEM FUMIGATION.

Is there danger of burning the foliage of tomatoes, salvias, petunias, ageratums, etc., by using tobacco-stem smoke for green lice?

We have used tobacco-stem smoke successfully for five years, but it never before caused the leaves to burn and dry up as it did the last two times. Could the trouble be caused by something in the stems?

J. F. B.—O.

I have not used tobacco stems as a fumigant for many years. They are still used by many growers, but the number steadily decreases. There is greater danger of injury to plants from their use than from any other form of nicotine fumigation. Tobacco stems should be slightly moistened before being used; otherwise there is liable to be flames and a hot smoke, which will soon ruin the foliage of many plants. The operator should watch the fumigating pans and guard against any burning. Some dampened stems must be scattered on the pans to make a thick smoke. If this is not attended to, there is sure to be trouble.

Tobacco-stem fumigating should be obsolete. Stems may be cheap, but plants cost money to produce and nothing will more speedily ruin a nice batch of plants than this form of smoking. It causes flowers to fall from geraniums, begonias and other plants, causes carnations, roses and other flowers to smell disgustingly, renders them temporarily unsalable and often injures foliage in addition. Knowing these things, why not use a safer and saner fumigant? There are a number on the market containing nicotine. For years I have been pleased with results from nicotine papers, which are easily lighted, burn without watching, are effective, do not injure the foliage or flowers, are comparatively inexpensive and leave no noxious odor behind them. Even hydrocyanic acid gas is far more effective and safe than tobacco stems, and many growers now depend on it entirely. It will injure cattleyas and some tops on tomatoes, and snapdragons will wilt and not "come back" after it has been applied, but, used carefully, it is far more effective and safer than tobacco stems, the mere mention of which brings back unpleasant memories to many of us.

In warm weather the danger of damage from smoking is always the greatest. This is specially true if you fumigate on a dark day which has had several dark predecessors and is followed by a clear, warm day. Ventilate early on such a day. Spray your plants over and always remember that plants which are dry at the root suffer more from smoke than those which have their roots moist. C. W.

BEDDING PLANTS IN FRAMES.

I have coldframes and hotbeds only, no greenhouse. Is it possible for me to buy 2½-inch bedding stock, such as ageratums, heliotropes, fuchsias, vincas, coleus, geraniums, etc., early in spring and bring it into flower for Memorial day? If so, please give me some advice as to procedure, shifting, frame to use, etc. H. D. F.—N. J.

In your section you should be able to use frames to grow in pots good bedding plants of any of the varieties named, as well as a number of others. As weather conditions are variable, it would be advisable to use some manure to make a gentle hotbed below the plants. Fresh horse manure and leaves mixed and well tramped down to the depth of about a foot will give a nice, lasting heat. Over the manure can be spread a few inches of fine soil and in this the pots can be partly plunged. The little heat thus afforded will cause the plants to grow rapidly and, in reality, finer and more stocky plants can be produced in frames than in greenhouses.

If you buy your stock from or in 2½-inch pots, provided it is well rooted, it can go at once into 3½-inch pots or, in the case of strong-growing sorts, into 4-inch pots. On cold nights it would be advisable to use mats or some cloth covering over the frames. I should use standard sashes, 3x6 feet, with three rows of glass ten inches wide, which is better than four rows of narrow glass. The sashes should face south, southwest or west and should have a 4-inch pitch from back to front.

The plants should be given a little ventilation and should be watered sparingly on cool, sunless days and should be ventilated freely on warm days. The sashes should be closed early in the afternoon for coleus, alternantheras and vincas, in order to start them well. These plants take more heat than geraniums, fuchsias, petunias, ageratums, etc. Far more growers might well utilize frames for the relieving of greenhouses and for the successful growing of many bedding plants. with Kentia Forsteriana and Belmoreana, Aspidistra lurida variegata, Dracæna Tricolor, a striking novelty, and the golden sansevieria, Laurentii. They are growing finely. Outside I have 17,000 dracænas. Henry C. Geiger helped saw up the dracæna canes, while James McClain put them in the ground. They are cut in pieces about ten inches long and stuck in the soil as we do California privet here. They root with ease and grow like weeds. I have no buildings on the farm, just two tents. Fred Pennock has been growing some dracænas, and an orange grower has a lot of kentias; so you see horticulture is only just starting in Porto Rico. I hope to go down again in August. I enjoy the life and find the work interesting.

GETTING MONEY TO BUILD.

Topeka, Kan., is a town with a population of about 50,000 and supplies a surrounding territory which has about 350,000 inhabitants. Yet this populous area depends almost entirely on outside sources for its flower supply.

Arlo Hubbard has been actively engaged in the seed, flower and nursery business all his life. He has worked in his father's store, at Topeka; at the seed store of the W. W. A NEW PERNETIANA.

Looking through the nursery of Howard & Smith recently, a beautiful clear yellow rose was seen, so distinct from anything else that investigation had to be made. This is one of the new roses of the famous French grower, Mr. Pernet, and also one of many secured by Fred Howard when he was in Europe. Souvenir de Claudius Pernet is named in memory of one of Mr. Pernet's sons, who was killed in the war, and another has been named Souvenir de Georges Pernet, in honor of his other son, who also lost his life there. The rose in question had only been planted in the nursery about three months and there were several hundred flowers open. They were of a delightful clear yellow, with no sign of bronze pink or other shade that spoils so many yellow roses. It is purely as a garden rose that this will become famous, as none of the Pernetiana types, or but few, are good for forcing, but it is a most beautiful thing and cannot fail to appeal to all rose lovers. It is of a perfect habit of growth—dwarf, yet strong and exceptionally free-flowering. The bud is shapely, with plenty of petalage, and when fully open is delightful. The foliage is bright green, glossy and of the type that does not mildew. It is altogether worthy of the honored name it bears. H. R. R.

WHITE FLY ON ROSES.

At this season of the year in this northern country our rose plants are infested with white fly and, although we have tried every remedy we know of, we cannot keep the plants free of this pest. Can you suggest a suitable remedy? P. N. C.—Can.

As a rule white fly, while it attacks tomatoes, cucumbers, show pelargoniums, heliotropes, verbenas, fuchsias, calceolarias, petunias, cinerarias and a number of other plants, mostly soft-wooded, does not trouble roses or members of the natural order rosaceæ. White fly is a troublesome and often a harmful pest. Its damages can be alleviated considerably by spraying with a soap spray to which a little nicotine sulphate has been added. All flies hit with this and other similar soapy solutions will be killed. The great trouble is that the white fly is a restless creature and declines to stay still to be hit with contact sprays, in which respect it differs from the common black and green aphis.

There is only one real cure for white fly; that is hydrocyanic acid gas. The formula for this has appeared in The Review. It is a dangerous and deadly gas and must be used with extreme care. Many growers now rely on it altogether for keeping down insect pests. It will sometimes damage certain plants, and probabilities of injury increase with higher temperatures. A fumigation at this season may take some of the color out of your roses and, if the weather is hot, a few ends may be scorched, but it will kill the fly without any question. A second weak application may be needed to kill off any flies from unhatched eggs. Give a short exposure, say thirty minutes. Then open the ventilators from outdoors. Spray your plants over before the sun hits them in the morning and air freely, and there will be little or no harm done to roses or any other plants. C. W.

CAUSES OF STEM-ROT.

My seedlings of asters and eggplants are apparently in good shape at night, but the next day there are spots all over them. The plants all fall over and the stems are dead close to the ground. M. W.—Ala.

The seedlings of asters and eggplants have evidently damped off from some cause. It is likely that the soil into which they were transplanted was too rich. It is well known that seedlings do particularly well in a light and moderately rich soil, in which the manure is old and well decomposed, but if the manure used is rather new or if chemical fertilizer of some kind has been added to the soil and perhaps not mixed properly, the seedlings are likely to be affected as yours were and will damp off badly. The addition of plant food "to give the seedlings a good start" is excellent, but only well rotted manure, well pulverized, should be used. Another possible cause of stem-rot is allowing seedlings to become crowded in the flats or seed beds and then, to make them stand erect, most of the stem must be buried. Do not sow seeds thickly, or, if you do, be sure to transplant while quite small and before they become drawn and spindling. Where the stem-rot starts in the seed bed, it is usually due to having the seedlings crowded and applying water at too much pressure. C. W.

CONTROLLING MUM MIDGE.

The chrysanthemum midge, Diarthronomyia hypogæa, has become widely distributed in the United States and Canada. It is considered to be of European origin. The adult insect, a small 2-winged fly, or midge, with a body mostly of an orange color, lays its eggs among the leaf hairs, particularly those near the young, forming leaves. A single female is known to deposit as many as 150 eggs. They are deposited in irregular masses or in strings. It has been observed that the length of the egg stage varies from three to sixteen days. The maggot soon after hatching enters the tissue, causing an irritation which results in the formation of a swelling or gall, inside of which it develops both as a larva and a pupa. In due time the small fly emerges. The gall when fully formed is a conspicuous oval-shaped swelling, in length about one-twelfth of an inch. It is often slightly paler than the color of the leaf or stem upon which it occurs and is thus easily seen. When the flies have emerged the galls are readily seen, particularly on the older leaves, owing to these having turned yellowish or whitish in color.

From observations at the government greenhouses at Ottawa, Ont., Arthur Gibson, in charge of insect investigations there, says apparently all greenhouse chrysanthemums are subject to attack, although certain varieties have been observed to be more heavily infested than others. At those greenhouses the midge was practically controlled by adopting the following procedure: The greenhouse was fumigated during the winter with hydrocyanic acid gas about once every month. Such fumigation destroyed the adults. The house was also fumigated with tobacco. The cuttings from the stools were dipped before potting, in early December, in nicotine solution in the strength of three-fourths of an ounce to one gallon of water; the plants were dipped a second time when repotted from 2½-inch pots to 4-inch pots, and a third time when transferred from 4-inch pots to 6-inch pots. During July and August the chrysanthemums were sprayed with nicotine, in the same strength, every three weeks. Later for a period of about six weeks the house was fumigated with tobacco once every ten days.

In a case of severe infestation it may be necessary to fumigate every night either with nicotine or hydrocyanic acid gas for a period of at least six weeks. Such fumigation should take place after midnight, owing to the fact that the adults do not emerge until about that time.

MUCH ADO MOTHERS' DAY

PLENTY OF PUBLICITY.

Newspapers Aid Florists.

Never have Mothers' day and flowers been so widely advertised as this year. And never did the trade get so much publicity at so little cost. There are many kinds of publicity, but for May 8 the florists got all of them. There were encomiums for Mothers' day; there were injunctions to wear a flower and to send mother flowers on that day; there were quotations of the retail prices of flowers; there were boosts of flowers and florists; and there were injunctions not to wear flowers, revilings of florists, and charges of our trade's profiteering. Yes, plenty of publicity was had, and of all kinds.

How much was helpful and how much was hurtful depends upon the point of view. Many believe that none of it was hurtful, that all of it, adverse and favorable, advertised flowers for Mothers' day. Assuredly the number who refused to purchase flowers May 8 was a fraction of the number who could not purchase because the florists were sold out. From every section of the country have come the most glowing reports of the holiday and actual statistics, when the books were checked up, verified the estimate of the day as the most successful Mothers' day on record and one of the topmost holidays in the trade's history.

Denver Post's Attack.

The most violent attack on the trade ever experienced was that of the Denver Post on the morning of May 8. The reputation of this paper is so widely known throughout the country that it need not be described here. Its flaring headlines are so greatly discounted in Denver that the box heading reproduced here served chiefly as a splendid piece of advertising for the local trade. The sole disadvantage lay in the fact that it did not appear until Sunday morning, May 8, when most Denver florists were sold out, or nearly so.

The Denver Post can be counted upon to do a thing "up brown." So it did not stop with the box here reproduced across the top of the first page of the early Sunday edition—the most prized position in the whole edition. At the top of the second page was a box, of still heavier type, reading, "Wear a dandelion Sunday. Pick it yourself—a tender ceremony—and swat the profiteer." Lower on the page was half a column devoted to charges of profiteering because carnations, "the official flower" of Mothers' day, were selling at $3 per dozen May 7 when they sold at $1.50 a week before. On the back page of the issue, full of scareheads like the front, was another box, "Wear a dandelion. Everybody will do it Sunday. Mothers hate profiteers." Underneath a heading, "Florists boost prices of carnations beyond all reason in Denver," was another half column of reading matter urging Denver to follow New York's example and wear a dandelion on Mothers' day.

Effect?

What the effects were are best described by Denver florists themselves. E. P. Neiman, secretary and treasurer of the Park Floral Co., states:

"The attack was the most violent that has ever appeared in a newspaper. However, we do not think that it had any bad effect upon the business for Mothers' day or since, as most of the people of Denver know the reason for these attacks upon the business people of the city and just laugh at the articles.

"The florists' business for Mothers' day was at least fifty per cent to seventy-five per cent better than in former years. When the first article appeared in the Denver Post, on the afternoon of May 6, nearly all the florists of Denver had advance orders enough to use up all their stock of carnations. Sunday morning, May 8, nearly every florist in town had to wait until the morning's stock had been cut and brought in before they could fill their orders, and some of the florists had to hold their late orders over until Monday morning in order to fill them. So you can readily see what effect this publicity had on the business for Mothers' day."

S. R. Lundy, of the Boldt-Lundy House of Flowers, says:

"We do not think that the attack hurt us, coming as it did from this paper. The reporter who wrote the article interviewed me, and I quoted to him the prices of carnations in other cities, showing that our prices were $1 less than in many other places, as we sold carnations for $2, $2.50 and $3.

"We had the biggest business in the history of Mothers' day in Denver. All florists here sold out completely, and we could have handled at least 10,000 to 15,000 more carnations, if we had had them."

Herbert A. Clausen, of the newly established firm, the Rockmont for Flowers, Inc., declares: "The attack of the Denver Post had no adverse effect on the florists as a whole in Denver. The general public, taking it more as a joke than a reality, favored us with orders as though the attack had not been made."

If as an attack, the Denver Post's front page heading was a joke, as a piece of florists' publicity it was the cheapest the trade in that city ever received.

AN ADVERTISING ADVENTURE.

Six months ago, Logansport, Ind., a town of 23,000 inhabitants, had no downtown florists' establishment. Five months ago, E. H. Pershing opened the Pershing Flower Shop & Seed Store in the heart of the town. Up to Mothers' day, business in the new location had been good, but not good enough to warrant heavy advertising for Mothers' day. It was a trifle dubious, for there had been no precedent for him to follow. He did not know whether the downtown store would sell enough to pay for the advertising. But he was firm in his belief that advertising pays, so he went ahead and advertised. He also showed a bit of originality in appropriating his advertising fund. He based the amount to spend for his advertising on the percentage he could afford to spend of the entire proceeds should the entire stock purchased be sold out.

Therefore, Monday, May 2, there appeared a small inch reader in six places in the local daily paper. It read, "Mothers' day, next Sunday, May 8. See tomorrow's announcement. The Pershing Flower Shop." The advertisement of May 3 occupied 2-column space twelve inches deep, with an illustration and a little type telling about Mothers' day and its meaning, an advertisement such as is run by many florists. May 4 and 5, there were smaller advertisements with cuts and type. May 6 and 7, there were the readers in six places in the papers again.

The result was even better than was hoped. The stock was completely sold out before 8 p. m. Saturday, May 7. More flowers were ordered for Sunday morning and all of those were sold out before 11 a. m. Many customers were turned away Saturday evening and Sunday morning. Selling was stopped for two hours Saturday afternoon in or-

HONOR THY MOTHER BUT SWAT THE FLOWER PROFITEER

Every Yankee Doodle Dandy—
Will wear a dandelion on Mothers' day,
And help to swat the profiteer!
The idea of wearing dandelions Sunday instead of carnations—at $3 a dozen—is spreading through Denver like wildfire!
Or, better yet, LIKE A WILDFLOWER!

Carnations have been raised AT LEAST 100 PER CENT, just because they've been the official flower for Mothers' day.
The florists like Mothers' day. For the sentiment? Yes. Because that sentiment makes dollars flow into their pockets. And the florists soak everybody who wants to buy carnations to honor mother.

But Denver folks are aroused and angry. They won't let the florists commercialize Mothers' day.
Dandelions will stop 'em.
So—everybody—wear a dandelion in your coat lapel Sunday.
Mother will understand! And rejoice!

This Was the Heading Across the First Page of the Denver Post, Sunday Morning, May 8.

der to give the force a chance to catch up with the flowers already ordered. The last customers on Sunday took all the roses without stems; they wanted anything that could be worn. Dozens of men went away wearing small sprays of valley. The last customer, a mechanic in his working clothes, bought and wore away two orchids, absolutely the last flowers of any kind in the store. Mothers' day in this store was far ahead of Christmas, or even Easter, in the sale of cut flowers.

ROSARIANS PLAN FIELD DAY.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society will meet in Washington June 1 and 2. The program will be as follows: Meet at Gude Bros. Co. offices at 10 a. m.; visit Arlington Farms till noon, where the Secretary of Agriculture or other prominent officials will address the gathering; at noon, drive through Rock Creek park to Twin Oaks, the home of the former Mrs. Gardiner Hubbard, who donated a gold medal to be awarded every five years for a new rose. This is now the home of Mrs. Charles J. Bell. Here refreshments will be served and the rose garden inspected. After that another drive will be taken, through Executive avenue and the Soldiers' Home to the New Ebbitt House, where luncheon will be served. On the morning of June 2 there will be a visit to the Shaw water lily gardens at Kenniworth, Md.; in the afternoon a visit to Dr. Van Fleet's rose garden at Bell's Station, Md.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

A FLORAL BOND.

We take pleasure in stating that we had the best business on Mothers' day in our experience, more than doubling any previous year, and we give credit for the greater part of this increase to the telegraph business. Friday, Saturday and Sunday the telegrams piled in on us, and had we not fully prepared in advance, we should not have been able to care for our orders. We had contracted in advance, so we did not have to suffer for the increase demanded in prices.

It is too bad that prices were advanced as they were. It is not to the credit, nor does it serve to the upbuilding, of the florists' trade. In the advertisement we carried in the Pasadena papers we stated, "It is a day when flowers are a necessity, not a luxury, and prices will be according." There is certainly an opportunity of great value to the florists' trade to make Mothers' day a day that will constantly increase in its observance.

Consider the great amount of publicity given this day by the press. If the florists' trade were compelled to pay for this, it would cost a vast amount of money. All florists were benefited, and we should take advantage of this great opportunity.

It is to be deeply regretted that certain persons raise the prices of flowers on this day. It gives the public the impression that flowers are always high-priced, whereas if people can get flowers within their means, more flowers will be purchased and I believe business would be doubled.

It seems to be generally accepted that carnations are the flowers for Mothers' day. To this I certainly object. I think the intent was for a carnation to be worn as an emblem of the day, a white one for the departed mother, a red one for the living. But to give pleasure and happiness to the mother who is with us, flowers of brightness and beauty should be sent. I think this can be more fully carried out by the florist himself in suggesting the sending of other sorts of flowers and letting the carnation remain as an emblem to be personally worn.

We hope that the trade will take this up and make Mothers' day a day of flowers by necessity. If you figure our great returns in payment for this country-wide publicity, not in dollars and cents alone, we surely shall be well repaid.

Let us all boost this as one of the greatest campaigns in the floral world. Think of the great assistance given our trade by this universal publicity! What would any of the large commercial business concerns give for such a boost! Yet this is laid at our door and we are not taking the full advantage of it.

Why not take advantage of it and prepare for next year? We all certainly know a good thing. Why should not every florist feel he has and owns a floral bond—a bond that is always above par and paying interest daily? Who wants a better investment?

Be assured I have taken one.

THE DANDELION.

In answer to the question in last week's issue: "Did You See Any Dandelions?"—yes, I did, and so did another citizen of Columbus, who took the time to mention it in a leading newspaper. This is the way the item read:

THE MOTHERS' DAY FLOWER.

In a prominent Columbus church last Sunday a banker appeared with a dandelion in the lapel of his coat. It was Mothers' day and he alone of all the hundreds of worshipers at that service chose this lowly yet really beautiful flower as his expression of the spirit of the day. The banker drove to church as splendidly as any other parishioner, and he could well have afforded the outlay of money for some other conventional flower. He had his mother with him, and according to his own statement, when he was tucked into bed that night by his sweetheart of silver hair and she had kissed him, she remarked that it was the best Mothers' day she had yet enjoyed.

The dandelion expressed to her the simple devotion the son bore for a real mother. The banker said that he had gone to a florist's shop the day previous to buy some more conventional flower, but found the supply exhausted. He also discovered that the day had been sadly commercialized.

No doubt some criticised this banker for wearing a dandelion to express the most natural and simplest love that exists. But his heart was rich in devotion, and besides, it was his protest against a tendency that in New York city, for instance, found carnations selling for $1 a blossom, because the special demand made it possible to get that sum.

But dandelions are picked so closely here to make liquor that I predict they will never pass carnations as a Mothers' day flower. Their market value at $15 a quart distilled is more than carnations at $3. J. W. Thompson.

HOSPITAL DAY IN TOLEDO.

National Hospital day, May 12, was celebrated in Toledo under the auspices of all the hospitals. An advertising campaign in the daily papers called attention to the work that is being done for humanity in these institutions. The various hospitals were decorated with palms and ferns donated or furnished by the florists. Many visitors were shown through the hospitals between 2 and 4 p. m. Some of the visitors brought or had flowers and plants sent to the sick. The celebration will be an annual affair here, and next year florists ought to receive a much greater benefit.

As the day came right after Mothers' day, when one Toledo councilman called florists who charged 25 cents for a carnation "the meanest kind of profiteers," Schramm Bros. thought it an auspicious moment to show the public that florists are always willing to cooperate in worthy movements. They contributed a rose for each patient and nurse in every hospital, with a card attached reading, "Just a bit of good cheer from Schramm Bros." They believe that it is profitable for a florist to take a dose of his own medicine, which he prescribes for the public when he urges them to "Say It with Flowers." An advertisement in the daily papers headed, "A Rose for Each Patient," brought the firm's attitude to the public's attention.

MOTHERS' DAY NOTES.

Cincinnati, O.—Julius Baer, who is one of the foremost advertisers of telegraph delivery service, reports an exceedingly large business in wire orders for Mothers' day.

Lincoln, Neb.—Frey & Frey report a rapid increase in the telegraph delivery department of their business. The telegraph orders handled for Mothers' day were twice as numerous as in 1920.

St. Louis, Mo.—Grimm & Gorly advertised in the Post-Dispatch May 5 their intention to send each "gold star" mother a gift of flowers on Mothers' day and asked the public to furnish the names and addresses of them.

New York, N. Y.—H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J., took advantage of the widespread newspaper talk of "dollar carnations" for Mothers' day to advertise in the New York Times May 13 that "Marinelli carnations have been sold at all times since they were first put on the market at not less than that price," urging the public to ask the florists for Marinelli carnations.

Knoxville, Tenn.—"An ad that brought real results," is the way Karl P. Baum, secretary-treasurer of Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., characterized the page which his firm, with Charles W. Crouch, A. H. Dailey and the McNutt Floral Co., ran in the Journal and Tribune May 5. It was well illustrated with pictures of mother and carried a short story about the origin of Mothers' day.

FOR SUMMER BASKETS

COSMOS FOR CUTTING.

By JAMES A. WIEBENS.

Perfecting Mammoth Perfection.

For the last ten or twelve years a great deal of attention has been devoted to the development of the cosmos and from the old late-flowering type many new sorts have been bred up, some by selection and some by cross fertilization. The strain called Mammoth Perfection, still listed by many seedsmen, is a large, late-flowered type, requiring so long a season to bloom that it should not be used by florists, especially those living north of the Ohio river. Plants of this type in the south attain a height of six or eight feet and a width of three to four feet, and are rather unsightly bushes, except for their flowers. This type in the southern states is nearly always covered with a white fungous growth resembling mildew, which attacks the plants about the time they begin to flower.

The Early Mammoth.

The Early Mammoth type is by far the most satisfactory of the single-flowered cosmos. It comes into bloom within about sixty days from seeding, under normal conditions, and gives a profusion of blooms throughout the season. These flowers can be had in pleasing shades of light pink, white and dark red. Magenta shades should be avoided. If the seed is sown in a hotbed and the seedlings are transplanted to the field as are asters, blooms of this early-flowering cosmos can be had from June until frost. They are useful in bouquets, in baskets and for decorating. The cosmos can be used to good effect in relieving the stiff, formal appearance of many floral arrangements, in both the home and in churches, and is deserving of more attention than it receives from the average florist.

One of the things that should recommend the cosmos to florists is its lasting quality when cut. The flowers will hold up from five to seven days in water, in the temperature of an ordinary room.

Anemone-flowered Type.

A double-flowered cosmos also has been developed, in three shades, pink, white and crimson, but this is still quite expensive and not generally recommended for florists' use. The double and crested cosmos, however, is a most attractive flower, somewhat on the style of the pyrethrum. This type, like the early-flowering sort, lasts for a long time after cutting and lends itself readily to almost any use. But the double and crested, or anemone-flowered, cosmos is not nearly so early as the early-flowering varieties and it is advisable to sow the seeds in hotbeds or in the greenhouse and transplant to the open, so as to get the advantage of a longer blooming season.

Treatment for Mildew.

If cosmos plants are attacked by mildew or fungus, a good remedy is to dust them with powdered sulphur, as this does not stain the flowers or the foliage as Bordeaux mixture would. Powdered hellebore may also be used effectively.

The illustration on this page shows a field of cosmos of the Early Mammoth type, grown on the farm of James Vick's Sons, near Rochester, N. Y. As already stated, this variety of cosmos comes into bloom especially early. Flowers often appear in considerable numbers when the plants are not more than a foot high and they continue blooming profusely until frost. The plants on this field on the Vick farm reached a height of five to six feet, as may be seen by comparing the height of the plants with that of the man, as indicated in the picture.

S. A. F. NEWS

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Membership Statistics.

President Roland is of the opinion that the society should be in possession of statistics covering the business of each and all of our members, for publication in the society's annual report. Such information would be of great value when the society is called upon to make trade representations before legislative bodies. In addition to stating our membership, figures could be given covering what our membership represented in the way of glass operated, invested interests and so forth. With the idea of collecting this information, the secretary will prepare and shortly mail to each member a questionnaire, which should be completed and returned for the compilation process. It will be interesting to our members to know how many retail florists, growers, private growers and gardeners and others representing branches of allied trades are comprised in our membership, and how many grow the whole or part of the products which they sell. It is not thought that even a guess could be hazarded as to the number of square feet of glass operated by S. A. F. members.

It would also, in the opinion of our president, be desirable to publish in the annual report all statistical information it is possible to secure in the direction of horticultural industry and practice in this country. Many data of this kind are obtainable through the departmental research of the government bureaus at Washington and the secretary will endeavor to assemble all the information available at the proper time.

National Publicity Campaign.

Each week of late, the trade papers have been kind enough to publish for us the names of those in the trade who have paid their 1921 subscriptions to the campaign fund. Our committee has made urgent appeals for the speedy payment of the subscriptions for the current year and, so far, the response has been most satisfactory. There are still, however, numbers of guarantors who have not yet made remittances. If the reader of this article should happen to be one of them, he can materially assist the committee in their earnest effort to resume national advertising now when the trade needs it, by sending a check at once to the secretary, who will publish the subscription in accordance with the new custom. If the reader has not yet subscribed to the fund, he is reminded that his assistance would be thankfully acknowledged in the same way.

The benefit received through the campaign has been so large that it is far from the committee's intentions to cease effort; indeed, the campaign is to be prosecuted with greater vigor than ever and indefinitely, but they look for the support of the trade in this work and all who contribute are most assuredly helping themselves and the whole trade in the direction of bigger and better business. None should wait to receive a subscription blank; a subscription can be sent in just as well without.

National Flower Show.

Prints of the floor plan, showing the areas available in the big Municipal building in Cleveland for trade exhibits at the forthcoming national flower show, will be ready for mailing shortly. Prospective exhibitors are advised to give early consideration to the matter of making their exhibits, so as to be in readiness to make reservations on receipt of plans, for only by acting promptly can the best locations be assured.

Full details concerning the grand capital prize of $5,000, offered for the best development of a garden, will be forthcoming in a short while. Even with an indefinite knowledge of conditions, great interest is already being taken in this feature of the show, which will be the most important and grandest ever attempted at an exhibition in this country, or, indeed, anywhere. Never before was so large a prize offered. Several other large prizes offered should be equally attractive to those able to compete for them. George Bate, of 227 High avenue, Cleveland, is chairman of the committee appointed to secure out-of-town exhibits and is particularly anxious to get into communication with any grower who can exhibit either in the private or commercial classes. It is not at all too early to commence preparations for exhibits in many of the classes; in fact, they should be commenced now. As S. A. F. President Roland stated at a recent meeting in Cleveland, no private estate or growing establishment is too small to undertake some kind of exhibit and small, as well as large, exhibits are cordially welcomed. If a large number of these small exhibits are forthcoming, there can be no question as to the success of the show. Bear this in mind, Mr. Grower, and do what you can to swell the list of exhibits.

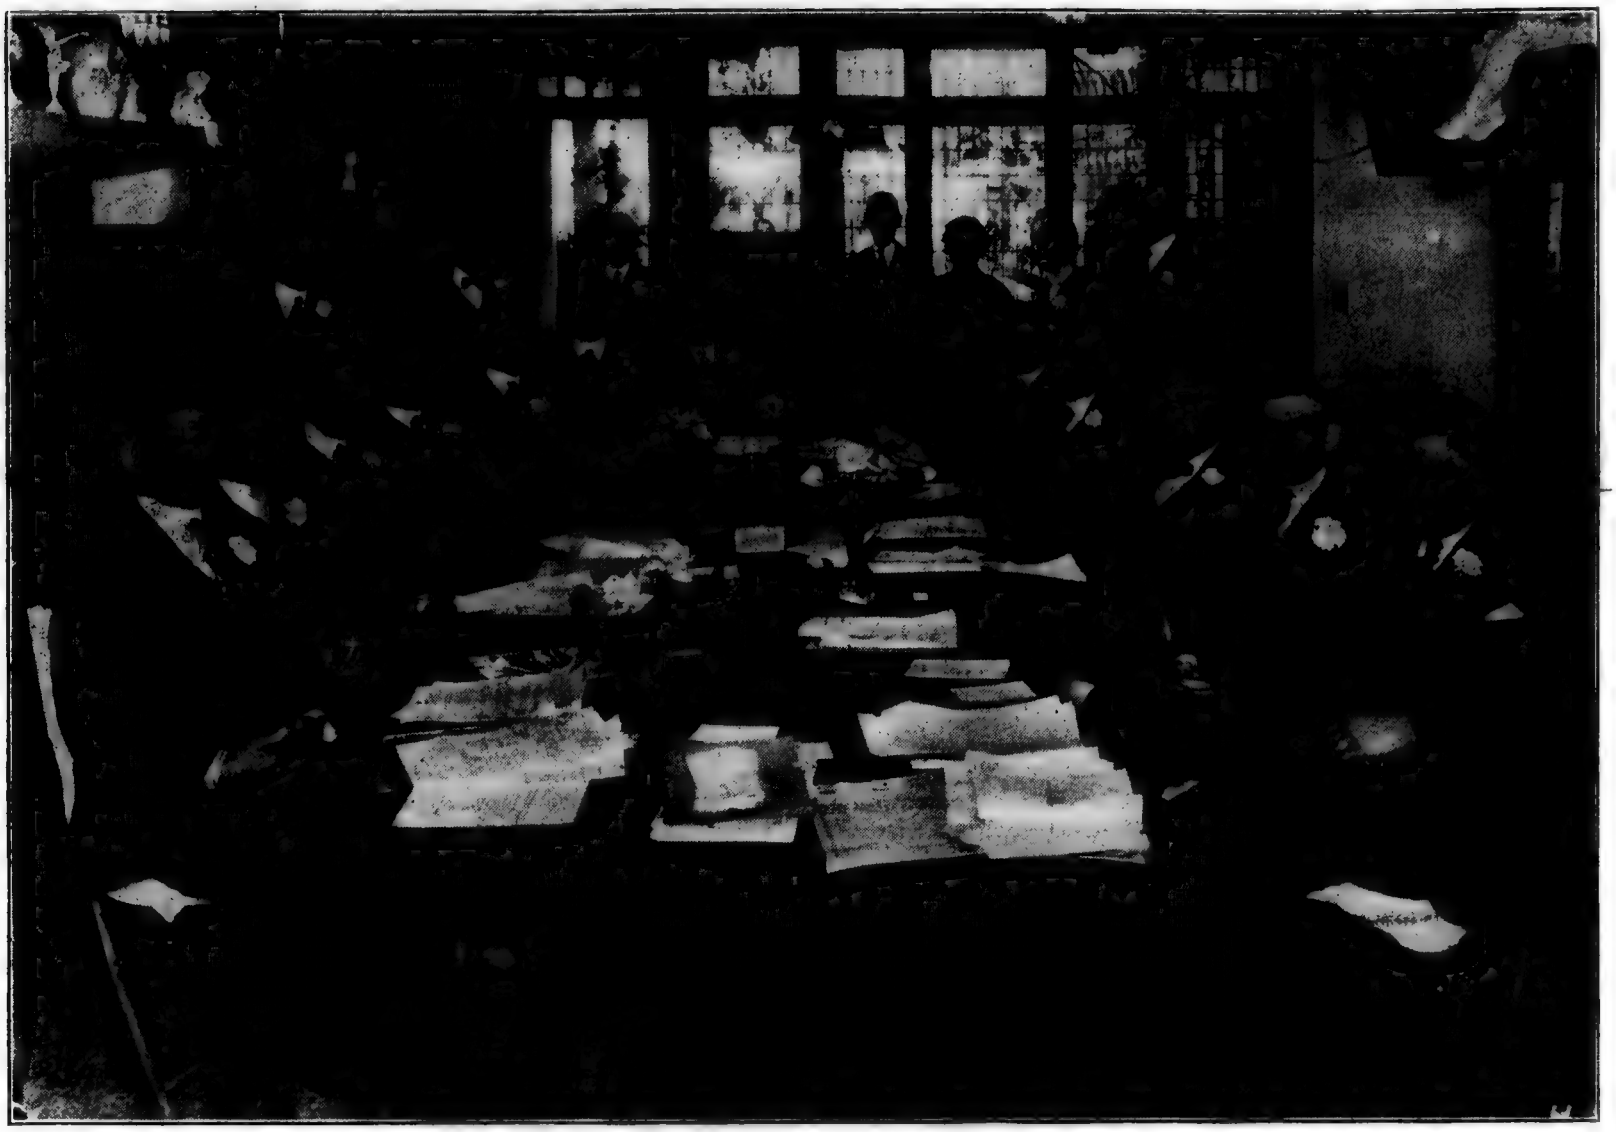
The Washington Convention.

Additional exhibitors in the trade exhibition are the Every-Ready Flower Pot Cover Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., and Macaw Bros., Norwood, Pa.

The president and secretary of the society will be in Washington June 2 and will have a meeting with Adolph Gude, Z. D. Blackistone and David Grillbortzer, the local advisory committee, at which will be discussed the arrangements now being made for the trade exhibition, which at this time bids fair to break all previous exhibition records in point of size and comprehensiveness. If any prospective exhibitor desires any further or special information in regard to the exhibition, he should communicate with the secretary at once, so that, if necessary, the matter may be taken up at the meeting mentioned. John Young, Sec'y.

S. A. F. MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

State Vice-Presidents' Week.



Since state vice-presidents' week begins May 22, in the S. A. F. drive for new members, the following letter has gone out to every state vice-president:

"At the suggestion of President Roland, with a liberal contribution from an enthusiastic member to cover the expense of a membership drive in the S. A. F., a resolution was passed at a recent meeting of the board of directors in Washington to have a committee appointed to launch this movement and the undersigned committee is the result.

"Our goal is 'to double the membership of the S. A. F. in ninety days,' and our slogan is 'Every member get a member.' This campaign opened May 15 and closes at convention time.

"It has heretofore been an unwritten rule that a part of every state vice-president's duty was to secure new members. In rare instances this was adhered to, but in most cases it was entirely overlooked. Now, let us in this drive hope for big things from the state vice-presidents."

This is a fine chance for state vice-

A GROUP OF CELEBRITIES.

Pretty nearly every individual in the group pictured on this page is widely known aside from his connection with the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. "Pretty nearly" is prefixed because the official stenographer's face is not familiar to many florists and some of the Detroit office force of the organization are compelled to stick so close to their work that they are not on public view more than once a year, at convention time.

This group was photographed, with one exception, at the meeting of the board of directors of the F. T. D. at headquarters, in Detroit, April 11 and 12. The exception was Treasurer William L. Rock, the only absentee on that occasion. But the other officers and the directors missed Mr. Rock so much that they had him put in the picture. So there he is, natural as if he'd been at the meeting.

The news of the meeting was given in The Review the week following its being held. Here is a list of those in the illustration, in case any need identification:

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Peonies are in full swing now, and sales are good. Roses in general are plentiful. Carnations and sweet peas are scarce, owing to the great amount of cloudy weather.

The Florists' Club met Monday, May 16, in special session. The committees were appointed and general plans made for the entertainment of the visitors for the convention in August. It is now expected that the Secretary of Agriculture will be present to address the members at the opening session of the S. A. F. On the whole, everything is moving along smoothly.

Adolph Gude, vice-president of the S. A. F., last week was unanimously elected grand commander of the Grand Commandery Knight Templars of the District of Columbia. He is already past commander, past high priest, past grand high priest, past patron of the Eastern Star, past grand patron of the Eastern Star and past potentate of Almas Temple.

William F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., has been appointed by the President of the United States a member of the rent commission.

Gude Bros. Co. decorated the float on which President Harding's dog, Laddie Boy, led the animal parade, May 13. The float was drawn by six horses. It was thirty feet long, eight feet wide and had a pergola erected on top, covered with climbing roses, American Beauties and palms. It created much favorable comment throughout the entire parade. This parade was held by the Humane Society to educate the people to be kind to animals.

SPOTTED ECHEVERIAS.

I am sending a leaf of echeveria which is badly spotted. I had my echeverias in the greenhouse and then I shifted them to a flat. They did all right last year with well rotted cow manure, sand and dirt, but this year spots are showing. Will you tell me what is the matter with them and suggest a remedy? H. L.—Ill.

Keep the plants drier at the roots and be careful to wet the leaves as little as possible in cold, dark weather. Some powdered sulphur blown over the affected plants will assist in checking the trouble. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Charles H. Buenning, Easton, Pa., commenting upon the increasing sales on Mothers' day, looks for a proportionate advance around Memorial day, when blooming plants take preference. The junior Buenning has taken hold of the growing end.

Alonzo J. Bryan, Washington, N. J., has fully recovered from the attack of scarlet fever which incapacitated him for six weeks.

A. D. Herrick, Hackettstown, N. J., is well pleased with the returns from the new rose house added last summer and it is possible the grower, Thomas Hart, will get another at an early date, to enable him to supply the needs of their chain of stores.

The Sunnyside Greenhouses, Dover, N. J., report fine business on Mothers' day and anticipate an equally busy time around Memorial day, although Proprietor Henry Payne says their season for bedding out extends until July 4. This promises to be a late one. George Payne, who has charge of the store, was putting the finishing touches on a lovely wreath and commented upon the scarcity of flowers under glass. A fine showing of Darwin tulips around the place in beds and borders was noted.

Arthur Taylor, Boonton, N. J., expressed most optimistic views of general conditions. The reason was understood when it was learned that our fellow craftsman was recently married.

R. A. Elliott, Morristown, N. J., is doing considerable business through the Classified columns of The Review, but thinks the volume would be more were it not for the high freight rates. Noting some lemon verbanas and Rex begonias, the remark was made that these are almost extinct, an unfortunate condition.

Henry Payne, of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, Dover, N. J., is raising pedigree rabbits as a hobby and, while this note is not floricultural, many of the younger readers of The Review may be interested to know about it. The "rabbitry" is made as attractive as are the greenhouses.

Frank Baker, of C. F. Baker & Son, Utica, N. As the writer happened in the store of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, following the rush of Mothers' day business, Alvah R. Jones and Ralph Faust were leaving in their Franklin for the peony farm of Edward Swayne at West Chester, Pa. As the writer is on the qui vive for anything new, whether in flowers or bugs, he gladly accepted an invitation to go along. 'Twas a delightful trip, but, as Mr. Faust, the peony expert, observed, "none of our joys is perfect," for it appears there will be but a partial crop of blooms, even with every condition favorable from now on, owing to the severe frosts, so that, as the southern crop will be almost past, the outlook for cut flowers for Memorial day is not more promising than it was for Mothers' day.

In the absence of W. B. Koehler, Frankford, Pa., who was giving personal service to an important order, an opportunity was afforded to interview Joseph Beck, a shell-shocked veteran of the recent war, who, by the way, was potting off plants of the famous Ball strain of asters. The young man's nimble fingers equaled the fastest we ever observed and his enthusiasm, as he pointed to a frame filled with sweet alyssum in 2¼-inch pots, showed his adaptability to this branch of the business. Later, in conversation with Mr. Koehler, it was learned that this vocational student of the government had in this, his second spring's work, equaled, if not surpassed, any old-timer at the job, and he gives every promise of fully recompensing the patience and sympathy needed to teach him. Among items of interest in the houses is a block of poinsettia stock from California, the pink variety, which will be a seller next Christmas. W. M.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

RICH SOIL VS. INSECTS.

I am sending specimens of tomato plants which are in some way affected. The trouble, worse in cloudy weather, starts at the lower part of the plants and gradually works upward until it reaches the top leaves, leaving only the stem. It spreads rapidly. I have stirred the soil frequently, have not overwatered, and use soil that is not too rich. From close inspection, it looks as though something is eating the leaves. The trouble is mostly with dwarf varieties. F. D.—O.

The plants received seemed to have been attacked by stem-rot and this is not at all unusual. There are no traces of insects having eaten the foliage, apart from the large tomato worm which rarely finds its way under glass and is easily hand-picked and destroyed. There is also a small flea beetle, which punctures the foliage early in summer. Tomato leaves are remarkably free from insect attacks.

The reason for the plants' being thus is probably an overrich soil. I have seen entire batches in both pots and beds wiped out by what the grower believed was not an overdose of chemical manure. The upper parts of the plant will remain green, while the lower foliage turns yellow and the stem will be found practically rotten a little above the soil line. There is less danger of damping off with decayed animal manure than with chemical fertilizer. It is quite possible that you may have added a little too much fertilizer where the plants are affected the most.

Keep a somewhat dry atmosphere, do not spray the plants at all, run the soil a little on the dry side and ventilate freely during pleasant weather.

GRAPES UNDER GLASS.

Will you kindly advise me as to the best direction for greenhouses in Georgia, north and south or east and west? Also, can greenhouse grapes, Gros Colman, be grown at a profit, under normal conditions, by an expert grower, with a view to shipping north?

W. A. H.—Ga.

It does not make much difference whether the houses run north and south or east and west. If they run north and south the sunlight is rather more evenly diffused, however.

While Gros Colman grapes could undoubtedly be successfully grown under glass in Georgia, I doubt if it would be a paying proposition, even though you have an expert grower. Gros Colman is a late grape, a good shipper and a good keeper and, although it is only of second-rate flavor, its large, handsome berries make it sell. To realize fair prices on this grape, it should be placed on the market late in the season, there being a specially good demand for it at Christmas. In your warm, southern climate you could not hold the fruit on the vines in a plump condition to compete successfully with more northerly grown or imported fruit.

With earlier greenhouse grapes, like Black Hambro and Muscat of Alexandria, there would seem to be a better field than with Gros Colman. These could be placed on the northern markets early, when prices are good, but even with these, I am quite doubtful of grape culture under glass being a commercial success in the south. C. W.

TOMATO FOLIAGE WITHERING.

We have tomato plants in a greenhouse and they have withered in the last few days. We have been fumigating for plant lice and are wondering if this smoke has any effect on the plants or if tomato plants have a disease such as this. Kindly advise us.

W. B.—Ill.

If you use tobacco stems for fumigating purposes, in all probability an overdose has scorched the tomato foliage. This is most likely to occur on warm evenings. There is always less likelihood of injury when cool nights are selected. It is always advisable to ventilate early in the morning following a fumigation, and, to lessen likelihood of injury, spraying overhead before the sun strikes the plants is advantageous. As a general rule, tomatoes are never syringed and should have a dry atmosphere, but a spraying of cold water will do no harm and may prevent injury. I would suggest the desirability of using one of the nicotine papers as being much safer than tobacco stems and it is surely much more pleasant to fumigate with them. C. W.

The Market.

Market conditions here were good last week, following the wonderful Mothers' day business, which was the best ever.

Stock of all kinds moved well, owing to the fact that prices were such that the retailer did not endanger his life when telling a customer the prices.

Roses seem to be more plentiful than anything else. Carnations are now at their best and move well. Sweet peas are now getting shorter in stem; in fact, so short that some of the growers are cutting them with the tendrils in order to get any stems at all.

Some excellent snapdragon arrived on the market last week, seemingly a new crop, and is now arriving steadily each day.

Gladioli of the Chicago White, America, Halley and Pendleton varieties are beginning to arrive in goodly numbers and go well.

Cornflowers and marguerite daisies are also arriving in goodly numbers and promise quick sales.

Lilies, both calla and Easter, have been better of late than any time this season. They move rapidly.

Miscellaneous stock of all kinds is arriving in good condition and moving well. The same can be said of green goods.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell reports the first cape jasmine of the season and says so far they have moved better than last season. He also reports a busy week in the sale of hanging baskets.

Spanish iris, the first to be seen at this market, arrived in the last few days.

The establishment of H. W. Sheppard is once more itself, after being decorated with posters and advertising for the Community Chest drive. Mr. Sheppard deserves special mention on this, because he donated his best display window for the cause. Things have been exceedingly brisk at this shop during the last week, especially in the filling of telegraph orders.

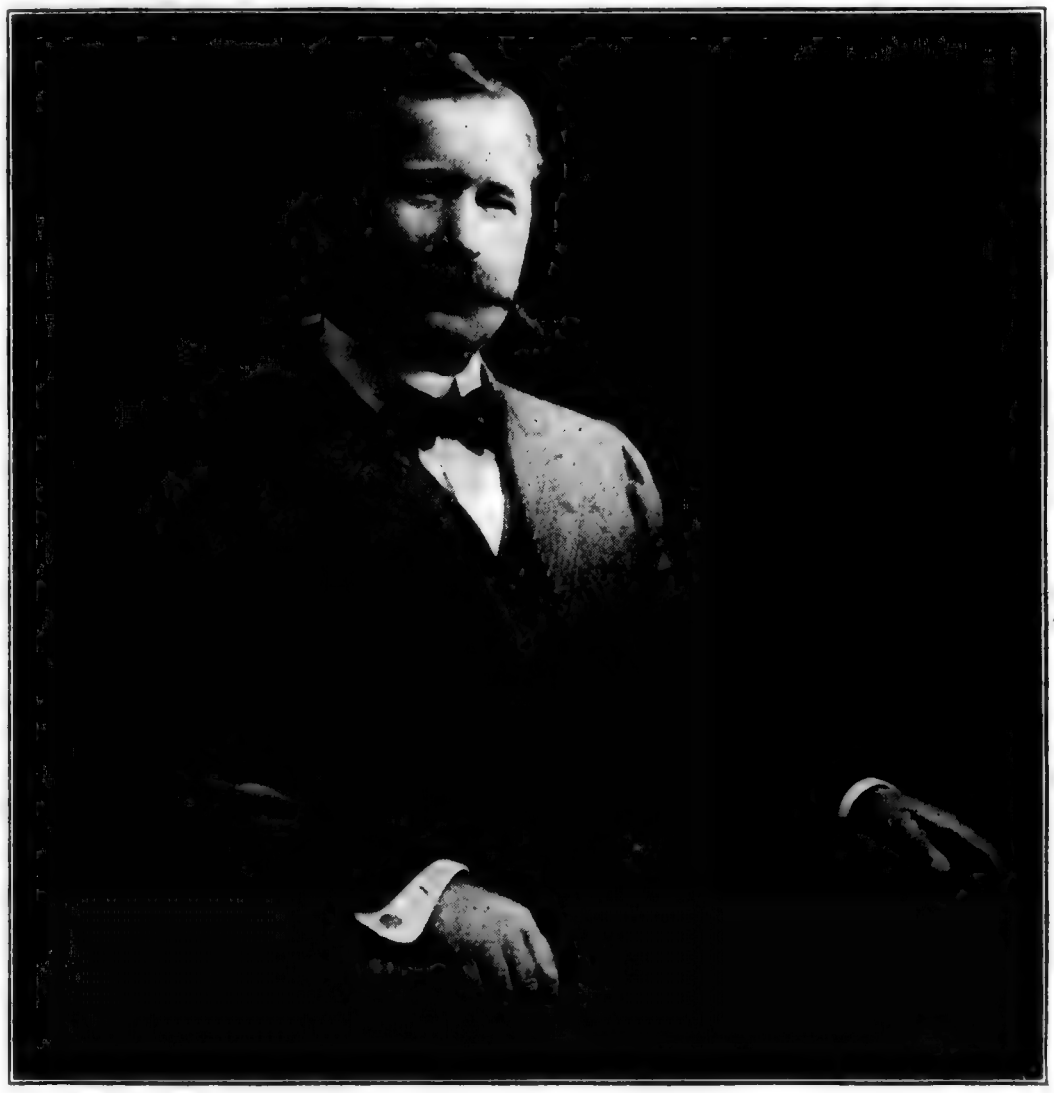
The windows in the store of Julius Baer have been especially pretty the last week. He reports a good lot of funeral orders.

Peter Weiland has had the first of the season's peonies and reports good returns on them.

L. H. Kyrk is receiving a popular flower among the Cincinnati florists; namely, the yellow daisy. He is receiving a large number from Samuel Batson, Kalamazoo, Mich.

E. A. Forter reports a good week in wedding work and corsages.

The Avondale Floral Co. reports the bedding plant season is well under way and going well, judging from the amount of advance orders.



Our over-the-river brother florists seem to be busy these days, judging from the manner in which they are always buying. Joseph Grimm, of R. D. Ruttle, Covington, Ky., seems especially busy.

J. Charles Murphy, of Price Hill, has let plans for the construction of an all-steel house, 60x300 feet, to the Garland Co., Cleveland, O.

The Walnut Hills Floral Bazaar reports a good week in funeral work. Among others was that of Mrs. J. H. Alms, a prominent hotel owner of this city.

The death of Gustav H. Meier, which occurred Monday, May 16, is reported in the obituary column. G. H. K.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

EDWARD TOWILL.

IT is written in Holy Scripture that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country. So it is not strange that Edward Towill, the originator of Rose Milady, has won even more fame from Chicago to Salt Lake City than at his own home in Roslyn, Pa. Milady is not Mr. Towill's only seedling rose. He has hundreds of others. When the national flower show committee needed a new rose for christening purposes, Mr. Towill smilingly supplied with a beauty. Today he is sending out American Legion, a rose of great promise. Soon he plans to send out a variety that is expected to surpass Mrs. Aaron Ward in its rich coloring. Here's to you, Teddy Towill; may your shadow never grow less! Phil.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

STOCK will not be overabundant for Memorial day. The abnormal weather has not favored the holidays in this month.

NOW is the time to think about next season's supply of coal. The market, now at its lowest, is likely to shoot upward when orders become heavy.

THOUGHT regarding shipping instructions will save many florists later dissatisfaction and ground for complaint. Don't expect the other fellow to read your mind.

THANKING readers for their courtesy in sending clippings of Mothers' day advertisements, The Review would like to receive copies of florists' Memorial day advertising.

THE number of lines of business which sought to capitalize on Mothers' day paid the best of compliments to the florists who have been boosting the day since The Review showed the way a decade ago.

THERE seems to be no end to the demand for bedding stock. Buyers are still looking for rooted cuttings of many items, although old-timers would say the season is approaching its end. The fact seems to be that the florists' trade has expanded and diversified until it is almost if not quite an all-the-year-around business.

PARAPHRASING the old saying, "One man's poison is another man's meat," and the Alvin, Tex., jasmine shippers will profit by the losses of the northern peony growers. The Alvin growers have one of the best crops on record and the demand will be unusually strong because of the shortage of peonies caused by late frosts in southern Indiana, Illinois and Missouri.

THOSE who send advertising orders to The Review will lighten the perplexities of the record-keepers and, perchance, obtain greater satisfaction from the service if they will state the fact if the new ad is to displace an old one or is in addition thereto; also, how many times it is to appear. So many advertisers leave the record clerks to guess what is wanted that inevitably some errors of judgment must occur.

ONE of the features of Mothers' day business remarked in almost every report was the great number of telegraph orders. Pink Part advertisers were especially pleased.

MISS EILEEN LOW, representing Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield, England, is in the United States for her second annual business tour. She was at the Blackstone, Chicago, for several days last week.

MORE people will be gardening this year than last, and florists who display a window of seeds and garden tools stand to win some of the business that the grocer and hardware dealer will otherwise divert.

TRAVELING for business is becoming less popular than in the good old days so slow in returning. It costs $3.88 per hundred miles for railroad fare and a berth in a Pullman is as much as a room in a first-class hotel—and in hotels the rates have doubled. With buyers disinclined to place orders with every man who comes along, it is a tough job to make a trip pay.

ARRIVALS aboard the steamship Kroonland at New York last week were Louis Sander, of the famous Brussels firm; Charles Dymaert, president of the Belgian Syndicate of Horticulturists, and Dr. Diemmone van Holze, ministerial inspector of horticulture and a member of the faculty of the University of Ghent. The three represent the Belgian horticultural industry and were on their way to Washington.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. L. S., Ill.—Pecky cypress is the cheapest bench material, lasting quality considered, unless you build of concrete.

THREE OF A KIND.

The summer schedule of trade gatherings in the west includes the following:
Oklahoma State Florists' Association, meeting at Oklahoma City, July 7 and 8.
Texas State Florists' Association, meeting at San Antonio, July 12 to 14.
Kansas State Florists' Association, meeting at Topeka, August 4 and 5.
All the middle western travelers will lay out their routes accordingly.

"THE OFFICIAL FLOWER."

A large part of the public and some florists still believe that the carnation is the "official flower" of Mothers' day. In reality, there is no official flower, and there is no reason why any other flower in bloom on the second Sunday in May should not be as appropriate as the carnation. Over ten years ago Miss Jarvis and her friends wore white carnations in honor of their mothers on the Sunday now known as Mothers' day. But Miss Jarvis long since disowned the florists, and last year she urged that a tiny American flag be worn instead of any flower whatsoever.

Florists should remember in their advertising for next Mothers' day to forget completely the carnation and give prominent mention to other seasonable flowers. Within a few years, if the florists will but do their part, the public will have forgotten the carnation as "the" Mothers' day flower. Then, instead of turning away customers because carnations are too high-priced or are altogether sold, we shall be able to sell them other kinds of flowers and, at the same time, avoid the possible charge of profiteering on carnations.

GOOD TIMES, ANYHOW.

Maybe you've seen the phrase. Who first uttered it, nobody knows, but many business houses have made use of it. It reads: "Hard times aren't coming. The soft times are going; that's all."

The idea is one many business men may take to heart, among them florists. In the easy days of post-war prosperity, a good many found money coming in so much of itself that they ceased to make effort to go out and get it. Compared with those times, today's conditions exact more of all of us. But we shouldn't be misled by that comparison.

"If we had a speedometer on business today," wrote an observant man the other day, "we would find ourselves moving along at a sane speed, one capable of pulling us home in good time, fully within the traffic regulations of common sense. The trouble is that we have been rushing along at a wild, dangerous speed, and there is the feeling now that we have slowed down to a point where we are almost standing still. Yet it doesn't take an optimist to know that we are a long way from standing still in this country today."

Whether the times are harder than they were, or, better stated, not so soft as they were, for all of us who are willing to work they are good times, anyhow.

DECREASED FREIGHT RATES.

There is considerable talk of the possibility of early reductions in freight rates affecting coal and some other purchases of growers. Apparently many florists are convinced that the reductions are not only possible, but probable, and that they will come at an early date.

There is little in the present railroad situation to substantiate this belief. It is admitted that the rates are too high; that they discourage buying and increase to an abnormal degree the cost of coal to the grower. It is equally true, however, that the present rates have never been given a fair trial to show whether or not they produce an abnormal revenue to the roads.

The history of wage adjustment boards has shown that changes in wages, either up or down, are brought about only after long discussion pro and con. It is certain that railroad labor will not accept a reduction with the grace they would accept a gift. They will fight such an attempt with every means at their command.

The railroads themselves have announced that there is no move at present toward a rate reduction, barring the regular adjustment of freight rates which is part of the ordinary routine of business. It took eight months to get the present rates into effect; it will in all probability take at least an equal period of time to get them reduced.

And in the meantime, should reductions come even this fall, the difference in freight rates then and now will be more than offset in the price of coal then and now. To postpone buying coal at this time in the hope of saving money on freight later is to merely insure paying a higher price for coal—a price sufficiently higher to more than wipe out the freight rate saving, which at best is doubtful of materialization.

OBITUARY

Gustav H. Meier.

Gustav H. Meier, for years a grower in the territory around Cincinnati, died early Monday morning, May 16. In 1910, he and his four partners incorporated under the name of the Hyde Park Rose Co. and have been doing business in Cincinnati under that name ever since. The members of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will miss this good grower and even-natured man from their midst. Mr. Meier had been ill with heart trouble for some time previous to his death.

John W. Downes.

Another of Newport's old-time gardeners and florists, John W. Downes, died Wednesday, May 11, at his home, 123 Prospect Hill street, Newport, R. I. He was 64 years of age and had been ill for some time. Mr. Downes was gardener on the estate of the late Major T. K. Gibbs for many years. He had also been gardener on several other well known estates in Newport. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. William Yoemans, with whom he lived. He was never married. W. H. M.

Ladislav Walters.

Ladislav Walters, 58 years of age, died Sunday, May 8, at his home at Cleveland, O. He had been in the florists' business practically all of his life. He operated greenhouses at Forest City park when that institution was first opened. He is survived by his widow, Anna, and his son, Otto. Mr. and Mrs. Walters built up a good business at 5112 Clark street. The store and the greenhouses have been operated by the son, Otto, for some time.

Mrs. Cora Belle Thompson.

Mrs. C. B. Thompson, president of C. B. Thompson & Co., Inc., since its incorporation, died May 6 at Louisville, Ky., at the age of 60 years.

Having been connected with the florists' business for forty years, Mrs. Thompson had gained many friends in the trade. She was an active member of the S. A. F., the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and the Kentucky Society of Florists, besides a number of local civic and fraternal associations.

She married Sam J. Thompson and for a number of years assisted him in the management of the retail store of the firm of George Thompson & Sons. When it dissolved Sam J. Thompson took over the retail end of the business and, with Mrs. Thompson, ran the business under the firm name of S. J. Thompson, until the death of Mr. Thompson in 1909. After the death of Mr. Thompson the business was incorporated under the name of C. B. Thompson & Co., with Mrs. Thompson as president of the concern.

Mrs. Thompson was buried in Cave Hill cemetery Sunday afternoon, May 8. The church services were held at the Church of the Advent, where the Episcopal funeral service was said.

Louis Kirch represented the professional and George W. Plinke the amateur florists among the pallbearers, while the following members of the trade were the honorary pallbearers: William Walker, William Mann, Anders Rasmussen, Henry Fuchs, Emil Walther and August R. Baumer.

Surviving Mrs. Thompson are one son, Edward, who is connected with the firm, one brother, one granddaughter and a number of nieces and nephews, those best known to the trade being Joseph L. Able, secretary and treasurer of C. B. Thompson & Co., Miss Nellie Able, one of the principal designers for the company, and Miss Mary Schleeter, also connected with the firm for a number of years.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Charles K. Swenson has disposed of his land to the City Coal Co., of this city. This is the place where he grew carnations and violets for a number of years. He is tearing down his greenhouses and storing the glass and will take a vacation for one or two years, building again elsewhere when the labor situation is easier. Within the last two years he could not grow marketable carnations or violets owing to the deadly fumes from a brick factory adjacent to his greenhouses. He found no redress from the courts here.

A hearing to make permanent a temporary injunction restraining Mrs. Ellen M. Welch and her son, Andrew W. Welch, from using the trade name, "Welch, the Florist," was held in the Superior court, May 12, in an action brought by George F. Lane. Mr. Lane contends that he bought the copartnership of Welch & Lane, doing business as "Welch, the Florist," from Richard Phillips, the receiver of the copartnership, paying $11,980 for the business, May 5, 1919. The defendants maintain that Mr. Welch had abandoned the trade name "Welch, the Florist." Mr. Lane now has a flower shop on Asylum street and the Welch family have one on Trumbull street, a few doors around the corner.

Nature gave all New England the cold shoulder Wednesday night, May 11. The official mercury registration of the United States weather bureau in this city did not go below the comfortable mark of 35 degrees, but out in the country districts, where temperature really matters, ice was formed and the landscape was white at sunrise. Early tomatoes, lettuce, beets and strawberries, which were forming, were ruined. Asparagus, which was beginning to come along fast, was completely set back. Reports from the tobacco area indicate that plants were out in only a few cases.

Mothers' day business exceeded all expectations. Owing to the four days of cloudy, dismal weather preceding Saturday, May 7, carnations and roses were short. The supply was all sold out early Saturday morning and several hundred customers were turned away, disappointed, from all the stores. The advertisements in the daily papers, taken out jointly by all the prominent florists, were wonderful boosts, and the throngs that besieged all the stores reminded one of those of Easter. One prominent florist remarked, "We had to wait until Sunday for our blooms to open at our greenhouses so that we could fill our orders."

As it is located in the apartment house district, the Linden Florist reports a big demand for window boxes and is having difficulty in securing geraniums and other suitable plants for which there is a heavy demand.

J. Albert Brodrib reports a heavy demand for funeral pieces.

About fifty florists and their wives had supper at the Y. W. C. A., May 9, after which they repaired to Parsons' theater, where they all enjoyed a pleasant evening. N. C. Osborn, of Coombs, had charge of the arrangements.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

It is a satisfaction to be able to record that since Mothers' day business has, after a fashion, maintained the pace then set, running consistently above last year's records for the same days of May. Some of the larger houses report really remarkable gains for the first half of May. There is a suspicion that the satisfactory business may be due to the weather and that it can not be credited to underlying conditions. The weather is responsible for the practical absence of outdoor flowers, and it also is to be credited with the heavy crops of a few weeks ago and the lighter production of indoor stock which has followed, reversing the usual order of the spring. The Chicago market does not make its best showing during times of maximum supply, as then demand is likely to be lightest. The excellent total of sales in May has been the result of moderate supplies of stock, the centering here of a broad demand and the consequent well maintained prices.

During the last week there has been little sign of reaction from Mothers' day. Those of the trade who had feared the after-effects of Mothers' day prices and newspaper charges of profiteering found nothing to indicate that the public had given the incident the slightest attention. The fact seems to be the public appreciates that supply and demand make the price of flowers and that everybody would like to use flowers for Mothers' day, with the result that only those may have them who are willing to pay the price. The inability of many florists to supply flowers at any price May 8 seems to have silenced criticism.

Last week's demand will classify as unusually good for the season, probably due to the absence of outdoor flowers and to the continued cool weather, which is prolonging the season of indoor life. The supply of stock in this market was less than it usually is as mid-May passes. The usual flood of peonies thus far has been only a purling stream flowing gaily by. The southern crop was cleaned out at Mothers' day and since then there have been no receipts heavy enough to create a surplus for storage against the Memorial day demand. The peonies have been bringing good prices.

We had our heavy crop of roses following the warm weather in late winter and the cool May has resulted in light production. This is not to say there is a shortage of roses, for the supply generally has been equal to the demand, but the condition has resulted in an average price considerably better than most growers thought they were going to get. Continued cold weather has helped hold up the quality

Carnations

This is the time of year it is absolutely necessary to order where you know stock is from dependable growers.

SWEET PEAS

We shall have a very large pick for Memorial day—weather conditions have been favorable and the quality promises to be unusually fine for this time of year. Everybody likes sweet Peas—make them one of your leaders.

Snapdragons

This is our famous annual crop—quality, if anything, a little better than ever before. No one can help liking them, they're fine and we shall have a big cut.

We did the biggest week's business in the history of the House for Mothers' day and our mail for several days thereafter was GOOD to read. Here are a few extracts:

From a Cleveland Customer:

"Your stock was the finest we have ever received on a holiday and was superior to anything else we received. The packing was unusually fine. In the future we know whom we can depend on when we need good flowers."

Wm. H. Temblett.

Telegram from Kansas City:

"Miladys are just what I wanted. Thank you for sending Premiers. Does my heart good to see such fine stock. Grand. Many thanks."

Samuel Murray.

From Fargo, North Dakota:

"Wish to compliment you on the Carnations sent us for Mothers' Day. They surely were fine. We had shipments from five or six other growers, but none of them could come up to your stock."

Shotwell Floral Co.

Another from Kansas City:

(This letter is especially interesting because it was not addressed to us, but to another florist, who relayed it to us.)

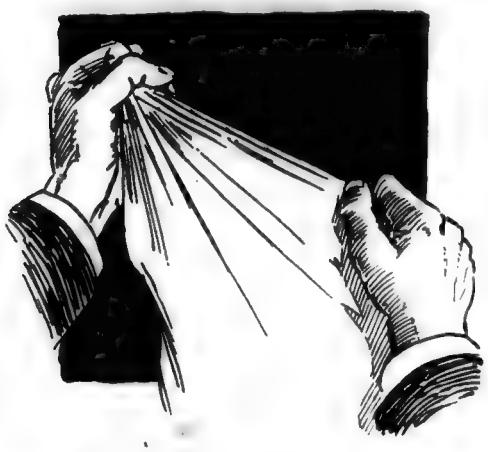
"The writer does not exaggerate one little bit in saying we never had finer stock than was received for Mothers' Day from the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, who will receive repeat orders from us shortly. We sold everything and, though there was the usual dissatisfaction in prices, not one complained of the stock, but on the other hand even the most close buyers commented upon the superiority of the stock."

Sunset Hill Gardens, by Arthur R. Smith.

How it Looked at Des Moines:

"Mothers' Day flowers were fine and we sure want to thank you for your attention—we certainly appreciate the care you give our orders at all times."

Alpha Floral Co.



Similar expressions of approval of our stock and service were in many other letters, including Heepe Co., Akron, Ohio; Schramm Bros., Toledo, Ohio; John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit; Holm & Olson, St. Paul; Williams the Florist, South Bend, Ind.

Improved Beauty Tissue Paper has long been recognized as a superior article. Now, by a most favorable contract, we can offer it to the trade at a price so low it seems a miracle. Along with this record-breaking cut in cost is the very highest quality. Improved Beauty Tissue is extra strong—unusually white—highly glazed—moisture-proof and economical to use.

This is an actual photograph of a bundle of Randall's Beauty Tissue. It contains 4000 sheets of clean, white, strong tissue, put up in ten reams of 400 sheets each. These sheets measure 24x36-inch. Note some wrapping tissue is only 20x30-inch. Thus Improved Beauty contains 43% more paper per sheet than the smaller size.

a minor problem, as they are not easy to move in unusual quantity.

Memorial Day Prospects.

The market has been thrown into a state of uncertainty by the sudden realization that the late frosts in southern Indiana and Illinois did great damage to the peonies on which the trade has depended to a large extent to meet the Memorial day demand. At the time of the frosts it was thought the buds were not far enough advanced to be affected, or that the frosts were not heavy enough to do damage in the more southerly fields. Within the last week, however, it has become apparent that the principal fields from which would come the supply for this backward season have been practically ruined. The more northerly fields will not be ready; the earlier ones are damaged perhaps seventy-five per cent. As a result the market must depend principally on indoor flowers to meet a demand greatly increased by the lack of the usual quantities of outdoor flowers.

There will be only moderate supplies of roses, carnations, sweet peas and other greenhouse flowers. The probability that there is a warm spell due soon to make up for the recent weeks of cold leads to the belief that the supply will be somewhat larger than at present, but how it can make up for the loss of thousands of dozens of peonies no one can see. As a result an unprecedented demand for short roses is expected, as for carnations. As to prices, the belief is that what peonies there are will command 12 cents to 15 cents, that good carnations should fetch 8 cents to 10 cents and that short roses will be less than the demand at 10 cents up. There is no disposition to raise the price of long roses, as it is recognized Memorial day is a quantity day rather than, like Christmas, a quality day.

Ferns will be scarce and those who use quantities in their Memorial day cemetery bouquets will do well to make sure of their supply. The general quotation is $6 per thousand, but some large dealers have withdrawn quotations, fearing the market is going still higher. Other greens are seasonably abundant.

Toot! Toot!

The trade's participation in the Pageant of Progress during the first half of August gives promise of turning into something in the nature of a florists' convention and trade exhibition. There are thousands of florists who would rather visit Chicago during the summer than to go anywhere else. This is the center of the trade to them and they like to come to town and look things over. With about 10,000 square feet of exhibition space available on the Municipal Pier, the committee in charge thinks the time propitious for a big trade gathering. The idea may develop along the lines of inviting all the florists of the middle west to visit Chicago during the pageant and one of the attractions may be a big trade exhibit on the pier, an exhibition participated in by trade firms all over the country who want to take advantage of the opportunity presented. Will Sell Reinberg Store.

Under the law the executors of Peter Reinberg's will have a year in which to carry out his bequests, but Messrs. Kransz and Zender plan a more expeditious settlement of the estate. Mr. Reinberg divided the greenhouses between Mrs. Reinberg and his brother and sisters and there is nothing to prevent an early carrying out of his wishes in the matter. The store, long established at 30 East Randolph street, is not included in the division of the greenhouse property and the executors are now offering the store for sale. They hope to dispose of it and turn it over to the purchaser within the next month and will then turn the greenhouses over to the heirs. With the store fixtures and lease will go the good will of the business, one of the oldest of its kind in the city.

Various Notes.

Two months ago John A. Healy and his sister started a retail store, under the name of Healy's Flower Shop, at 343 North Austin avenue, on the extreme western edge of the city. It was a success from the start; they did $900 worth of business for Mothers' day. But Mrs. Miller was taken ill during the rush and died May 9. The funeral

E. C. Amling and wife arrived from California May 15, for a long visit. They are at the home of Mrs. Amling's mother in Oak Park. Both Mr. and Mrs. Amling have recovered their health in California and their many friends are delighted to see them looking so well.

Clifford Pruner is at home from a trip of several months' duration, in the middle west. He says florists in the grain states have had a good season in spite of the fact that many farmers have held their grain off the market because of the low prices.

Webster W. Randall celebrated his fifty-sixth birthday this week. He was born May 18, 1865.

William Abrahamson, manager of the store fixture department of the A. L. Randall Co., spent a day at Cleveland last week and sold three large display refrigerators and four work benches, showing that the trade still is developing in that town.

Fred Ronsley moved into his new store, 322 South Wabash avenue, the middle of last week, and has been exceedingly busy. While getting settled in the new quarters he has had a volume of business which has made him thoroughly satisfied with the move. There never has been a fully equipped, permanent flower store in that block before.

Edward Meuret says that if he does not find the kind of place he wants to buy, when autumn approaches he will go back to California for the winter.

A. J. Pruyser, of the National Bulb Farms, Benton Harbor, Mich., was in town May 13. Specializing on gladioli and dahlias, he says the season now closing has been the best the concern has had. Additional acreage is being planted and several kinds of Holland bulbs are being tried out.

F. R. Hills is considering the plan of dismantling his range of 35,000 feet of glass at Maywood, selling part of the material, but shipping most of it to California for reërection at his place there, where he needs more houses.

John G. Witt is recovering rapidly from the injuries received in his recent automobile accident. He is able to be about and to assist in the spring rush, which has been heavier than ever the last few weeks. Witt & Son, who operate as the Fernwood Park Floral Co., 10423 Wallace street, say they had a larger spring stock than in any previous year and are practically sold out. Funeral work has kept them up to all hours of the night and several good wedding orders are on the books. They are preparing to start on another new greenhouse.

Nearly all the larger commission houses have had scouts out in quest of peonies. They have returned with discouraging reports.

Peter Weiland writes from Newcastle, Ind., that the April freeze destroyed the buds of festiva maxima, but that other peonies do not appear to have been affected. He ships most of his crop to Chicago, as he says Chicago seems to afford a better market for peonies than does any other city. The cut this year will go to the Chicago

The Market.

Business in the cut flower market last week held its own and that is about all that can be said for it. Clearances were effected only with difficulty and with the price concessions which naturally go with a condition of forced activity. Arrivals were light as far as seasonable items were concerned, such as lilacs and peonies, so that the bulk of the transactions covered staples and items in more or less regular supply. The demand was unusually light in character for the season and no reason was advanced for it, although some believe it was due to a reaction following Mothers' day business. But that, as a possibility, is rather remote. It was evident that the store people were not taking chances and "hand-to-mouth" buying was the rule for those having regular trade. The weather may have been, to some extent, responsible for conditions, as showers were frequent.

Roses were in good supply, and the quality was all that could be desired. American Beauty, now in crop, was in oversupply and the prices of the previous week were anything but firm. The varieties Francis Scott Key and Hadley were also arriving in quantity. Other hybrid teas moved slowly.

Carnations, after Monday, May 9, settled down to nominal values. The quality is fair for so late in the season and dark weather has shortened the cut.

White lilies are not overplentiful. Callas are more plentiful and meet a fair sale.

The supply of orchids is light and about equals the demand. Gardenias are off crop and few are coming in. Some good quality white Bouvardia Humboldtii is arriving and will be a daily commodity for a time, thus helping out the list of wedding flowers.

Valley is in abundant supply; arrivals include both under-glass and frame-grown stock and sales are slow.

Sweet peas continue in fair supply and are of medium quality. The supply of Spanish iris is increasing. Peonies are in small supply; locally grown officinalis moves fairly well. A few Darwin tulips are still coming in, but the demand for them is almost negligible.

In miscellaneous flowers there is a wide choice. Yellow daisies are arriving in quantity and move fairly well. Gladiolus and lilac are in moderate supply. Calendulas, delphiniums and antirrhinums meet with a fairly good demand. Other items available are mignonette, ageratums, pansies, stocks, German iris, pyrethrum and myosotis.

Various Notes.

George Golsner, of College Point, N. Y., has purchased the Mamitsch range of greenhouses and real estate, at Baldwins, N. Y. They will be operated by his sons, Fred and Clarence, who will take possession June 1. This was formerly the property of the late George T. Schuneman.

B. S. Slinn, of the New York Cut Flower Exchange, has made a considerable addition to his quarters on the exchange floor.

Mothers' Day Echoes.

Out of the avalanche of business that Mothers' day brought, the florists themselves see a danger in high prices. They are not slow to express disapproval of carnations at $4 a dozen or 50 cents apiece. Some of the newspapers, a local one among them, have given publicity to what they have termed profiteering in flowers. Other lines of business will not be slow to take advantage of this and use it as ammunition next year.

CARLISLE & SON, Growers, Alvin, Texas

At least one music house here and a candy company, which has branches all over the country, featured Mothers' day in their advertising, with good results. The tremendous sale of flowers will encourage other lines to go after this business in future. William L. Rock, president of the William L. Rock Flower Co., says there were bad impressions left with customers who had to pay more than they felt they should for gifts made through pure sentiment. Mr. Rock would like to see a standard price for carnations for Mothers' day all over the country, so that an order could be sent from coast to coast with a certainty of price. He believes that carnations can be grown anywhere in this country to sell with profit at $3 a dozen. Arthur Newell believes the sentiment of Mothers' day will turn from flowers to more practical gifts if prices are beyond ordinary reach. W. J. Barnes heard several persons remark about high prices and scarcity of stock and say, in effect, "If we can't get flowers, what is the use of trying to celebrate the day?" Joseph Austin says $3 is enough for a dozen carnations. If people feel that they are being held up for flowers, it will not take long for them to decide on something else for a gift. Many others have expressed themselves along this same line and hope that the splendid movement, now so well on the way, will not be spoiled by a desire to

Various Notes.

E. A. Humfeld had the decoration and bouquets for a rainbow wedding, May 4. The bridesmaids carried silvered wicker fans with big clusters of sweet peas tied to the handles. The bride's bouquet was of valley and orchids. A number of Country Club dinners lately have called for elaborate decorations.

Joseph Austin sold many baskets of growing geraniums and ferns for $4 and $5 apiece Mothers' day. Customers seemed pleased with the baskets and with the plants. Nine salesmen waited on trade in the greenhouse May 7 and 8, and could not take care of everyone. Mr. Austin will have a good lot of carnations and other stock for Memorial day.

Three times as many telegraph orders were received and filled by Mrs. T. A. Moseley for Mothers' day as for any other holiday.

When flowers gave out, O'Connell's Court House Flower Shop sold artificial carnations. Three dozen were bought by one customer.

August Luther's force is working until 9 and 10 o'clock every night. Orders for bedding stock are piled up waiting for warmer weather. Fifty hanging baskets were among the sales for Mothers' day.

The Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. is cutting iris, delphinium and gladioli. The peony crop is entirely gone, but other flowers will be fairly abundant in these greenhouses.

The Humfeld-Orear Floral Co. handles handkerchiefs and bric-a-brac for special occasions. Many of these articles were sold for Mothers' day to supplement the flower business.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tobler have bought a home at 4308 Jefferson street and will take possession May 20.

W. J. Barnes had three men making plant baskets for Mothers' day. While Mr. Barnes had more than twice the business of any other Mothers' day, he was well supplied with stock, except red and white carnations. Telegraph orders were heavier than ever and were all filled exactly as ordered.

The space in front of Adolph Mohr's greenhouses, Seventy-fifth and Broadway, has been sodded. Round beds of pink geraniums and dark purple petunias add greatly to the appearance of the place.

R. S. Brown & Son are well supplied with stock for Memorial day. Bedding work is now going on.

"You can't imagine the joy of being able to tell the gas company to take out its meter," remarked August Barbe. Mr. Barbe's home now has gas for heating and cooking from a well on his property. Gas will also be piped to the boiler room of the greenhouses as soon as workmen can get to it.

Bedding work has been started by the Linwood Floral Co. The two Weber brothers and their assistants worked all night, May 7, filling orders for Mothers' day. J. E. K.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The market was extremely active at the commencement of business for last week. The growers had cut so closely, the retailers had sold out so cleanly, that there was nothing whatever to offer the day after Mothers' day. This condition lasted all day Monday and all day Tuesday, but by Wednesday the stock began to catch up. It continued catching up on Thursday and Friday. By Saturday there was a surplus, despite the May processions in the churches, where flowers are freely used. Prices steadily declined throughout the week. By Saturday, they were about one-half the figures of seven days earlier.

Roses were the feature of the trading. The crop was large and the quality generally good. Other features of the market were the activity of orchids, the quality and good support given valley, the heavier receipts of outdoor peas and delphiniums, and the peonies, gladioli and Spanish irises from the south.

Memorial Day Prospects.

The supply houses, the barometer of floral affairs, have been rushed with orders for Memorial day far more than usual. This means that the buyers believe that there will be a demand and they are ordering with confidence. The supply of cut flowers promises to be large. There will be peonies, roses and carnations, probably of excellent quality, besides a good assortment of other flowers.

The Fire in South Mole Street.

A fire broke out in a restaurant at 3 South Mole street at 6 o'clock Friday morning, May 13. The horticultural significance of this fire was that it spread to 5 South Mole street, the business home of Charles E. Meehan, wholesale florist, and there did more damage than in the building where it originated. Fortunately, Mr. Meehan's flowers were safe in the icebox and the books and papers in the safe were uninjured. His actual loss is covered by insurance. The happy feature of the incident was the instant shelter offered by William J. Miss Baker and Mrs. Nauley, Kenneth Meehan and Edward Riley are working away, side by side, with hearty good will. Mr. Meehan believes that it will not be long before he can return to his own store.

Various Notes.

The show of outdoor flowers of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in Masonic hall, Ardmore, Tuesday afternoon and evening, May 17. Members were admitted on cards; others were charged 25 cents. The gate receipts were given to the Bryn Mawr hospital.

Charles P. Rich, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, spent several days in this city last week. Monday he went to Riverton and Riverview as the guest of J. D. Eisele and Eugene H. Michel; Tuesday he visited William Kleinheinz, at Lynwood Hall; Wednesday he went with Robert Craig to Norwood.

Raymond Brunswick says that the Memorial day demand made it necessary for the M. Rice Co. to commence night work May 16. Wreaths of red poppies are proving popular.

Walter Mott, of Beacon, N. Y., was here May 12 in the interest of Benjamin Hammond. Mr. Mott has many friends.

The Charles F. Krueger Co. has been making a fine display of roses in all the leading varieties at the Reading Terminal Flower Shop.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer considers that the sale of red poppies, emblem of the American Legion, is phenomenal. They are understood to be for boutonnieres to be worn Memorial day.

Owners of local gardens are charging an admission fee to be used for the benefit of the Women's Horticultural College, at Ambler, Pa.

and for cemetery calls throughout the year, you will find these beautiful, dignified and practical cemetery basket vases popular, sure-selling and good repeaters. Glass vases break and metal holders are cheap looking. You can now offer your customers a flower holder that is really attractive instead of merely a container for water and flowers.

In each basket is furnished a heavy rust-proof spiked galvanized iron container and this spike protrudes through a hole in the bottom of the basket so when stuck in the soil it holds the basket in position. Colors: Green, Brown and Gray. We furnish you advertising folders to send to your customers with each dozen baskets. Order today and you will order again.

The McCALLUM COMPANY

Headquarters and Factories, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Arthur T. Potter, who is gardener at the Hammersmith Farm. For one of them he received a certificate of merit and for the other honorable mention.

Considerable time was given to a discussion of tree diseases, especially the peach-leaf curl, which is believed to be aggravated by the northeasterly winds that are prevalent in the spring of the year and against which disease the horticulturists have no effective remedy. It was the general opinion at the meeting that, if something could be found to retard the leafing of the trees a short time, until warmer weather, the disease could be eliminated or controlled.

Various Notes.

"'Say It with Flowers,' has caught a responsive public chord," says Oscar Schultz, who reports a brisk business this spring.

Smith the Florist has been making a special drive with kentia palms at $1 to $3.

The Johnson Greenhouses have several thousand pot-grown tomato plants, also hundreds of flowering plants and geraniums.

The death of John W. Downes, which occurred Wednesday, May 11, is reported in another column of this issue.

A. Brandt is pushing his new Narragansett Bay pansies with excellent success. W. H. M.

Galesburg, Ill.—W. D. Eskridge is preparing to start in the florists' business. He has built a store and office, 16x20, in a residence district and will put up glass as soon as he can, in the meantime handling cut flowers obtained from the older florists here or from the Chicago market.

Springfield, Mass.—William Schlatter & Sons are fitting up a fine new store around the corner from their present location. The front is being specially remodeled to meet their requirements and when they are in their new home it will be one of the most up-to-date flower stores in New England. Removal is expected to be completed by July 1.

ELCO BRAND OF RIBBONS

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was good for the florists last week. There was a great demand from surrounding towns for commencement exercises and there was also a great deal of funeral work. Prices dropped back to just about what they were before Mothers' day. Roses, carnations and sweet peas are in the market and bringing a good price. Some fine snapdragons are seen and bring a good price.

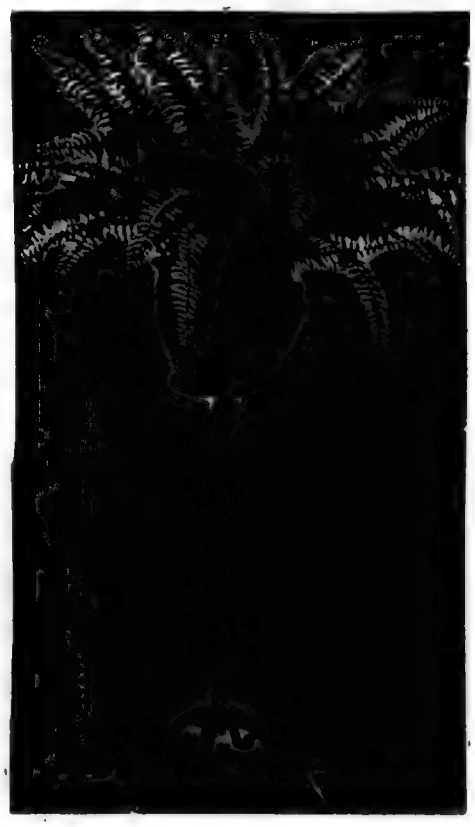
Various Notes.

The coöperative decorating of the theaters by the florists for Mothers' day proved to be a good business getter. The Jefferson was decorated by the Blossom Floral Co., the Strand by the Doswell Floral Co. and the Orpheum by the Lanternier Floral Co. Southern smilax, palms and baskets were used. Mothers' day slides were shown and thus the day was brought before a number of people who, probably, had given no thought to it.

Edgar Wenninghoff reports that he was forced to close his store early in the day, as everything was sold and he was unable to obtain any more stock.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports that the trade at the cemetery at Mothers' day far exceeded that of any previous year. The weather was ideal and people took the opportunity of remembering their dead. The store was completely sold out of all blooming stock and it was necessary to close early.

The Blossom Floral Co. furnished the decorations and bouquets for the marriage of Dr. Connett's daughter, of Decatur, Ind.



W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some fine sweet peas.

J. C. Neilsen, representative of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was a trade visitor here last week. S. N.

Brockton, Mass. — Mrs. Christina Blood has been carrying on the business since the death of her husband, Elmer E. Blood.

Greeley, Colo.—The store where Ellis the Florist formerly was will be occupied in the near future by N. Sato, who will open the Japanese Flower and Art Shop.

Franklinville, N. Y.—The Franklinville Greenhouses, formerly managed by J. A. Godfrey, are now owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Myrick. They took possession January 1 and now have on hand a large stock of flowering and bedding plants.

A beautiful, green enameled, adjustable

Henry Penn's Ideal of Business Philosophy

When I cease striving for that which is HIGHEST,
I find myself reaching for that which is HIGHER;
When I cease striving for that which is HIGHER,
I find myself reaching out for that which is HIGH;
When I cease striving for that which is HIGH,
I find myself content with that which is LOW.

(Robert Spear)

When I cease striving for that which is HIGHEST,

The Market.

The wholesale market last week was by no means overloaded and the shortage of the week previous was not felt so much, for the demand was not so large. For Mothers' day all our local consignors cut closely and that kept the market on an even grade all week.

The retailers report that an unusual amount of funeral work was done last week. This week, no doubt, the market will get back to where it is usually at this time of the year. Increased consignments of anything seasonable are being looked for, especially with large shipments of cape jasmines from Texas, the first of which arrived here the latter part of last week.

There seem to be plenty of good roses coming in daily, but the local and shipping demand about cleans them up daily, with excellent prices.

Carnations are still off crop, but with plenty of good, clear weather there should be plenty for all demands in another week.

Peonies of the better quality are selling well, and there will be plenty from now on until Memorial day, when the demand should be large.

Gladioli are coming in well and the market cleans up on them daily, with good prices. Sweet peas are plentiful again and this week should see an abundance in all grades. Valley is having a good call for the many weddings daily. Much outdoor stock is coming in and it has a fair call. Other stock seen daily includes Easter lilies, calendulas, delphiniums, cornflowers, Narcissus poeticus, white and yellow daisies, stocks and candytuft.

New flat ferns are arriving, and the old stock is about exhausted. There is plenty of fine asparagus, smilax, adiantum and other greens, and the demand is large.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at publicity headquarters May 12.

When President W. A. Rowe called the meeting to order there were thirty-five present. After the meeting had been opened the trustees reported, through Jules Bourdet, that the club's thirty-fifth anniversary meeting would be held at W. J. Pilcher's range in Kirkwood, Mo., on invitation of Mr. Pilcher. Chairman Bourdet then reported for the publicity committee and said that, from reports, this Mothers' day was one of the best in recent years, made possible through the work of this committee. At the conclusion of his remarks he said that the present committee's term expired May 31, and suggested that in its place an allied Florists' Trade Association be perfected. It was voted that this matter be taken up under new business and fully discussed.

A. H. Hummert, chairman of the S. A. F. local membership drive committee, stated that his committee would, by the next meeting, make a report of its progress.

B. M. Duggar, president of the St. Louis Garden Club, spoke on the club's spring flower show, May 20 and 21, at the Missouri Botanical Garden, and stated that any assistance of the members to make it a success would be appreciated by the members of the Garden Club. Mr. Duggar was given a rising vote of thanks.

Edward Krummrich, of Belleville, Ill., filed application for membership. The trustees reported 40 cents in fines collected for failure to wear a flower at the meeting. The secretary then announced that a number of members had so far failed to pay their annual dues and that, unless the dues are paid by July 31, these members would be suspended. It was moved that he send each delinquent a final notice.

The matter of perfecting an Allied Florists' Trade Association was then taken up for general discussion, in which all present took part. At its conclusion it was decided, on motion, that the present publicity committee be continued for one more month and that the committee be given power to organize an association of this kind and report back to the Florists' Club at the July meeting.

The trustees were instructed and given full power to act in the arrangements for the annual florists' picnic the latter part of July and report such back at the next club meeting. The treasurer's report showed a healthy balance to the club's credit. The members of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. were given a rising vote of thanks for the perfect arrangements in their building for holding club meetings as well as committee meetings.

Pink Part Publicity.

At St. Valentine's day, Max Cohen, who operates the Jackson Floral Shop, doing a neighborhood trade near the corner of Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, on the far south side of the city, took twenty-four orders for out-of-town delivery—but he did not receive any orders from out-of-town for Chicago delivery. As Mr. Cohen transferred each of his outgoing orders to one or another of the advertisers in the Pink Part of The Review, it was a natural conclusion that there was where he should put his card to let the trade know of his facilities for making Chicago deliveries. He did it. His first ad, only four inches, appeared April 21. Within the next seventeen days he received more than forty orders by wire. They came from all over America and went to all corners of Chicago, but as the average size was a little over $5 he could well afford to send a messenger with each delivery.

Is it any wonder Mr. Cohen called The Review on the telephone to say how pleased he is?

The question of holding a fall flower show then came up. After a general discussion it was laid over for further discussion at the next club meeting. Mothers' day business was next brought up for discussion, and all retailers present in their remarks said they never experienced a better business day than Mothers' day of this year.

The meeting then adjourned. The next meeting will take place June 9.

Various notes.

The dedication of the new entrance to the Missouri Botanical Garden took place May 10, with many prominent citizens present. President Edwards Whitaker, of the board of trustees of the garden, opened with an address of welcome and introduced Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, who formally opened the gate to admit many visitors in waiting and was the principal speaker of the day. Following the dedication, a luncheon was served in the floral display house to directors and officials of the garden, with their friends and guests. Among the florists present as invited guests were W. A. Rowe, L. J. Bourdet, W. C. Smith, L. Baumann, H. C. Irish, Hugo Schaff, L. P. Jensen, George H. Pring and J. J. Beneke, all members of the Florists' Club. The incessant rain throughout the day kept away many of those invited.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained by Mrs. E. E. Windler,

THEN AND NOW

A Memorial Day Thought

It seems like only day before yesterday when all we school children used to parade to the cemetery on Memorial Day.

Don't you remember how the girls in their white dresses, had their hair all prinked up with pink and blue ribbons?

Likewise, how like Sam Hill our feet hurt in those squeaky Sunday-go-to-meeting shoes!

Mostly most of us, liked the parade all right, but were not exactly keen on the gloom side of decorating graves.

Happily, for all of us now, the gloom side of Memorial Day is its minor part.

It is one of beautiful heart-felt remembrances.

As such—flowers are more fitting than ever.

They, and ONLY they, can best express the unspoken message that mingles sadness and gladness.

When your F. T. D. customers want to limit their floral expression to $5, order our $5 Hobby Box or the Tisket Tasket Basket of Flowers.

Mothers' day this year was better than any they have ever had, fully fifty per cent better than last year, and that it is now looked upon as one of the greatest days for the trade. Everything sold well. Made-up plants had a great call and clean-up sales were reported by all. J. J. B.

The Market.

Except for long-stemmed roses, stock continued short on the market last week. The demand continued normal and there was not sufficient stock to supply it. There should be a large supply of outdoor shrubbery at this season, but it is not to be had this year; there are some syringa and weigela to be had, but even this is poor, having been blasted by the late cold snap. Peonies are not anything like what they should be and the supply is limited. Spanish iris is good, but there are not many to be had. Roses are holding up well, owing to the cool weather, but the rainy and cloudy weather causes a scarcity. Sweet peas were on the short side, as also were carnations. In fact, there was a shortage of all lines of stock. While it was not so acute as in the previous week, yet much more could have been han-

The Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held Monday, May 9. Robert L. Graham, Jr., presided and the attendance was good. The principal business of the evening was advertising; this brought out a live discussion. The members of the advertising committee, whose term of office had expired, made their report and were discharged with the thanks of the club. In discussing this question, there were some who thought it foolish to advertise when everyone was having so much trouble to secure stock. There is no doubt that this is a good argument if the florists are going to permit such a condition to exist, but we need only go back a few weeks, when there was more stock on the market than could be handled. The majority, however, were of the opinion that it pays to advertise; that the present shortage is only temporary; that the shortage, when stock is normal, is caused by advertising, and, at such times, it is the business of the grower to see that there is more stock. As this meeting was held the day after Mother's day, the annual discussion of the price of white carnations came up, but, as everything was as high and scarce as carnations this year, it did not amount to much. There was one point in this discussion that was significant, that other flowers were used more than ever. While the day is fresh in our memories, let us remember the fact that, with the proper education of the public, the dependence on carnations for Mothers' day would soon become a thing of the past.

Various Notes.

Bedding plants are now at the height of the season, and the man who has a good stock of them is fortunate, indeed. A batch of good geraniums is as good as money in the bank. Potted roses are being sold at prices that are ridiculous. Joseph S. Merritt, who changed his crop and potted up some 5,000 Radiance about two months ago, is entirely sold out. I heard it estimated recently that there would be about half enough bedding plants to supply the demand.

The Flower Mart, which was to be held May 12, owing to a heavy downpour of rain was postponed to Friday, May 13, and, although this is considered an unlucky combination, it did not prove such to the Women's Civic League. These ladies have a good press agent and the weather conditions were turned to good account. Every morning paper in the city Friday morning carried a news article bemoaning the fact that the rain had compelled them to postpone the sale, but, as plants should at that time be in the ground, the Mart would be held Friday, rain or shine; that if it rained a vacant store at 518 North Charles street had been secured and the sale would be held there. About noon Friday the sun burst through the clouds and the sale was on in the open. The writer visited the sale about 4 o'clock in the afternoon; from Saratoga street up Charles street to the Monument, nearly everyone he met was carrying a plant of some sort. As one entered the circle on the south side of the Monument, the Florists' Club had its booth. This was presided over by Mrs. Ellicott Worthington and a bevy of young society ladies in garden hats and yellow costumes, with Robert L. Graham, Jr., Joseph S. tural advice to the buyers. "Say It with Flowers" pennants were everywhere about this booth, and a large amount of bedding stock was sold. All of the approaches to the Monument were closed one square from the sale; even the bus line was diverted for the day. The park board had the base of the monument decorated with large palms and other foliage plants and altogether it was a beautiful sight. As one walked about, the most interesting feature was the people, and there were thousands. Baltimore's society element rubbed shoulders with the foreigners from the Pratt street district; then the colored portion was there from Druid Hill avenue. In fact, every race that makes up the population of the city was there. As the writer looked upon this vast throng, the thought came to him that these women of the Women's Civic

The Market.

Business here continues favorable and all florists, with the exception of a few small dealers, report business prospects are bright. Carnations, peas, roses and summer flowers are becoming plentiful and the prices are about the same as before Mothers' day. Ferns for design work have been scarce as well as fancy greens, but the new crop is coming in now.

Various Notes.

The manager of the Gay Street Floral Co. reports that retail business has been brisk and everything is being cleaned out, with the exception of a few lilies, of which the firm has an oversupply, but which wholesale readily.

The Munk Floral Co. has a large supply of roses now and they are of good quality for this time of the year.

E. Underwood and the staff at the store of Underwood Bros. are working early and late these days. A large amount of funeral work and the great demand for bedding flowers and porch boxes keep them busy.

Mrs. M. A. Wilson is doing a good landscape business along with her regular greenhouse work.

E. F. Jones says she has been using Solomon's seal and clematis and other wild vegetation as a background and for filling in on designs. She says funeral work gives her no rest and she is busy both Sunday and week days. Some beautiful geraniums of velvety wine color are to be found in the greenhouses.

The Katz-Bryce Clothing Co. opening Thursday, May 12, was attended by large crowds. Friends of the establishment gave twenty-four baskets of flowers in honor of the opening and these were all large and beautiful.

The Neil Flower Shop had a large number of corsages Friday, May 13, which goes to show that the "jinx" did not get them.

Many soldiers' bodies from France arrived here May 13 and the city resounded with the thunder of cannons which saluted the heroes. Many were former prominent citizens and many designs were made for the burials.

James McKellar had a busy day Monday, May 9. A large blanket of Premier, with a raised cluster of Ophelia, was made for the funeral of Mr. Loeb. Mr. Schoedinger, who had charge of the funeral, made many comments on the beauty of this piece of work to friends who viewed it. Mr. McKellar has ordered another automobile.

Joseph Katona has added a Dodge truck to his delivery service and finds it a great help in these busy days of landscape and design work. He was forced to make sprays of primrose blooms and other flowers of like nature for Mothers' day funerals and, to the astonishment of many, they made beautiful and lasting designs. Mr. Katona has many beautiful ferns, but they are much in demand and a few more days will see them rapidly diminished.

than the florists anticipated. Stock, under usual Mothers' day circumstances, possibly would have been plentiful, but the unheard-of demand this year caused a shortage throughout this vicinity. The weather was ideal and this had much to do with business. A tremendous trade was done at the cemeteries and cut flowers and plants of all kinds were disposed of in big quantities. Since Sunday, May 8, however, the weather has been anything but settled. Bedding stock is moving fast and the stock is in excellent condition. Considerable anxiety is being felt, however, among the majority of growers as to what will be on the market for Memorial day. So far, our season is fully two weeks ahead of time and this leaves little hope for much stock for that day.

Indoor stock is not overplentiful along some lines, although the supply of roses from out-of-town growers is large. Stock is in good condition and the demand just about breaks even with the supply. Columbia, Premier, Butterfly and Ophelia are in the heaviest demand here, although other varieties hold their own. Good Sweetheart roses reach us daily and sell well. The crop of carnations is becoming smaller daily and prices are normal again.

Sweet peas are plentiful and are improving in quality. A demand for orchids is noticed. Valley is plentiful and the demand good. Outside valley is plentiful just now and some splendid stock is seen. Fancy iris is reaching us daily and sells well. Large quantities of outdoor-grown lilacs are seen and the demand is fair. Darwin tulips in a profusion of colors reach us in quantities and the demand is good.

Jonquils are slowing up considerably now. Mignonette does not move fast. Calendulas are in fair supply, with a good demand. Extra good snapdragons reach us and the demand for this stock is heavy. Forget-me-nots are plentiful. A few good early peonies are seen and sell readily. Larkspur is arriving and sells well. Yellow daisies and marguerites are particularly plentiful. Callas are in good supply and move well. Greens are plentiful with the exception of fancy ferns, which are scarce in this market.

Various Notes.

Charles W. Curtis has finished planting about two acres of early white asters of his own particular strain. These usually bloom about two to three weeks earlier than any other kind in this locality.

as far as bedding stock and shrubs are concerned. They have moved more stock this season than at any other time. Funeral work is also a heavy item lately and considerable stock from their own houses has been used.

Felix Alberts, of Alberts the Florist, who has been ill with lumbago for about five weeks, has been persuaded to go to Alden, N. Y., to take the mud baths. He left Rochester Monday, May 9.

Among the visitors who called on the trade last week were Mrs. Herrick, of Brockport, N. Y., and Harry E. Brandt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

George T. Boucher had an excellent window display last week, in which ornamental bird baths and porch jars were featured. The work on his new greenhouses is progressing favorably and stock is being planted. He reports unusually good business at his store.

Lilac day, one of the chief events during the season at Highland park, was observed Sunday, May 8. The weather was ideal and many thousands passed through the groves. The city band was in attendance. The display was far below any normal display seen there, owing to the fact that the severe freezing weather of April 10 and 11 did much damage to the buds. The azaleas and rhododendrons do not appear to have suffered any injury and give promise of a fine display. The azaleas will possibly be in full bloom from May 15 to May 20.

John Vick, of Charlotte, N. Y., reports good business this spring. His bedding stock is clearing well and is moving considerably faster than in former years.

Louis Collatos has just had a large icebox installed. The smaller one is inadequate to care for his stock. He reports business good and says his Mothers' day business was the largest ever.

Through the expiration of his lease, the proprietor of the Aster Flower Shop was forced to vacate. A suitable location has not yet been found by him.

Easter lilies are coming in strongly and have cleaned up daily, as have callas. Miniature roses are moving slowly. A small supply of delphinium is arriving and has been picked up quickly. OHIO GROWERS BEGIN.

To support an advertising campaign to promote the use of flowers for Mothers' day was the decision reached at the meeting, April 28, of the Cleveland branch of the Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association. Directly thereafter, in a few moments, subscriptions totaling more than $600 were made among the men present.

An advertisement was inserted in local papers twice in the week just preceding Mothers' day, ten inches deep and three columns wide, suggesting in well worded sentences the significance of Mothers' day, and urging the public to "send mother flowers or wear one in her memory." "Your florist can serve you well," said the advertisement, and was signed, "The Flower Producers of Cleveland."

The plan proved decidedly effective. Largely as a result of it, commission

The only fly in the ointment for Mothers' day was the shortage of carnations. Denver, Colo.—Something new in flower stores is Olinger's Mortuary Flower Shop, soon to be opened here. A contract has been made with A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, to furnish fixtures by June 1.

Kokomo, Ind.—W. W. Coles has leased his greenhouses and dwelling to Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Coffey, who are now the proprietors of the Coles Flower Shop. Mrs. Coffey is the daughter of Mr. Coles and has conducted the store for the last seven years. Mr. Coles will continue to conduct the nursery end of the business, but will first take a rest until fall.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

Fort Worth, Tex.—Gordon Boswell's lease on his store, at 611 Houston street, has expired and for the summer months he will do business at 2000 Jennings street.

Paxton, Ill.—E. B. Morgan says his company has found a strong demand for all its surplus stock advertised in The Review. Their sales since January 1, he says, have been the heaviest on record, but they could have sold much more stock in nearly all lines, as their supply was exhausted before the demand began to subside.

BOSTON.

The Market.

For a day or two after Mothers' day there was a marked scarcity of flowers, and prices ruled high, particularly on carnations and roses. The high prices checked buying. Retailers, in fact, boycotted the growers in great measure and, as a consequence, prices started to tumble, until before the end of last week they had fallen to the level prevailing before the Mothers' day rise. The long spell of cold weather was followed by higher temperatures May 15, 16 and 17 and this caused a marked increase in supplies and a corresponding decline in values.

Carnations, which a week ago were held at $12 to $15 per hundred, are down to one-third or less of these prices and are moving slowly at that. A change to better values is probable before the end of the week, as growers will leave their crop on as long as possible for the coming tremendous Memorial day demand. Roses are decidedly weaker, with short-stemmed stock down to $2 to $3 per hundred, and there is a decline of fully fifty per cent in the values of other grades compared with a week ago. The hot weather May 15 caused a weak market May 16, and there was considerable unsold stock.

Lilies have not been overabundant and last week made as much as $35 per hundred. Callas also held up their heads and went to $25. The latter are nearing the end of their season and it has been a quite satisfactory one. Sweet peas are poorer in quality and the warm weather affects their color.

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

It will be a week or two before any outdoor ones are available. Marguerites are something of a glut and few flowers now sell over $2 per hundred.

There are some shipments of ten weeks' stocks, feverfew and Gypsophila elegans; also good quantities of calendulas, bachelor's buttons, pansies and snapdragon. The two last-named are quite druggy. Cut lilac comes in from several growers. It promises to be all gone before Memorial day. Some German iris appeared last week, and some Gladiolus America and Mrs. Francis King came in and made $3 per hundred. There are also some small lots of Peach Blossom gladioli. Outdoor lily of the valley made its appearance last week to supplement the forced stock. Some fine delphiniums from under glass sell well.

Cattleyas are in shorter supply and are mainly Mossiæ. Gardenias are scarce and short-stemmed. From present indications, artificial sprays and wreaths, which have for years been used in great numbers here for Memorial day, will be more abundant than ever this season. Some of the retailers have large forces at work preparing a fine and varied line of these designs. Without them it would be utterly impossible to fill half the Memorial day demands.

was a novel and most interesting display of forced blueberry plants covered with ripe fruits. These included a few native Massachusetts bushes, some propagated by Miss Elizabeth C. White, at White Bog, N. J., from wild New Jersey stock specially selected on account of the size of berries they bore, and some hybrid blueberries under name, received from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, through F. V. Coville, botanist in that bureau. Berries shown were five-eighths of an inch in diameter and the prediction is freely made that berries an inch in diameter will undoubtedly be obtained before long. A special premium of $50, offered by Miss M. R. Case for improvements in blueberry culture, was awarded to Douglas Eccleston, superintendent for Albert C. Burrage, for the fine and attractive display of high-grade blueberries made.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society is planning for a great bulb show in the spring of 1922, with some $6,000 in premiums. There is also a probability of a large show of ferns at one of the fall exhibitions. Some years ago the autumn exhibitions of stove and greenhouse plants, ferns, etc., were one of the great features of the year at Horticultural hall. It gradually died out with the decline in the culture of fine-foliaged plants, but may be reinstated.

An immense stock of Memorial day wreaths has been prepared by Penn's and is being largely advertised. An attractive window feature last week was an apple tree loaded with delicious looking fruits which most of the many passers-by imagined were real, while, as a matter of fact, these and lovely baskets of oranges, grapes, bananas, peaches and pears were all wax.

William Sim, when called on last week, was busy planting out his carnations. These are planted in loam in shallow benches and lift with a nice ball. They are planted in beds containing six rows each, spaced eight to nine inches apart each way. The plants were well branched and when planted out were almost as large as some growers have them at lifting time in August. Some 200,000 are grown here. In the various houses crops of Rosette, Rosalia, White Delight, Pink Delight, Ward, etc., were still carrying a fine crop of high-grade flowers. Laddie looked fine and Mr. Sim remarked that this variety brought as much as $20 per hundred for Mothers' day.

Janiten & Kunan, of Arlington, were the first shippers of America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli into the wholesale market—splendid stalks a yard in length.

Frost on the morning of May 12 did great damage to market and other growers in New England. Asparagus,

The Market.

The demand for flowers of all kinds last week was remarkably good, with the exception of American Beauty roses. The principal demand, however, was for carnations and, in many cases, the wholesale houses were compelled to divide the product among their customers, each customer getting only a portion of his order. Each day last week found the wholesale houses practically cleaned up, with the exception of the latter part of the week, when a few roses were seen to be on hand. The varieties of roses in the market during the last week included Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Pilgrim, Ophelia, Sunburst, Ward, Richmond and White Killarney. Easter lilies continue to be in demand and are practically cleaned up daily. Gladioli are also in demand and some of the finest ever seen in this section were on sale and cleaned up at excellent prices. The demand for valley the early part of the week was exceptionally good, but toward the latter part of the week some valley was to be had. Orchids also seemed exceptionally good and at fair prices. Other flowers on the market included yellow daisies, calendulas, iris, narcissi and stocks, all of which cleaned up early. Considerable inquiries are being made for peonies for Memorial day. We are in hopes that we shall be able to take care of the demand for this season. From now on the trade is getting ready for the last special holiday of this season, Memorial day, and from all indications it should be the largest on record, as the various

The Market.

That Mothers' day is becoming one of the best flower days of the year was fully attested here last week, when the demand far exceeded the supply, without regard to price or quality. For several years no notice was given the day by the public generally, but about five years ago persistent advertising, on the part of a few of the more enterprising downtown retailers, caused it to be recognized, although limiting its demands almost exclusively to the carnation.

This year a concerted and coöperative advertising campaign was inaugurated and the day became one of the biggest business days of the season—and this notwithstanding the scarcity of flowers and the great difficulty the retailers encountered in getting their supply, even when paying the seemingly exorbitant prices demanded by the growers. Carnations ran as high as $25 per 100 and roses reached a maximum of $60 per hundred and even at these prices the stock was of mediocre quality.

The high range of prices called forth adverse articles in the daily press, which laid the blame at the door of the retailers, without dividing any of the honors with the wholesalers and growers. The week following Mothers' day has been rather quiet, although a number of small sociables, dances, weddings and receptions have combined to use everything up each day. With Memorial day only two weeks away, everyone is busy making preparations for another big business. Potted bedding plants will be especially active, as most of the early outdoor spring flowers will be on their last run. An increased demand for artificial designs is being prepared for.

Various Notes.

The range of greenhouses and the land on which they stand, on Harkness and Slocum streets, Providence, that have been operated by Thomas Curley for a number of years, were sold Wednesday, May 11, to Michele Iannotti. The property was advertised for sale at auction, but did not bring the price fixed by the owner and the property was retained. Later it was disposed of at private sale to Mr. Iannotti, although the price paid was not made

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Portland, Ore.—A. Roy Kerr plans to erect a small greenhouse sometime during the coming summer. He will grow bulbs for the wholesale trade, besides growing plants and cut flowers.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Seldom has there been such a complete clean-up as there was on Mothers' day this year. Much of the outdoor stock was damaged by the heavy rains of the latter part of the week previous to Mothers' day, while orders kept pouring in from all parts and, fortunately, for all classes of flowers, carnations, of course, having the call and especially white. Wholesalers and retailers alike all had their hands full and only the scarcity of stock prevented much more business being done. Roses cleaned up daily, almost before they were shown, while orchids, valley and all choice lines of stock sold readily at good prices. Of plants, there were practically none on the market outside of ferns and palms, but Mothers' day is a cut flower day, anyway, and it kept up its reputation here. Some fine publicity was given by the local press and this undoubtedly helped matters considerably. On the whole, it was a most satisfactory and profitable day and, fortunately, there has been little let-up since; all stock has cleaned up well on the market daily.

Various Notes.

At the store of Walter Armacost & Co., there is now the most complete line of baskets ever seen in Los Angeles and the retailer would be hard to please that could not satisfy himself and his customers from such a display.

A. W. Smith, of Prescott, Ariz., stopped off here between trains on his way to San Francisco. Mr. Smith says business conditions are improving in Arizona and he is interested in chrysanthemum growing there. Owing to the cool nights and dry atmosphere, the incurved types like Bonnaffon do finely.

Captain Grey has always a pleasant greeting for old friends at the store of Howard & Smith, at Ninth and Olive streets.

At the store of the California Floral Co., statice continues a leader and heavy shipments are leaving there regularly. Paul Miller said that their Mothers' day business was excellent in every way. Some of the finest cornflowers ever seen on the market are being shown now, with stems from thirty to thirty-six inches long. These are grown by Victor Swenson.

Among the orders for Mothers' day was one from the proprietor of a chain of seventy-three grocery stores, for 25,000 carnations, to be given away to customers. Walter Garbett secured the order.

Douglas Fraser, of R. G. Fraser & Son, Pasadena, said the rain was just what was wanted for their flower seed stand at El Monte. Some extra fine varieties of Statice sinuata are now in bloom at the Busch Gardens, at Pasadena.

Quite a number of people are kept busy at the store of E. C. Amling Co., making up colonial bouquets, wreaths and other attractive devices in everlasting flowers, for which there is a big shipping demand. Orders come from practically all over the east, while local retailers are also good customers.

George Eischen, of the Alexandria Florist, had an accident with his automobile last week, as he and Hunter Graham were driving through the city. The machine was badly smashed up, but fortunately neither of them was hurt, though a passenger in the machine that ran into them suffered a fractured collar bone. Some magnificent specimens of Cattleya Mossiæ and C. gigas were shown in the store window last week.

P. MacKenzie, formerly of this city and now of Coronado, paid a flying visit to old friends this week. San Diego business is good, he says.

James MacGillivray, superintendent of Lincoln park, is packing a smile again on account of the arrival of another son at his home. Fancy-leaved caladiums are attractive at the park greenhouses now.

The Redondo Floral Co. did the largest telegraph business for Mothers' day that it has ever done and was able to send out more telegrams than were received. Judging by present indications, May will be a record-breaker and a number of wedding decorations are already booked for June. A. F. Borden has a new Studebaker, but the rumor that it was he who broke the record between Los Angeles and Phoenix, Ariz., is not true.

According to Manager John Gordon, of Darling's Shop, it was necessary to close early on Mothers' day, everything being sold out and no more stock to be had. Splendid stock is shown in this attractive and up-to-date store.

The entire force of the Broadway Florists was kept busy on the occasion of the best Mothers' day business ever handled here.

increasing business and the store in its new dress is attractive. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Prices have eased considerably since the Mothers' day shortage sent white flowers, especially carnations, up to rates formerly undreamed-of in California. The market, at present, is well supplied with roses, gladioli, irises, peonies and a number of early summer flowers, such as sweet peas, sweet williams, etc. Easter lilies are still in and will probably remain available till the end of the Memorial day trade. Pansies, lilies of the valley and ranunculi are still abundant. There is no oversupply of stock, however, and the market is cleared of good stock early. During the Mothers' day demand, it was almost a case of able-bodied, strong-minded florists getting their needs filled by sheer force of determination, while those who pursued watchful waiting tactics came out of the depleted market empty-handed.

Mothers' Day.

San Francisco florists are unanimous in saying that the Mothers' day trade surpassed all expectations. Some of them declare that it was double and even treble the volume of last year's Mothers' day business, while other florists add that it surpassed the Easter trade, which is saying a good deal, for business was heavy last Easter. A great shortage of flowers, compared with the demand, caused some of the florists to shut their doors before closing time. Carnations, especially, were dear and scarce. These conditions have caused several suggestions for remedying this state of things on future Mothers' days.

Angelo Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., said: "With at least 300 per cent more business then we ever anticipated, we are convinced that Mothers' day trade is showing a wonderful growth. It behooves the growers to prepare for the day and not let people have to be sent away because the florists couldn't take care of them, as was the case this year."

The Ferry Florists did a land-office business, but, owing to the high cost of white carnations, they did not find it particularly profitable. They said: "Owing to the heavy demand for white carnations from other coast points and from florists in the interior of the state, the white carnation market here was largely depleted, with the result that carnations jumped to fancy prices. We could not 'get in bad' with our customers by charging extravagant rates for carnations; so we sold at an extremely small margin of profit. Next Mothers' day we hope the growers will have more stock left for us."

N. A. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, said that concentrating on white carnations for Mothers' day leads to price boosting, which could be avoided if a wider latitude of choice were allowed. "Why not let everyone choose his mother's favorite flower?" questioned Mr. Baldocchi. "Many mothers prefer roses to carnations and others have a preference for different flowers. Mothers' day is a day for remembering mother, not for boosting the prices of white carnations, and I am for remembering mother with the flowers she likes best."

& Co. expect to have plenty of gladioli and roses for Memorial day.

Carnations and roses will be the specialties of the Growers Cut Flower Co. for Memorial day.

Domoto Bros. will have at least 5,000 cut Easter lilies for Memorial day.

A carved bluebird went out on every Mothers' day basket from Joseph's, despite the rush of business.

F. C. Jaeger is at home ill, but it is hoped that he will be out again shortly. The Jaeger stores were closed Sunday, May 8, because the Mothers' day rush had cleaned out stock the day before. The association had suspended the Sunday closing rule for that day.

Fred Bertrand, the Palace Hotel Florist, made especially fine decorations for the wedding of some prominent Chinese, at the Palace. The contracting parties and their guests wore American costumes and all wore boutonnieres or corsage bouquets. The bride's bouquet was of white roses.

Frank D. Pelicano has returned to Byron Springs. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

A Mothers' day trade which set a record locally proved the climax of last week, with an incalculable number of cases developed where the trade could be directly traced to "Say It with Flowers" and to the florists' advertising for that day. The trade this season was featured by the large number of early orders placed for transmission to out-of-town florists, nearly every firm being in a position to report a substantial increase over previous years on this score.

As usual, there were not enough carnations to go around, but this year the trade in carnations did develop one rather startling feature. The California stock came through in better shape than ever before and those florists who bought stock in the south were able to realize a nice turnover. Tulips proved the next best seller and roses were more than popular. There were plenty of narcissi on hand for the holiday, but buyers failed to develop the interest in this item which had been expected. A part of this can be traced to the fact that there was so much amateur competition this year. Many amateur gardeners set out their fields to narcissi and turned street-corner peddlers at low prices when they found the trade with so much full-priced stock on hand that it could not buy their offerings.

With the exception of off-grade primroses and high-priced rhododendrons, there was a scarcity of potted stock, and dealers say they could have moved much more had it been available. Many florists found that, when customers learned carnations would be scarce, their interest at once swung to a medium-priced potted item. There has been a demand for ferns and several firms report a big movement of potted palms.

The situation affecting roses presents nothing new worthy of comment. Some improvement is seen in the late cuts of Rose Premier, but this is still short of normal. Butterfly is making an excellent showing and California Bride roses were a popular novelty.

Rosaia Bros. reported the most successful Mothers' day since the formation of this firm and on many items Sunday noon found the stock entirely cleaned out. Especially good results were secured with a brilliant yellow tulip of the Darwin type, grown by this firm and at its height at the present time. The cut of roses is showing some increase and a similar report on orchids is expected soon. Among the recent decora-

The Market.

Stock is somewhat scarce following Mothers' day, but a few more days will bring all lines back to normal, as a good cut of roses, carnations, sweet peas, etc., is to be found at most of the greenhouses. The bedding plant season is on in full swing, with prices ranging about the same as last year. Potted plants are somewhat scarce.

Various Notes.

Tuesday, May 3, was the regular meeting night of the Florists' Club. There was a large attendance. Plans were made for florists' day at the Ad Club, May 18. It is expected that J. F. Ammann will be here at that date. It was voted to raise money to put vases of suitable sizes in the hospitals. C. T. Kipp, of the Spokane Florist Co., is giving lectures to the nurses on the care of cut flowers and plants. If the brother florists throughout the country would take up the matter in their own towns, it would mean the sale of more flowers and plants to the hospitals.

Mothers' day business in Spokane was the largest in the history of Mothers' day. A number of stores were sold out of carnations and almost all other cut flowers by Saturday noon, May 7, but sales were directed to potted plants, which also cleaned up entirely by noon, Mothers' day. Prices in almost every case were about normal.

M. Louis and H. Saunders, of Coeur d'Alene, Ida., were recent visitors. They report a heavy cut of cucumbers now and good stock in geraniums ready for spring shipping.

A call at the different stores finds all with the same story of a wonderful Mothers' day business. A noticeable part of the day's business was the telegraph orders. Another noticeable feature is the large number of parcels going by parcel post. The local rise in express rates may be one of the causes.

Peters & Sons, of Hillyard, Wash., have a fine cut of cucumbers. Their shipping business is also heavy.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. B. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Southern Seedsmen's Association will meet at Memphis, Tenn., June 20 and 21.

CHARLES GUELPH, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., called on the trade in Chicago last week.

A NEW seed and plant store was recently chartered at Wilmington, Del., under the name of the Emma S. Ranch Co.

JUDGING by their prices, the European exporters of bulbs, stocks, etc., do not seem to realize that the war boom is over.

JAMES A. BROWN, of Brown's Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Cal., not only is growing a large acreage of bulbs, but is also growing sweet pea seed.

THE demand for gladiolus bulbs at the Boston seed stores breaks all records this season and a surprising number of high-priced ones are included. A much increased call for primulinus hybrids is noted.

THE Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association will meet at St. Louis June 20 and 21 and will be followed by the American Seed Trade Association convention June 22 to 24. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Statler.

ONION sets are still going strong in some of the Chicago retail seed stores, though one of them did recently advise dumping them. They seem to be selling later than usual this year, probably on account of the backward weather.

W. F. THERKILDSON, for many years sales and advertising manager for the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, and later in charge of the agricultural division of N. W. Ayer & Co., has joined another advertising firm, Critchfield & Co., Chicago, as vice-president.

HOLLAND bulb exporters who speak candidly admit that their customers in America nearly all lost money on forcing the bulbs bought last season and that equally heavy purchases at still higher prices this year were not to be expected. Many of the bulb travelers recognize that, while the exporters made good money last year, they are likely to make none at all this season.

Now is the time for advertising and window displays of garden hose, sprays, insecticides, hoes, trowels, and all other accessories that are used in connection with gardens. The W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has an attractive equipment window this week. Just enough sprays, hose, cans of insecticides, etc., in it to tell the story of needed garden helps, but not so many that the articles in it lose their identity in a mass of objects.

ADRIAN J. SCHOORL, who was for some years with C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, has opened offices at 255 California street to engage in the importing and exporting seed business. Mr. Schoorl, who has traveled extensively in Europe for C. C. Morse & Co., is taking orders for fall deliveries of Holland bulbs. He is also signing up with California and other western seed growers for handling their seeds for exportation to Europe, as he believes that California can keep the trade in flower seeds which it gained during the war.

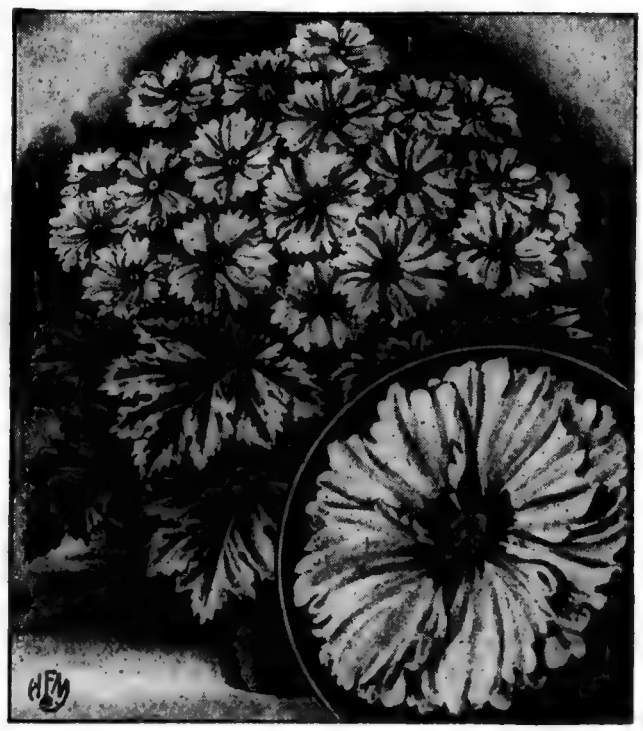
THERE are large quantities of seeds throughout the world which are nearing the end of their period of acceptable germination. If they cannot be sold, and planted now, they soon will be without value.

RECEIVER FOR CONTINENTAL.

W. D. Collins, secretary, was appointed receiver of the assets of the Continental Seed Co., Chicago, a $1,000,000 corporation, whose warehouses are in Hammond, Ind., by Judge G. Fred Rush May 14 on application of C. Arch Johnson and C. W. Hales. The bill of complaint alleged a merger agreement was entered into by the Continental Seed Co. and the Albert Dickinson Co. whereby the shareholders of each were to receive shares in a new Continental-Dickinson Co. It was said the receivership was asked to prevent a possible forced sale of assets of the Continental Seed Co.

HARTFORD FIRM'S WINDOW.



Cadwell & Jones, of Hartford, Conn., have quite an artistic window display. It is a landscape view with Japanese cypress and foliage plants arranged in a star shape. Green grass grows luxuriantly around a pretentious dwelling house, which is beautifully illuminated in the evening. The display causes a great deal of comment and is attracting the crowds of people who pass daily. There has been an overwhelming increase in their flower and grass seed and bulb sales and a heavy demand for the new Moto mower which they are showing.

BULB IMPORTERS TO MEET.

At the instigation of an out-of-town dealer, a meeting of importers of French bulbs will be held at the office of Henry & Lee, in New York, next Monday, May 23, for the purpose of discussing the attitude to be assumed toward French ideas of price. It is understood that ten importers have been invited to be present and that these ten firms have in recent years handled practically all the French bulbs which have come to America except those which have passed through the hands of Hollanders.

As was reported in this column April 28, the French growers' syndicate had fixed prices over the preceding week end, on a basis which would mean an advance of forty to fifty per cent to the florist force in America. The importers can see nothing in the situation which justifies the advance or leads to the belief the florists will pay it. With the probability that the French price is too high to permit cleaning up the crop, it becomes a risky business for anyone to take hold at present levels, as a surplus of bulbs surely will result in a break in the market. Last season about 25,000 cases came to America, the year before about 15,000.

It seems logical for the importers to act together to fix a price they will pay, since the growers have for years been in an agreement in fixing the price at which they will sell. So an interesting summer seems in prospect.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

BRUSH piles this season are the smallest in many years.

THE annual meeting and exhibition of the American Iris Society will be held at Columbus, Ohio, May 20 and 21.

THE American Association of Cemetery Superintendents will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Statler, Detroit, September 13 to 15.

THE demand for garden roses has been stronger this spring than ever before. Absence of imported stock, curtailed purchases during the war and the weather's destruction have been prime causes.

THIS year the American Peony Society will meet at Boston, June 18 and 19, although the dates may be advanced to accord with the early season. The show will be in conjunction with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

INVESTIGATION by the agricultural commissioner to determine claims for damages on account of orders to prevent the spread of the European corn borer is authorized in a bill recently passed by the New York state legislature which was signed by Governor Miller this week. Fifty-two thousand dollars are appropriated.

A. A. N. CONVENTION.

The Congress hotel has been selected again as headquarters for the annual meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Chicago, June 22 to 24. Business sessions will begin at 10 a. m. each day.

Rooms should be reserved immediately. The rates quoted by the Congress hotel are:

	Per day
Room, detached bath, one person.....	$3 to $ 5
Room, detached bath, two persons.....	5 to 6
Room, private bath, one person.....	5 to 10
Room, private bath, two persons.....	7 to 12

Members who wish to make exhibits should notify A. M. Augustine, Normal, Ill., who will see that exhibits arriving before the date of the convention will be taken care of. Address exhibits to A. M. Augustine, chairman arrangements committee, Nurserymen's Convention, Congress hotel, Chicago, Ill. Freight or express charges should be prepaid.

The program will be announced later, a special program committee having been appointed by President Stark, consisting of Henry B. Chase, chairman, Chase, Ala.; E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn.

LILACS AND ROSA RUGOSA.

What is the easiest way to propagate the newer varieties of lilacs? Also Rosa rugosa? G. M.—Mich.

There is no easy method for you to adopt in order to propagate the newer varieties of lilacs in quantity. If propagation were simple, prices would be much lower. Rooting in a gentle hotbed in summer from half-ripened wood is the best method and if you have a private estate, you should be able to adopt it. A couple of 3x6 sashes would be ample for your needs. Short cuttings with two eyes are of the right size. They should be put directly into a bed of sand which overlies some warm manure, or put in pans or flats. Own-root lilacs are far superior to those grown from layers or those which have been budded or grafted and it would be advisable for you to try this way of propagating. The Grandest Red Canna in Existence

Height, 4 feet. In color, a rich, glowing scarlet, and the immense, firm, rounded flowers, 7 inches across when open, are produced on strong, erect stalks well above the large, rich green foliage. "The President" is superior to any other red variety in the quantity and also quality of bloom, and the firm flowers resist drought and heat to a remarkable degree. A large bed of this variety was planted on the grounds of the Washington Monument, Washington, D. C. STANDARDIZATION OF PRICES.

What Is a Fair Price?

"Standardization" is a rather ambiguous term. The main question is, how are base or standard prices of nursery stock to be fixed so as to obviate the ordinary "cut-throat" methods of securing orders, pursued quite systematically by so many nurserymen? Without discussing the latter part of this problem, which, however, is perhaps quite as important, it seems wiser to confine these

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

BRUSH piles this season are the smallest in many years.

THE annual meeting and exhibition of the American Iris Society will be held at Columbus, Ohio, May 20 and 21.

THE American Association of Cemetery Superintendents will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Statler, Detroit, September 13 to 15.

THE demand for garden roses has been stronger this spring than ever before. Absence of imported stock, curtailed purchases during the war and the weather's destruction have been prime causes.

THIS year the American Peony Society will meet at Boston, June 18 and 19, although the dates may be advanced to accord with the early season. The show will be in conjunction with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

INVESTIGATION by the agricultural commissioner to determine claims for damages on account of orders to prevent the spread of the European corn borer is authorized in a bill recently passed by the New York state legislature which was signed by Governor Miller this week. Fifty-two thousand dollars are appropriated.

A. A. N. CONVENTION.

The Congress hotel has been selected again as headquarters for the annual meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Chicago, June 22 to 24. Business sessions will begin at 10 a. m. each day.

Rooms should be reserved immediately. The rates quoted by the Congress hotel are:

	Per day
Room, detached bath, one person	$3 to $ 5
Room, detached bath, two persons	5 to 6
Room, private bath, one person	5 to 10
Room, private bath, two persons	7 to 12

Members who wish to make exhibits should notify A. M. Augustine, Normal, Ill., who will see that exhibits arriving before the date of the convention will be taken care of. Address exhibits to A. M. Augustine, chairman arrangements committee, Nurserymen's Convention, Congress hotel, Chicago, Ill. Freight or express charges should be prepaid.

The program will be announced later, a special program committee having been appointed by President Stark, consisting of Henry B. Chase, chairman, Chase, Ala.; E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; M. R. Cashman, Owatonna, Minn.

LILACS AND ROSA RUGOSA.

What is the easiest way to propagate the newer varieties of lilacs? Also Rosa rugosa? G. M.—Mich.

There is no easy method for you to adopt in order to propagate the newer varieties of lilacs in quantity. If propagation were simple, prices would be much lower. Rooting in a gentle hotbed in summer from half-ripened wood is the best method and if you have a private estate, you should be able to adopt it. A couple of 3x6 sashes would be ample for your needs. Short cuttings with two eyes are of the right size. They should be put directly into a bed of sand which overlies some warm manure, or put in pans or flats. remarks to that part of the problem which relates to the fixing of a standard, or, to put it in other words, fair price which should be charged the retailer and to which various proper and standard discounts are to be applied when dealing with the trade, with landscape architects or with any others who might legitimately be allowed a discount from the fixed or standard price.

My own practice has been that of fixing a standard price which is the published price, with twenty-five per cent discount to the trade and ten per cent discount to landscape architects and public institutions. A fair question arises if this allows a sufficient margin to the trade, particularly where packing charges are added, while with retail sales packing is free. Most nurserymen maintain that the trade discount should range from thirty-three and one-third to fifty per cent on what we are here calling the standard price, or price granted to the ordinary retail buyer; while only a few days ago I received a letter from a nurseryman stating that he expected a 100 per cent margin; that is, he expected to sell either wholesale or retail at 100 per cent advance on the cost of the stock to him.

Making Trade Discounts.

Now, should the standard price be a wholesale price on which percentages should be added to arrive at fair landscape architects' and retail prices, assuming that the landscape architect should get a better price than the retail customer, or should the retail price be the standard price and any other price arrived at by discounts? My own belief is that the latter is the best method, as it will tend to make the average standard price higher. Also, if in fact the wholesale discount runs from thirty-three and one-third to fifty per cent below such standard price it tends to keep from the general public eye the trade prices, as they would not appear in published form. On the other hand, fixing the trade price as the standard price enables the nurseryman or dealer who purchases to soar to any retail heights that his retail customer may be persuaded to pay, and to many this will make a distinct appeal. In any event those who are legitimately in the trade should agree as to which is really the most proper method of arriving at the standard price.

H. C. L. has hit the nurseryman as it has everyone else, but the high cost of production and distribution is not the only factor for us to consider. The nursery business, both as to field and office practice and methods, always has been in a chaotic and unstandardized state and nurserymen are credited even among themselves as being poor business men as a class. The millionaire nurseryman is a dodo bird—if, in fact, he ever existed—though I am not sure that this is not highly to his credit. Some can grow well and others can sell well. Some use good judgment in selecting the kinds of stock to plant, while others fix on a few items of which they make a specialty and on which the real income of the business depends. A combination of good business qualities is rare. No nurseryman, to my knowledge, properly figures in overhead expense.

Nurserymen Not Business Men.

The greatest loss, I believe, arises from the fact hinted at above, that in most nurseries a few good items keep

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

the business running and have to carry the enormous losses occasioned by so-called brush pile material, which hangs on from year to year at great expense and which should either never have been planted or more effective means taken to get rid of it at a profit. Is not surplus a curse of the business? Are not sales too uneven, the nurseryman, perhaps unconsciously, depending on a few things in which he specializes or has a large stock of, to produce the bulk of income, forgetting that the aggregate of the slow-moving stuff is often greater than the total of the easy sellers? I flatly disagree with most nurserymen that the brush pile is the right way out of this common difficulty.

There is no class of business, other than the nurserymen's, which holds this uneconomic view—not even the farmer. Do you ever hear of a merchant burning his surplus of stockings, shoes, hats or underwear, or a farmer burning a surplus of corn or potatoes, or a butcher sending surplus meat to the dog-pound? Is the nursery business so distinct and different from all other businesses? Of course not, and a real business nurseryman would no more burn good surplus nursery stock than the merchant his overstock of shoes.

A way out would be found of selling at reduced prices to those in the trade, to institutions or to the retail buyer under restricted conditions, that would save a bulk of loss, and, further, I believe it would stimulate the use of nursery stock in general and at fair prices. The bargain sales of the dry goods merchant do not seem to affect in the least his standard prices after the special sales are over.

Any product worth producing is worth using and it is criminal to destroy it. If we used our brains properly I believe the brush pile would pass into history remarks to that part of the problem which relates to the fixing of a standard, or, to put it in other words, fair price which should be charged the retailer and to which various proper and standard discounts are to be applied when dealing with the trade, with landscape architects or with any others who might legitimately be allowed a discount from the fixed or standard price.

My own practice has been that of fixing a standard price which is the published price, with twenty-five per cent discount to the trade and ten per cent discount to landscape architects and public institutions. A fair question arises if this allows a sufficient margin to the trade, particularly where packing charges are added, while with retail sales packing is free. Most nurserymen maintain that the trade discount should range from thirty-three and one-third to fifty per cent on what we are here calling the standard price, or price granted to the ordinary retail buyer; while only a few days ago I received a letter from a nurseryman stating that he expected a 100 per cent margin; that is, he expected to sell either wholesale or retail at 100 per cent advance on the cost of the stock to him.

Making Trade Discounts.

Now, should the standard price be a wholesale price on which percentages should be added to arrive at fair landscape architects' and retail prices, assuming that the landscape architect should get a better price than the retail customer, or should the retail price be the standard price and any other price arrived at by discounts? My own belief is that the latter is the best method, as it will tend to make the average standard price higher. Also, if in fact the wholesale discount runs from thirty-three and one-third to fifty per cent below such standard price it tends to keep from the general public eye the trade prices, as they would not appear in published form. On the other hand, fixing the trade price as the standard price enables the nurseryman or dealer who purchases to soar to any retail heights that his retail customer may be persuaded to pay, and to many this will make a distinct appeal. In any event those who are legitimately in the trade should agree as to which is really the most proper method of arriving at the standard price.

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

the business running and have to carry the enormous losses occasioned by so called brush pile material, which hangs on from year to year at great expense and which should either never have been planted or more effective means taken to get rid of it at a profit. Is not surplus a curse of the business? Are not sales too uneven, the nurseryman, perhaps unconsciously, depending on a few things in which he specializes or has a large stock of, to produce the bulk of income, forgetting that the aggregate of the slow-moving stuff is often greater than the total of the easy sellers? I flatly disagree with most nurserymen that the brush pile is the right way out of this common difficulty.

There is no class of business, other than the nurserymen's, which holds this uneconomic view—not even the farmer. Do you ever hear of a merchant burning his surplus of stockings, shoes, hats or underwear, or a farmer burning a surplus of corn or potatoes, or a butcher sending surplus meat to the dog-pound? Is the nursery business so distinct and different from all other businesses? Of course not, and a real business nurseryman would no more burn good surplus nursery stock than the merchant his overstock of shoes.

A way out would be found of selling at reduced prices to those in the trade, to institutions or to the retail buyer under restricted conditions, that would save a bulk of loss, and, further, I believe it would stimulate the use of nursery stock in general and at fair prices. The bargain sales of the dry goods merchant do not seem to affect in the least his standard prices after the special sales are over.

Any product worth producing is worth using and it is criminal to destroy it. If we used our brains properly I believe the brush pile would pass into history

Montgomery's Priscilla

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.
Dailledouze Bros., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill.

as a discredited method of trying to produce wealth by uneconomic means.

That the present standard prices of nursery stock, however arrived at, are too low, no one will deny. We all admit the absolute necessity of greatly increasing our prices. Can nurserymen get together? It is doubtful, but still it is worth trying.

MEMORIAL TREES.

Various patriotic organizations, individuals and governmental bodies have been even more zealous in taking up the plan of planting trees on the public highways than it was expected they would be. The Chicago Tribune, in whose columns the plan originated, each day receives numerous letters asking where the money for the trees should be sent.

Word was sent by Dr. H. W. Hull, the commander of the Boy Scouts, that the 8,000 members in Illinois are ready to be of any service possible. "We will await orders from the Legion and Adjutant Setliffe," said Dr. Hull. "We will help plant trees this year or plant ours in the fall, just as we are directed. It will take only a few days to notify all our scouts."

Mrs. Clara M. Alt, of the Woman's Relief Corps of the G. A. R., said that that body is going to the state encampment of the G. A. R. next week and will there present the plan. This organization is one that does things, having already planted a row of memorial trees in Kewanee, Ill.

Miss Edith Collom, of the General Henry Dearborn chapter of the D. A. R., said, "Several of our members have sons or daughters who served in France as nurses or soldiers. How much money is needed? And tell us more about the trees. We are extremely desirous of properly doing our part."

The Tribune says that the plan is now so far advanced that thousands of trees will be growing in their honor places by Memorial day this year and that by May 30 next year the roads of remembrance will all be planted and all trees that have not been labeled will be given the names of the soldiers they honor.

If the plan keeps growing at the pace it has gone so far since its inception, there is no reason for its not being completed before the end of another year. It is one nurserymen should support. There will be many thousand trees needed.

SEATTLE NOTES.

tions handled by this firm was that for the opening of the University of Washington chapter house of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. There has been a good increase in the number of smaller luncheons. The miniature Japanese gardens prepared by Roy Guyer are being shown in the windows, this novelty attracting many buyers.

The City Flower Shop had the first showing of Lilium myriophyllum, or regal lily, seen here this season and this attracted much comment. There has been a good increase in funeral work for this firm lately and an entire clean-up was made for Mothers' day.

Mrs. Callopy, who has been connected with the Hollywood Gardens, left last week for Chicago, where she will establish her new residence. Mrs. A. B. Lee succeeds her in the local shop.

Kenney's Home of Flowers handled a large shipment of palms for one of the most noted of western hotels.

Good sales on potted plants and bedding stock, especially the smaller flowers, are reported by Irving Harris, who is in charge of the recently established department carrying these lines at the Bon Marche.

A number of local florists were guests of Harry A. Crouch, E. W. Clark and Tom Rhoades at Blanc's restaurant, Tuesday night, May 10, when these gentlemen acted as hosts to a local dancing club.

The Rainier Floral Co. is sending in some of the finest potted plants being offered at this time, especially of primroses.

Al Moore, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, developed an attractive window for the week following Mothers' day, chiefly through the use of apple blossoms. These were massed behind and over a low fence to form the background and a few simple baskets and vases were used to present the flower appeal in the foreground. This house set a new high record on telegraphic business, both outgoing and incoming, and also set a new record on the number of customers served. Among the week's decorations were one of the larger department stores and several affairs at the Yacht Club, the former being large enough to require extra help.

Entirely satisfactory business for Mothers' day was reported by the Orpheum Floral Co., with tulips selling out better than had been hoped. In common with the other shops, extra salespeople were necessary to care for the trade.

The shop interior for the Pinehurst Floral Co. was changed about for Mothers' day trade needs and an attractive window was developed. Thousands of the booklets especially for this day were distributed to customers. This shop showed the first California peonies seen here this year and was well supplied with carnations through its ability to draw on the British Columbia growers.

Probably the best of the sweet peas being cut now are being shown by Felix Rosaia, as he has been successful in getting a big supply of the much desired orchid shades of late.

Melby's Flower Shop did a more than satisfactory business on its first flower holiday and Carl Melby found that buyers were generally interested in good stock.

The Hollywood Gardens are bringing in the best of the local greenhouse gladioli and have been securing rapid sales of this stock. The cut of roses is increasing gradually, but weather conditions have been a deterrent factor in this development. There is a plentiful supply of good narcissi at present. Funeral and general work are holding up well and the total business for Mothers' days was all that could be asked. An especially satisfying gain was seen in telegraph business.

Emil Keller operates a small greenhouse at 2842 Thirty-fourth avenue, west. His greenhouse was recently the cause of comment by one of the daily papers. Under a large 2-column photograph was the story of the demonstrated practicability of small greenhouse production. The entire cost of erecting the greenhouse was $300. Mr. Keller starts the young plants in the greenhouse and during the spring plants them outdoors. He grows a wide variety of flowering plants, bulbs and some vegetables.

CARRYING CONVICTION.

In this sophisticated world the claims of the seller frequently are at a discount, so it is not always possible to carry conviction when we assert to prospective advertisers that The Review is an exceptionally effective medium—but having once secured an adequate trial the result is fairly certain. Like this:

We should like to add that The Review is the best seller we have found in years.—Memphis Plant Co., Memphis, Tenn., May 9, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

FLUE AND CHIMNEY TROUBLE.

My steam boiler is 3½x11 feet, and has a brick fire box beneath it, 3½x4 feet. The brick smokestack is fifty feet high and has a 28-inch flue.

Smoke and flames return through the flues, and it seems to me that too much coal is being burned. Is the grate surface too large for the size of the boiler?

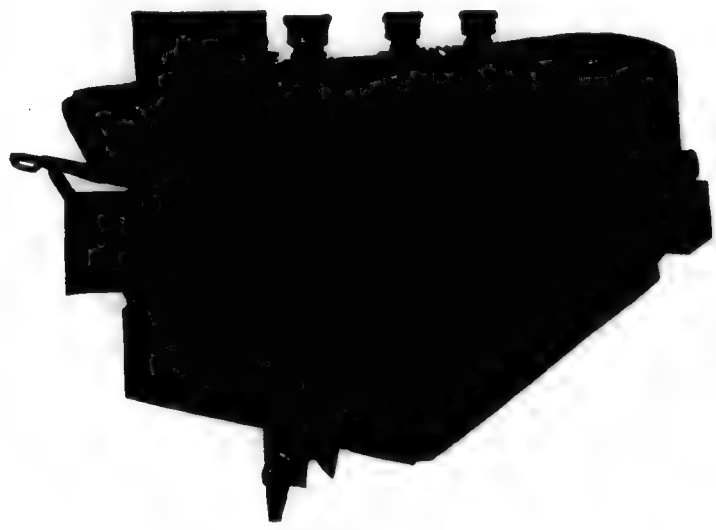
H. G.—Wis.

From the data furnished it is not possible to make more than an approximate estimate of the capacity of the boiler, but we judge it to be something over forty horsepower. For such a boiler, we would not consider the size of the grate excessively large, although it would answer if somewhat smaller.

While it is desirable to have a chimney of good height and of ample size, it is not advisable to have it excessively large. If the flue had one-half of the area mentioned it would be sufficiently large. If the draft is very strong, a damper might be used to advantage.

Nothing is said regarding the size of the opening between the bridge and the shell of the boiler. For a boiler of this size it should be 400 to 450 square inches.

A good formula for determining the size of the flue and chimney is to have the area of the flue one-sixth, and the area of the chimney one-seventh to one-tenth the area of the grate or slightly more for small boilers, varying the figures also with the height of the chimney, the kind of coal and the size of the openings in the grate.



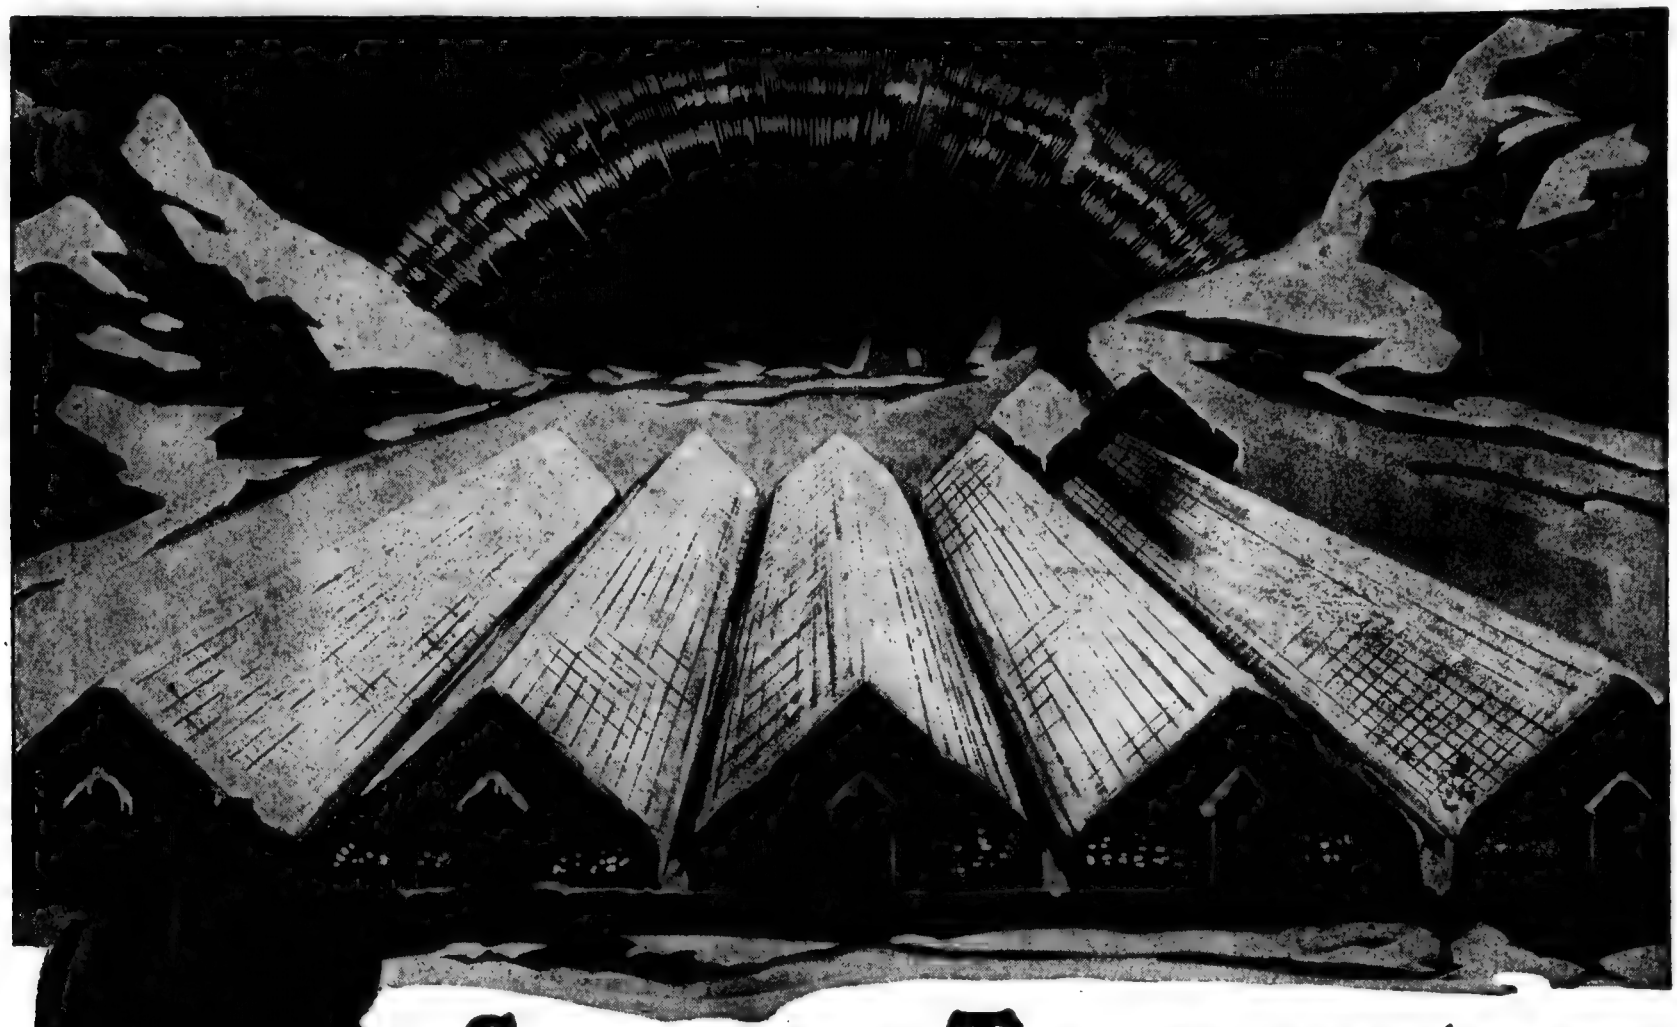
PIPING A SEED HOUSE.

I am enclosing a sketch of my seed house, and I should like to know if the amount and arrangement of pipe designated will heat the house when it is 15 degrees below zero. The boiler is sixteen feet high, has an 18-inch grate and is placed in a pit. The glass is 4x20 feet in the north roof, 6½x20 feet in the south roof and 3x20 in the south

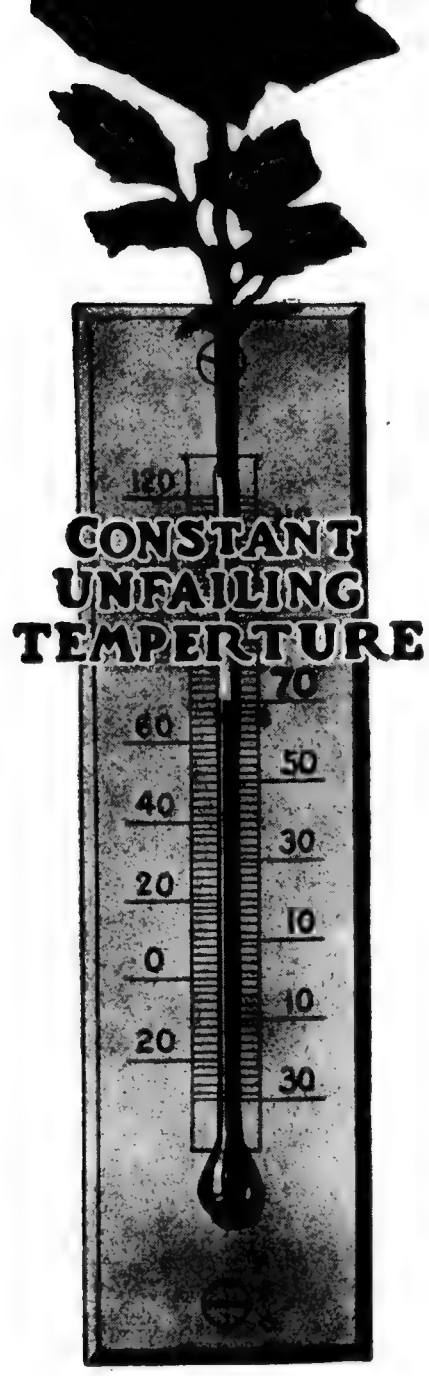
THE KROESCHELL HOT WATER BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the KROESCHELL Greenhouse boiler the highest praise.

3,974,605 square feet of glass was equipped with KROESCHELL Boilers during two recent years. You will find the KROESCHELL in every State in the Union and Canada. The supremacy of KROESCHELL Boilers is proved by their country-wide adoption.



Every boiler made at our works is of the highest standard. Material—governed by Kroeschell specifications—the best that money and brains can produce. Workmanship—the kind that is an inspiration to all boiler makers. Boiler efficiency—determined by actual tests under working conditions. Boiler ratings—honest and true blue—guaranteed actual working capacities.



The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of sectional cast-iron boilers. In every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping and with less fuel.

Wilks Self-Feeding Hot Water Boiler

For Economy, Durability, Dependability

Install a WILKS and Forget Your Troubles

No night fireman required—as the magazine or coal chamber holds sufficient fuel to keep fire 10 to 12 hours without attention. Best made for a small greenhouse.

S. WILKS MFG. CO., So. Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 28th, 1920.
3523 Shields Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs: Received your boiler O. K. As for the boiler, it is all you claim for it and more. Would not trade it for six like the cast iron one I had before it. When it comes to keeping heat over night, it's right on the job. During our coldest weather here this winter (7 below) it kept the house at 55 degrees, and did it easy on slack and nut mixed.

Thanking you again for past favors, I remain, wall. The chimney has a good draft, 8x8-inch flue, with two feet of pipe from the boiler. The expansion tank is four feet above the boiler. F. M. D.—Can.

Yours truly,
(Signed) JAMES McCRAY.

The sketch shows the house to be 9x20 feet, with four 1½-inch returns under one side bench and six 1-inch returns under the other bench. The coils are supplied by a 2-inch flow pipe running around one end and one side of the house just above the bench.

The radiation is about right in amount for the conditions mentioned above, but unless the pipe specified is on hand, a number of changes would be advisable. One would be to use 2½-inch pipe for the main flow and return pipes, even though the outlet and inlet to the boiler are only 2-inch, using reducers close to the boiler for making the connections. Then it would be well to carry the flow pipe on one of the wall plates, instead of on the wall just above the bench. On some accounts, it would be preferable to have it on the south plate.

It would be advisable to use 1½-inch pipes for the north coil instead of six 1-inch pipes. This would reduce the friction and improve the circulation. The reason for increasing the size of the flow and return pipes is the fact that the flow pipe is but slightly above the returns. With a 2-inch flow pipe and ten returns, an uneven circulation might result. It would be advisable to run the

FURNACE LINING

Will Lift Your Plant to Efficiency

Some people won't give the devil his due, but every one will agree as a heat specialist he can't be beat! The PLIBRICO Devil certainly knows just how to hold the heat in the combustion chamber.

Put your furnace problem up to the PLIBRICO Devil—he will show you how to make your furnace really efficient.

PLIBRICO does the work and does it right. It forms a jointless fire-brick furnace lining which is heat and air tight.

Fire first attacks the joints in a boiler setting. But PLIBRICO has no joints, that's why it lasts so long.

PLIBRICO is especially adapted to front-door arches, baffles and side walls. It is also a quick and ideal way to patch up a fire-brick setting which has broken down during a load. It makes an ideal lining for any boiler.

An air-tight furnace lining is a great fuel economizer. Don't miss this chance to change expense into dividends. Shipped in steel packages of distinctive appearance as shown below. Stock carried in all principal cities insures prompt delivery.

Interesting booklet, D-7, on Furnace Building sent free.

is a high-grade refractory for furnace linings which is better than fire brick, because:

1. It's jointless.
2. It's plastic.
3. It's air and gas tight.
4. It will stand 3100° F.
5. It will save fuel.
6. It can be installed by inexperienced labor.
7. It will outlast fire brick.
8. It can be used in any boiler, furnace or oven.
9. It can be used wherever fire brick is used.
10. It cannot be excelled for patching broken and burned-out linings.

PIPES IN CORRECT NUMBER.

I plan to build a greenhouse 24x50 feet, with three feet of glass and three feet of concrete. It will be six feet from grade to plate and thirteen feet to the ridge. There will be glass in one gable end.

To heat the house to 65 degrees when it is 20 degrees below zero outside, will one 2-inch main under the ridge, four 1¼-inch returns under each side bench and three 1¼-inch returns under two center benches suffice? I should be pleased to receive suggestions on this matter. C. L. S.—Ill.

The radiation suggested will be entirely satisfactory for a house 24x50 feet, with three feet of glass in the side walls, to be heated to 60 degrees in zero weather, with low-pressure steam. With a boiler of good size, carrying five pounds of pressure, this radiation might be used for 65 degrees, in weather 20 degrees below zero, if the cold periods are of short duration and are infrequent, but it would be advisable to use a 2½-inch overhead flow pipe and to put an additional return in each coil.

If the water level of the boiler is three feet below the returns, it will make but little difference how the flows and returns are arranged, although it is best to have the flow overhead and the returns under the benches or on the side walls. However, the coils may serve as coils with the drip returning in a main underneath, or there may be a flow main either above or below the coils and sloping in either direction.

The boiler for the house described should have a grate about two feet in diameter, with a rating of ten to twelve horsepower.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

Mothers' day was a great success; everybody says so. Flowers were plentiful and good prices were obtained. Roses were good and the varieties mostly used were Russell, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty, Milady, Sunburst, White Killarney, Premier and Ophelia. There was a good supply of carnations, although there were not nearly enough for the demand. This year the florists' advice was to use any flower for Mothers' day, in order to relieve the strain on carnations. Peonies were in great demand and the limited stock was soon cleaned up. Sweet peas, valley, yellow and white daisies, snapdragons, Darwin tulips, larkspurs and Spanish irises were used in making Mothers' day bouquets. Plants played an important part this year. There was a call for cinerarias, hydrangeas, hyacinths, tulips, pansies, geraniums, begonias and many other spring plants.

Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious says he made the best clean-up in plants and flowers that he has ever known. He had a heavy cut of carnations, also a big batch of hyacinths, tulips and spring plants, all of which sold quickly.

William Japp, of Lester Park, had a large supply of spring plants, cinerarias, geraniums, etc., which he sold to the stores in Duluth and Superior.

The Quality Flower Shop reports business better than in any other year. Plants and cut flowers both sold well.

The Duluth Floral Co. had the best business it has had for many years. The shipping was heavy both Thursday and Friday, May 5 and 6, and the local trade Saturday and Sunday, May 7 and 8, was heavy.

The Alpha Florist reports Mothers' day business quite good. J. E. S.

Ittabena, Miss.—Mrs. William Halsell is entering the florists' business in this town.

Lansing, Mich.—Earl Edgerton, who has grown gladioli for many years, leaves May 23 for the Hawaiian islands, where he will continue to grow gladioli. He will make an effort to produce some new and good yellow varieties.

The Market.

Business since Mothers' day has continued good. A supply of flowers has been available and has been enough to meet the demand. Roses have been in large supply. Carnations are not so plentiful and are deteriorating in quality.

A fair supply of snapdragons is to be had, although the supply is not so heavy as it was before Mothers' day. They are of good quality and are quick sellers. Gladioli are more abundant and the majority of them are of splendid quality and move well.

Sweet peas in large quantities are to be had. Lilies are scarce. Daisies are being brought in and are popular. Peonies, candytuft and feverfew, Memorial day stand-bys, are beginning to arrive.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Supply House is now open for business in its new location, 229 North Delaware street. This firm has enlarged its stock considerably and will be better able to care for its growing trade.

Morris Marer will open a retail store in the former location of the Florists' Supply House, 105 East Ohio street, and will be ready on or before Memorial day.

The cool weather continues to hold back the sale of bedding stock to an unusually late date this spring.

As the May meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association has been canceled, an unusually large attendance is expected at the June meeting, which will be held in Indianapolis at the commission house of the Smith & Young Co., June 7. E. E. T.

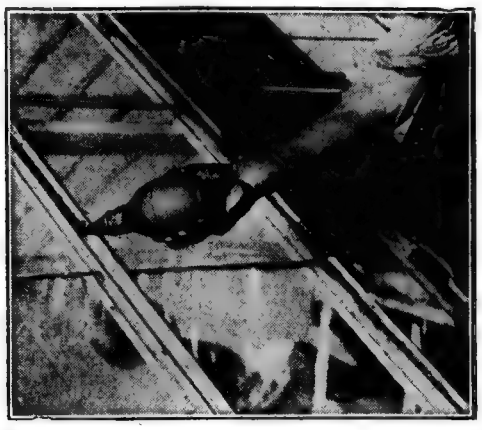
AJAX BLACK GLAZING CEMENT



A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load them—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

NOT AFFECTED BY EXTREME HEAT OR COLD

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

LOW COST

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again, and we can prove it.

SALT LAKE CITY.

The Market.

Business last week was exceptionally good. Everybody was completely cleaned out Mothers' day and growers have been kept busy stocking up the retailers. Prices dropped after Mothers' day. Roses now bring a good price, with Ophelia, Columbia and Dunlop as favorites. Carnations are in big supply, but the demand took everything offered last week. Laddie cleans up well at all times. Sweet peas are about gone, with the exception of some of the summer-flowering varieties, which are just coming on.

Mothers' Day.

Mothers' day was undoubtedly the greatest flower day in the history of Salt Lake City. Although prices were somewhat lower than last year, nearly every florist reports a larger volume of business than last year.

Florists of Salt Lake City could not be accused of profiteering on carnations, as $3 per dozen was the highest price asked by any retailer and there was little kick from the public on prices.

Good weather favored the growers until Friday, May 6, but rain Friday and Saturday held the cut down and many growers found it impossible to fill their orders the last two days before Mothers' day.

Coöperative Advertising.

Salt Lake City florists are beginning to see the benefits of coöperative advertising. Thursday, May 5, a half-page advertisement appeared in all the papers, with follow-up advertisements on Friday and Saturday. These were without question the best bits of advertising ever done by the florists in this section. G. J. B.

How to Maintain Beautiful Lawns at Minimum Expense

Actual use by thousands of Ideal Power Lawn Mower owners has shown conclusively that this combination power mower and power roller keeps beautiful lawns in better condition than was ever possible with hand mowers or horse drawn mowers.

Not only does the Ideal permit better care, but also effects a genuine economy in up-keep. For one man with an Ideal Power Mower can cut from four to five acres of grass per day with little effort and at small cost. Then the fact that the Ideal is also a power roller practically doubles its usefulness.

It provides exactly what is needed for the early spring rolling, and keeps the sod in excellent condition the season through.

Ideal Power Mowers are used in caring for the grass on industrial grounds, private estates, public parks, cemeteries, golf courses, college grounds, school grounds, polo grounds, etc. Here are just a few names from the thousands of Ideal users: Archibald M. L. Dupont, Montchanin, Dela.; Dr. C. S. Hoover, Alliance, O.; Detroit Golf Club, Detroit, Mich.; Public Parks Dept., Hartford, Conn.; Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma, California.

With riding trailer the Ideal makes one of the most practical and economical riding mowers possible to procure. Furnished either with or without riding trailer.

Special putting green cutting unit can be provided for work on golf courses.

Any of our dealers will gladly demonstrate the Ideal for you. Special illustrated catalog upon request.

BATTLING THE CUTWORM.

A worm that looks like a cutworm is eating the buds of my Delphinium Belladonna at night. I find the worm hidden in the soil at the root of the plant in the morning. Some of the plants are cut off at the soil, but in most cases the worms go to the top and eat the buds. Will you tell me what I can do for the plants? C. A. S.—Va.

It would be advisable to mix a poisoned mash of fresh shorts, molasses, Paris green and lemon juice. As you have a large patch of delphiniums, it would be advisable to mix as follows: Twenty pounds of fresh shorts, or bran, ten quarts of thin molasses, one pound Paris green, juice of three lemons and three and one-half gallons of water. First mix the bran and Paris green dry. Squeeze the juice of the lemons in water and cut the pulp fine; then add gradually to and mix well with the bran and Paris green. Scatter this in little patches all over the soil covered by your plants, preferably in the evening, as cutworms work at night. Keep chickens and ducks away from your larkspur patch. Continue this method and it will clean out the cutworms. Another season, adopt it at first sight of the pests. C. W.

VENTILATING THE ICEBOX.

Please advise me how to build a cold storage room and how to ventilate it. The room will be cooled by ice and will be built in at the end of my service or work room. The inside measurement will be about six feet wide, eight feet long and six feet high. I had planned for the ice to go above the refrigerator room. The part I am most concerned about is the proper way to ventilate, so as to keep the flowers from spotting or scalding. W. T. B.—N. C.

It would be best to build the walls of the icebox with either two or three chambers seven-eighths of an inch wide, using ½-inch matched lumber and water-proofed building paper. The outer chamber and also the one on the inside, if there are three chambers, should be packed with mineral wool. If there is glass in the door or the front or ends of the icebox, it should also be at least double and carefully puttied.

Unless glass is used to line the inside of the icebox, it should be covered with galvanized iron, which should have three heavy coats of white enamel. The ice should be placed in a box overhead, with a drip pan so arranged that all of the water will be carried off. There should be openings in the front and the back so that there will be a free circulation of air over the ice and down into the space below. Troughs should be provided so that any water which condenses on the inside walls will be carried off. Ordinarily, there will be no trouble from this source, and no ventilator is necessary. T.

GETTYSBURG

To Make More Universal the Observance of Memorial Day

That means more flowers—more and more each year. You florists should stimulate the use of more house-grown blooms—for the best is none too good for our heroes.
But what is the use of trying to develop a bigger demand if you can't supply it at a good profit? And you can't grow flowers profitably in poor houses
So we urge you to investigate the Superior points of

FOLEY BETTER BUILT GREENHOUSES

When you consider cost of heating and the cost of labor to grow good crops—when you consider how perishable your products are—how easily a severe cold spell may ruin your crop, which represents months of hard work—when you want a house that is properly designed and heated—a house that will give you years of service at minimum cost of upkeep—that means you want a Foley Better Built Greenhouse.
Whether it be a big iron frame house 300 to 600 feet long, or a small pipe frame house or a range of pipe frame houses—you will find points about Foley Houses that will make them the most satisfactorily economical houses you can erect.

Ask us to tell you about the economy of a Foley Greenhouse

The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Company

THE TRUTH ABOUT BENCH LUMBER

Many growers in good faith spend their good money for bench lumber—pay a good price for labor to build the benches. Within a very short time their benches are so badly rotted that they are compelled to do the whole job over again—tear out the old benches—buy new lumber—spend more money for erection. Possibly you have had the same experience.

Why Is It?

The truth of the matter is that many of the unscrupulous dealers ship inferior Cypress, brash, flinty upland stock, which will not last, and represent it to be the GENUINE TIDEWATER GULF RED CYPRESS.

The Cypress bench lumber which we will ship you is the GENUINE TIDEWATER GULF RED CYPRESS—the best that grows. We handle nothing else.

Buy Your Bench Lumber Now

We carry a large and well assorted stock in our Chicago Yard and can make prompt shipment on large or small lots. If you require a full carload, can ship direct from mill in south—thereby saving you considerable money on freight.

15,000
3-INCH CYCLAMEN.
In the best commercial colors, consisting of light and dark salmon, wine red, Xmas red, Daybreak, lavender, white with pink eye.
The best strain on the market.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."
One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."
This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.

UNKNOWN FLY WORKS HAVOC.

We are sending specimens of some of our plants affected by an insect which we cannot identify. The insect closely resembles a mite, is of a white color, can crawl fairly fast and is like a red spider, but it seems to have no web. It has completely destroyed our cyclamens for two years and our Chatelaine begonias for four years, but our being able on two occasions to clean up a batch of young Chatelaine begonias indicates that the insect is least active from November to February.

All this suggests thrips, but there is a difference. Thrips can be kept down with nicotine, while the insect in question is not hurt in the least by strong applications of nicotine extract.

We are sending also specimens of a small fly which we think has some connection with the insect. This fly is not affected by nicotine, but has been killed with a prepared solution at a strength that has burned the plants.

G. F. S.—Mo.

The box containing plants of cyclamens, begonias, gloxinias and snapdragons arrived in good condition, and while I could not find any of the pests that are causing the damage, I have no doubt whatsoever that it is white fly, a most annoying and destructive insect, which is the bane of many growers.

You can minimize the damage from white fly somewhat by spraying with a soap solution to which a little nicotine has been added. This will kill all the insects you can hit. The great trouble is that white fly is a restless creature, constantly on the move, and will not stay still to be hit. I do not know anything concerning the laws of your state regulating the sale of poisons, but in nearly all the states in the union hydrocyanic acid gas is now used not only for greenhouse fumigation, but also in storehouses, factories, citrus orchards, etc.

It would be advisable to make inquiries of your state college and ascertain if you can secure a permit to purchase cyanide to be used for greenhouse fumigation. It will rid you of the white fly, and I know of no other real remedy. Used with due care, it is perfectly safe, and great numbers of growers now depend on it entirely. A short exposure on cool evenings would be best in your state, and you could no doubt devise some method of opening the ventilators from outdoors after the plants had had a 30-minute exposure, unless you preferred a weaker dose and all-night exposure. At all events, it would most certainly be advisable to lose no time in ascertaining something definite about the purchase of cyanide of potassium.

C. W.

Connellsville, Pa.—Harry T. Bengel is just starting in business in this town.

Rock Island, Ill.—The old saying, "He who hesitates is lost," is more than a series of empty words to Gustave A. Shaffer. In 1914 he felt that he was in need of two more greenhouses. But the price, which at that time was estimated at about $10,000 for each house, seemed too high, so he decided to wait for the prices to go down. However, he now has reached the point where he must have the greenhouses. As his present range of eight greenhouses is much too small for his business, he feels that it is no longer good business economy to wait for the prices to come down. So he plans to erect two new houses soon, at the approximate estimate of $30,000 each. He expects to be through with his present crop in two of his greenhouses by the first of June. At that time he will tear them down and start erecting the new ones.

Jesse King range. The two right-hand houses and leanto in front, are Hitchings.

Here are the first Hitchings houses the Harveys have built. They are Half-iron Construction.

Caught On The Barbed Wire

Beats all how many things there are no accounting for.

Wrong cuts that go in right advertisements, for example!

Right cuts, wrong side up.

Which is quite like a man absent-mindedly putting on the right coat and vest when he has on the pants to another suit.

In a recent advertising chat with you about Jesse P. King's houses at Mount Airy, Md., the two new houses of Alban Harvey & Sons of Brandywine Summit, Pa., were mistakenly shown.

The wording under the illustration, said something about a barbed wire fence and how climbing over it to take the photo, was risky to a fellow's clothes.

Looks like the photo, instead of the photo man's clothes, was caught.

Which may or may not account for the mix up illustrations.

However, whoever it was that mixed the photos—we never get mixed when it comes to a man's order.

He gets exactly the house he buys.

Gets it from foot piece to ridge cap.

Gets it, not because he sees to it that he does, but because we see to it.

We see to it, down to the last screw and bolt.

Reckon such seeing-to on our part, has something to do with our reputation for Pleasant Dealing.

Pleasant Dealing, to our notion, starts when the first talk about the deal starts.

Pleasant Dealing ends—well, it doesn't really ever end with us. We end each job pleasantly and promptly start thinking pleasantly about your next one.

Alban Harvey & Sons of Brandywine Summit, Pa., don't hesitate to speak right out loud about our Pleasant Dealing.

Which to them largely means Hitchings fair and squareness.

We recently built for the Harveys and will soon have a chat with you about the new houses.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

Does This Conservatory Pay?

Built by us for Clody's Flower Shop, Chicago, Illinois

THE testimony of Mr. Clody and hundreds of others who have conservatories in connection with their stores proves that they DO pay and pay big.

Of course we are all agreed that advertising to the florist is necessary and profitable. What better advertisement for flowers is there than a conservatory? All the signboards you can put up do not say as much as one glance at a conservatory.

But don't forget the conservatory MUST BE ATTRACTIVE and well built, otherwise your advertisemen will fall flat.

We exercise great care in the design and construction of our conservatories. They are a permanent investment which brings big returns on your money.

May we have the pleasure of submitting an estimate?

Greenhouse Builders

Are You a Waiter Or a Weigher?

Thomas Roland, President of the S. A. F., was the first to use our Chain Gear having a removable hand wheel standard, so the center could be made free for soil filling.

And speaking of gears, wonder if you or your men are tired of tugging and tugging to raise your roof sash? If so, turn to page 67 of our Handy Hand Book, which tells you how to overcome it.

A waiter is one who waits.

A weigher is, then, evidently one who weighs.

However, there are two kinds of waiters.

The kind who wait on others; and the kind who wait with themselves until they get done waiting, and start weighing.

Don't know whether you are a waiter or a weigher, but you and I do know a lot of growers who have done a lot of weighing this year.

They have weighed every side of the building question. Weighed the question of present costs compared with what they might be later, or may be next year.

Then they weighed the estimated difference in such costs, compared with the profits a new house would yield.

When such figure weighing showed up the profits were larger than the possible difference in the cost of materials, those growers bought houses.

And now let us say frankly to you, that unless the weighing up of the real facts tips the scale on your side, don't you build.

But first make sure your scales are correct.

Let's get together and do the weighing.

You say when and where and we'll be there.

Primula Obconica

The Strain that Leads

can be made with our extra early, December-sown Primula obconica plants, than with those usually shipped out in June and later. THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

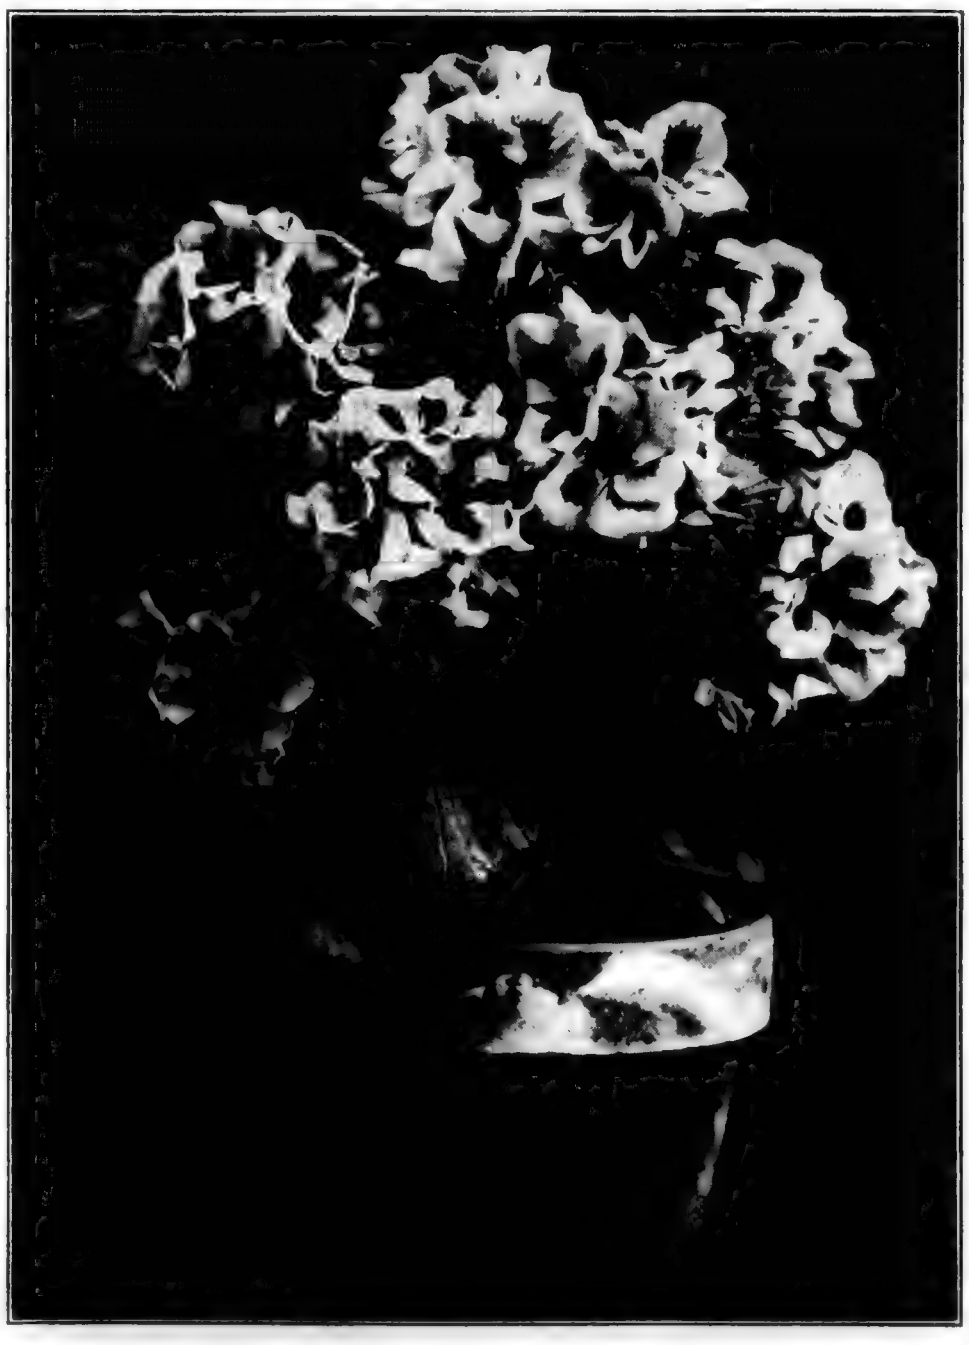
PELARGONIUMS AND THEIR PREFERENCES

Botanically speaking, pelargoniums include all the plants commonly known as geraniums. In this article, however, the word pelargonium is used chiefly in its narrower, more familiar sense, as referring only to one group of pelargoniums, the show group, often called Lady Washington geraniums.



IN CONSIDERING the merits of two of the leading classes of pelargoniums—the show group, usually known simply as pelargoniums, and the zonal group, commonly called geraniums—it must be admitted that each of the two types of plants fills a distinct place, and fills it so well as to deserve a large share of praise. Neither type has a monopoly of the good qualities; each is superb in its own fashion. There would be no excuse for disparaging one type so as to exalt the other by contrast. Most of the limitations or shortcomings of pelargoniums, as distinguished from geraniums, may be summarized in the one statement that the pelargoniums do not enjoy the hot American summers, but prefer the more moderate temperatures and more somber sunlight of Europe. Largely for that reason, their blooming period in America is comparatively short, usually being limited to two months.

Pros and Cons.

The geraniums are more thoroughgoing Americans, developing their colors particularly well under the clear American skies, and blooming continuously. Therefore they serve excellently as house and box plants throughout the year, besides being invaluable in summer for bedding purposes, for which pelargoniums are entirely unsuitable. Two other complaints also have been entered against pelargoniums—that they are a favorite prey of green aphis and that they are liable to drop their petals in damp spring weather if the grower briefly relaxes his vigilance and fails to supply a little artificial heat.

But that about closes the evidence against pelargoniums; now consider some of the testimony in their defense. When in their prime they are superlatively handsome and floriferous; they are then really superior to geraniums as decorative flowering plants. Well grown specimens cannot easily be surpassed in symmetry and gorgeous beauty. In shady piazzas, or in the dry air of residences if the temperature is not too high, they seem to be well contented, growing and flowering satisfactorily. Their blooming period, even when restricted to two months, greatly exceeds that of the average Easter lilies, acacias, spiræas, genistas, azaleas or rambler roses.

Moreover, some of the more modern pelargoniums, such as Easter Greeting and its sports, seem to have gone far toward inuring themselves to the trying conditions of American summers; they are becoming acclimatized and therefore are more persistent bloomers than are the older varieties. The season of bloom may also be appreciably extended by the judicious use of light shading on the glass. While speaking of acclimatization, it may be well to state that nearly all pelargoniums, including the geraniums of greenhouse and garden, are natives of South Africa. Perhaps it should be mentioned also, to avoid all possible misunderstanding, that there is a genus of plants which are botanically called geraniums and sometimes called crane's-bills, and which are used considerably in borders and rockeries, but these are not the well known geraniums of the trade. The florists' geraniums are distinct from the botanists' geraniums.

The Grower of this Easter Greeting Says Topping Is Unnecessary.

Starting a Stock.

In order to describe the complete yearly cycle of operations in pelargonium culture, let it be supposed that the grower, or the prospective grower who is reading these notes, has procured a supply of good-sized stock plants, perhaps in 4-inch or 5-inch pots. If his principal purpose is to obtain cuttings, multitudes of cuttings, he may keep the stock plants growing moderately all summer, preferably planted out in the field, and may secure two or three full crops of cuttings during the season or may continue to take cuttings intermittently, as he needs them, until the last part of September.

If, however, the grower wishes to keep the stock plants in first-class condition as flower-producers for the following year, his right course will be to give them, at the end of their blooming season, a period of partial rest. So he will remove the old flower stems, reduce the water supply and permit the soft growth to ripen. Water will not be entirely withheld, but will not be given in sufficient quantities to encourage new growth. Even under such treatment, the plants may provide material for occasional cuttings throughout the season, but the time for the main harvest of cuttings, in such a case, is a matter of dispute and largely a matter of free choice.

Time to Take Cuttings.

One well known grower states explicitly that the best time to take cuttings is soon after the flowering season; then the wood, naturally, would be only slightly matured. Another good authority says that the cuttings should be taken early in August, from well ripened shoots. Still another grower says he takes his cuttings any time after flowering, but preferably in August.

Many experienced growers obtain their main crop of cuttings in September, when pruning the stock plants into shape in preparing them to be repotted and grown along as flowering plants for the succeeding spring. So late a start of the cuttings may be a disadvantage if well developed plants are wanted for an early Easter. The manitest advantage is, that the supply of wood for cuttings is then abundant, as the stock plants require cutting back at that time and almost every part of the prunings will root, whether young, tender tops or mature wood.

Carrying Stock Plants Over.

Before dismissing the stock plants from mind, perhaps something should be said about the treatment of such of them as are to be carried over for use the following season. In September or early October these plants usually are shaken out of their pots, the long roots as well as the branches are cut back, the soil is shaken off and the plants are placed in pots about one or two sizes smaller than the pots from which they were removed. The repotted plants receive a copious watering. Then begins the process of growing the plants on, a process which is the same, in a general way, as for cuttings. If, however, especially early flowers are wanted, these large plants, after being cut back in September, may be placed directly in the pots in which they are to bloom.

Rooting the Cuttings.

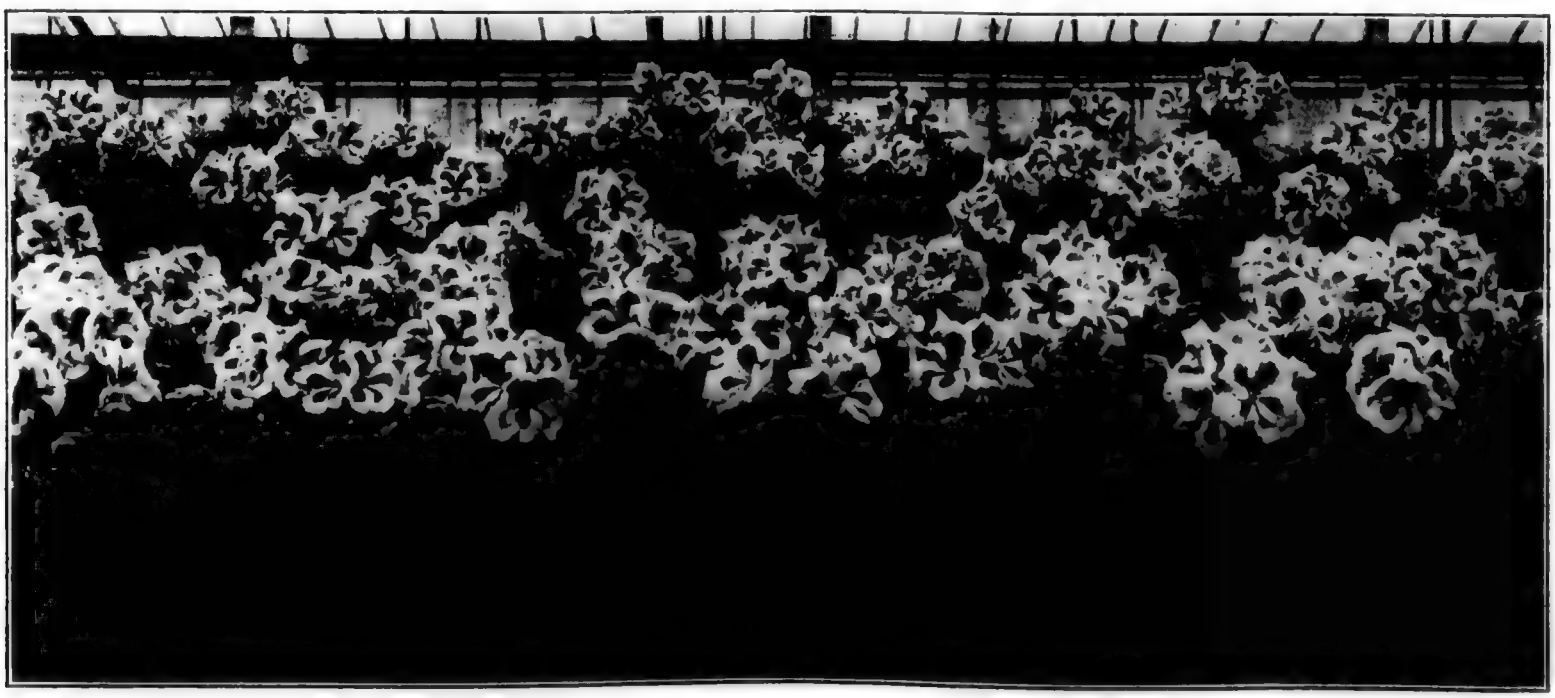
Now to return to the cuttings. If placed in sand, preferably with one eye above and another below the surface, they will root readily, either on a bench or in a frame. They may also be rooted in soil, as are geraniums, but sand usually is preferred. They need only moderate moisture, with little or no shade after the first few days. From four to six weeks later they may be transferred to 2½-inch pots of sandy loam. After they have reëstablished themselves in a somewhat close atmosphere, abundance of air may be admitted. A cool, airy house, with a temperature of 45 degrees at night, will be suitable.

Early in winter they will be ready for their next shift, into 4-inch pots. If first-class plants are wanted for the Easter market, it is desirable to have them ready for this shift in November. On plants intended for Easter flowering, no pinching, or stopping, should be done after November. If late blooms are wanted, the pinching may be continued until the end of February, but must then cease, as the flowering stems usually begin to show about that time.

Naturally Symmetrical.

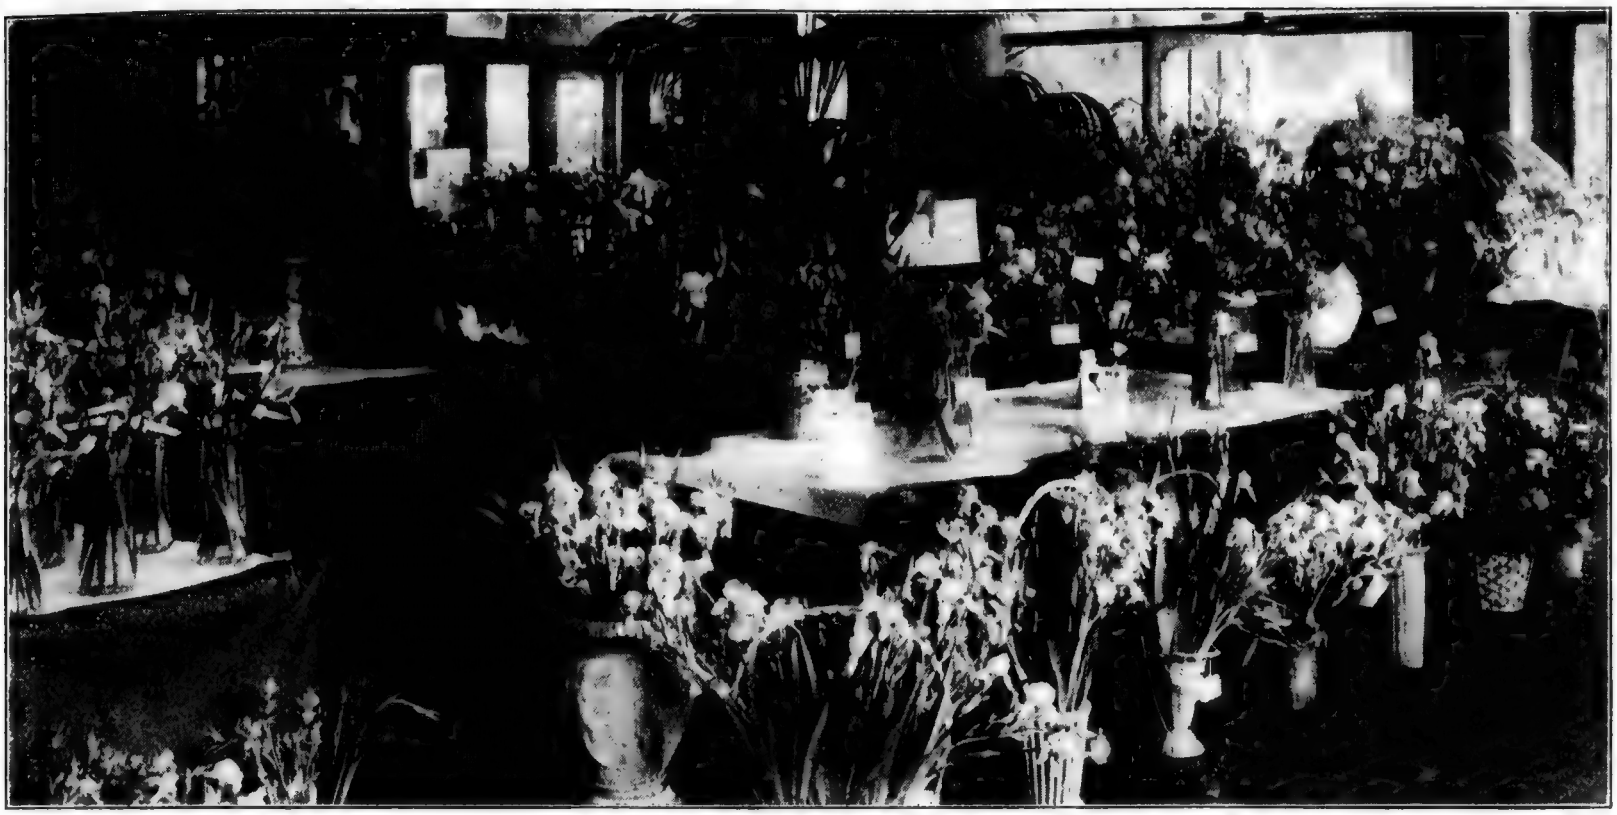
Some varieties, however, require no topping at all. Many of the most successful Easter Greeting growers consider topping entirely unnecessary. They say that the habit of this variety is perfect and that no trimming is needed to produce shapely plants. Easter stock should receive its final shift, into 5-inch or 6-inch pots, before Christmas. In growing plants for later blooming, the last potting may be deferred till February.

In order to have short-jointed, sturdy growth, pelargoniums should be potted firmly, especially in the larger pots. A suitable compost consists of three-fourths fibrous loam and one-fourth cow manure, well decayed, with the addition of a small quantity of sand if it is needed.



Maintaining Steady Growth.

A point that cannot be too greatly emphasized is the necessity of keeping pelargoniums growing steadily from the time they take root in the smallest pots until they are fully in flower. It is true that they should never be forced and should not have a higher temperature than 45 to 50 degrees at night—about 50 degrees in their period of most active growth and slightly less in midwinter. Yet, throughout their growing period, they should never be allowed to lag on account of the lack of a fair amount of food or moisture and should never be checked by delay in potting. In this respect they require much closer and more systematic attention than do the zonal geraniums. Though geraniums also are frequently injured by a prolonged neglect of repotting, followed by overpotting, yet they will endure considerable abuse of that sort. But when pelargoniums need repotting, they should be repotted as promptly as possible. If immediate repotting is impracticable, as in the case of large stock plants, feeding will partly compensate for the lack of the needed shift.



Watering and Feeding.

It is evident, then, that careful attention must be given to watering and feeding. During cold, cloudy weather, especially in the short days of midwinter, the plants need comparatively little water and an excess of it would be harmful. Pelargoniums, like geraniums, should be grown on the dry side rather than otherwise. But in the brighter, warmer days of spring they absorb an abundance of moisture and should not be deprived of it.

In late winter and early spring, say in February and March, when the plants naturally make their strongest growth, they may be stimulated, if necessary, by the judicious use of artificial fertilizers and this manner of feeding may be continued until they come into bloom. After they are well rooted in their final pots, liquid manure alternated with chemical top-dressings forms a good dietary—if such rich food seems to be needed. There is always a possibility of overfeeding, or pampering, and no precise rules for the rationing of the plants can be given without knowing the exact nature of the soil. Each grower must settle such uncertainties for himself and it is the right solution of such questions that distinguishes between skillful and unskillful growers

In damp, cool weather, it is well to avoid wetting the leaves unnecessarily. The watering always should be so planned as to allow the foliage to dry before night. A chilly dampness in the atmosphere also is detrimental. Generally speaking, pelargoniums prefer a dry atmosphere. On cold, wet days even so late in the season as May, when the plants are in bloom, it is often a wise precaution to drive out the dampness by means of a little fire heat, so as to avoid possible injury to the flowers.

The Suppression of Pests.

As intimated at the start of this article, green aphis is partial to pelargoniums. This pest may be held in check by a weekly fumigation, but fumigation with tobacco, and especially with tobacco stems, must be employed with some degree of caution, as the foliage is somewhat tender and is susceptible to injury from extremely strong tobacco fumes. After the plants are in flower, smoke from tobacco stems would be liable to cause the petals to fall. But why use such antiquated fumigating material as tobacco stems, since there are nicotine extracts, nicotine papers and other modern forms of nicotine preparations, which are sufficiently effective and entirely safe? Some pelargonium growers think it advisable to rely principally on fluid insecticides.

If white fly puts in an appearance, hydrocyanic acid gas is the only sure remedy. This gas is decidedly the most effective of all insecticides; it is sure, safe and convenient if the grower is accustomed to its use.

Red spider is not at all likely to be troublesome unless invited and encouraged by the dryness and heat that form congenial conditions for that pest, and such conditions are easily avoided, since pelargoniums love a cool atmosphere.

IRIS SOCIETY HOLDS SHOW.

At Columbus, O.

The first show of the American Iris Society was held at Columbus, O., May 20 to 22. Through the coöperation of the local retail florists, the Columbus Horticultural Society, the Columbus Iris Society and the newspapers, it proved an overwhelming success. Commercial and amateur growers from many states had exhibits which astonished the many visitors to the show, which was held in the new Oldsmobile building, at Cleveland and Broad streets. Prizes aggregating about $500 were awarded in more than a score of classes of exhibits. The show was open from morning till 10 p. m. and was full of visitors at all times, many of whom lived at a great distance.

The judges were F. P. Mead, Fort Wayne, Ind.; C. P. Connell, Nashville, Tenn., and B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the society officers were reëlected as follows: President, John C. Wister; treasurer, Frank H. Presby; secretary, R. F. Sturdevant, Wellesley Farms, Mass.

Visitors expressed themselves as overwhelmed at the cordial reception tendered them by the Columbus flower growers and at the size, variety and quality of the blooms displayed at the show by the iris growers of Columbus.

Many of the prizes were for artistic arrangements and the decorators of several retail florists aided in arranging some of these.

Prof. A. C. Hottes gave a lecture on the iris and several interesting discussions followed. Some of the medium-priced varieties which can be used for commercial display and arrangements included pallida dalmatica, Brionensis, Rhein Nixe, Iris King, Loreley, Arnols, Mme. Chereau, Othello, flavescens and aurea.

Lee R. Bonnewitz was winner of the American Iris Society silver medal for the commercial exhibitor making the most comprehensive display in all classes. Mr. Bonnewitz is a former president of the American Peony Society and is located at Van Wert, O. W. J. Engle & Sons, of Dayton, O., also had some beautiful specimens.

Mrs. Samuel Taft, of Cincinnati, exhibited Dominion, which was judged the finest bloom at the show.

Many new varieties were shown. Some of them were Sherbert, Quaker Lady, Afterglow, Kochii, Fairy, Isoline, Stamboul, Madame Paquette and Black Prince.

Retailers Aid.

It was estimated that between 400 and 500 varieties were used in the exhibition. Some groups contained as high as 600 stalks in one display and were arranged by decorators from local retail florists.

The iris as a commercial flower can be used to great advantage, as was shown in the recent wedding of Miss Thelma Hazelton, where baskets made of choice iris furnished by Mrs. E. J. Spencer were combined with roses, peas, phlox and double narcissi to make some wonderful designs.

The members of the American Iris Society are enthusiastic over the success of the show and are planning to make the next show bigger and better than this one. Many new members were acquired and the society is growing rapidly. Many of the Columbus members grow irises for various Columbus retailers and are finding it a profitable as well as enjoyable vocation.

Out-of-town visitors to the show included John C. Wister, Philadelphia, president of the society; Frank H.

Presby, Montclair, N. J., treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bonnewitz and daughter, Alice, Van Wert; Carl F. Wassenberg, Van Wert; Harry A. Norton, Quebec, Canada; F. P. Mead, Fort Wayne, Ind.; C. P. Connell, Nashville, Tenn.; B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.; W. J. Engle & Son, Dayton; Charles F. Wing, Mechanicsburg; E. E. Shaw and Frank B. Garman, Akron; K. K. Lorenz, Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Buskirk, Independence, O., and E. F. Rowley, Toledo. J. W. T.

DAHLIA SUGAR.

It was not so long ago that the cane sugar growers had a corner on the sugar market. Then came beet sugar and it put quite a considerable hole in their trade prestige. And now it seems that both beet and cane sugar are going to be up against a strong competitor.

For several years, R. Vincent, Jr., of the Richard Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., has been sending several tons of dahlia tubers to an industrial school at Schenectady, N. Y., and last spring he sent several roots to the economic bureau of the Department of Agriculture. Both of these places have carried on extensive experiments for the purpose of learning the exact economic value of dahlia roots for making sugar.

Some of the experts from the bureau recently visited Mr. Vincent and, from what they told him, he believes that there is a great future in dahlia sugar. A splendid article can be produced. It makes a beautiful, clear, white syrup. And the sugar produced is sweeter than cane or beet sugar. Furthermore, it is a sugar that persons suffering from diabetes can use, whereas the other sugars are generally fatal to them.

Mr. Vincent says that there are plans to plant about 5,000 acres of dahlias for their tubers only.

WATCH OUT FOR THIS MAN.

About a month ago we employed, at our greenhouse, a young man about 26 years old, who gave his name as John L. Wilkenson. He stated that he had recently arrived from the western coast and claimed to have worked at various large places, among which he gave the name of R. F. Wilcox, Montebello, Cal. From the way he went about his work, we believe that he has had considerable experience. Friday night, May 13, he disappeared, taking with him cash which he had received from sales at the greenhouse, to the approximate amount of $35 or $40 that can be accounted for; possibly it might have been more. Besides this, he forged a check and cashed it at a grocery store, to the amount of $62.50.

His description is as follows: About five feet eight inches tall, well built, light complexion and blue eyes, with inflamed, red eyelids. His speech is fluent and fast. His front teeth are rather prominent and far apart. He is in company with a young girl, who claims to be his wife. She is slight and small.

He, no doubt, will seek employment at other greenhouses, and we wish that the man may be apprehended.

CREDIT WHERE IT IS DUE.

I admired on the inside cover of your issue of May 19 the set-up of the Lord & Burnham Co. advertisement, and while reading it I noticed my name mentioned.

I do not mind if at times somebody else gets credit for what I am doing, but I certainly do not want to get credit which belongs to others. The credit for that little slogan, "After thirty days say it with a check," belongs absolutely to the F. T. D. office in Detroit. I believe Mr. Pochelon introduced it, and it certainly helps florists keep their accounts in prime condition. Mr. Pochelon deserves the credit which Lord & Burnham Co. thought so kindly to give to Max Schling. I thought so well of Mr. Pochelon's introduction that in some cases we are using the little paster, which is supplied by the F. T. D. office on request, on some of the bills of our private customers, with good results.

MECHANICVILLE FUEL BURNER.

The Mechanicville fuel burner, which I used last winter, is one in which the fuel is burned under forced draft. The customary grates are entirely done away with, and the grate surface is filled with plates of cast-iron in which are burners, somewhat on the principle of a blacksmith's tuyere. They are placed at regular intervals, and the number is according to the size of the boiler. The draft is supplied by a blower run by an electric motor, and the air is conducted through piping beneath the boiler room floor which connects with burners in the ash pit. The motor is regulated by an attachment which automatically starts it when the steam goes down to the desired minimum pressure and stops it when the pressure reaches the desired maximum. The air and pressure can be varied to suit almost any condition.

Formerly we used the three-quarter lump soft coal, hand fired, over the usual grates and with all the resultant smoke and dirt. We are now using hard coal screenings, hand fired, at considerably longer intervals and with much less dirt and no smoke. After numerous trials, twenty-four hours with soft coal and then twenty-four hours with screenings, we find the consumption in weight practically the same, but as the soft coal costs us $9 per ton and the screenings $3.50, there is a saving here which is worth while. We figure that the less attention required in firing will pay the cost of power, which averages around 40 cents for twenty-four hours.

If some genius of mechanical bent could invent a magazine with automatic feed in connection with this outfit, it would be a boon indeed, for florists especially. John Lawrance.

TAR FOR PECKY CYPRESS.

I heartily endorse the use of gas tar for pecky cypress as advised by William Walker in The Review for May 19. However, I prepare the lumber in another manner. I apply the tar liberally and hot to thoroughly dry boards, using a large paint brush. Then the lumber is piled outside and given a slant to shed rain. Between the layers on the pile are placed 2x4-inch lengths of lumber, and thus a 4-inch air space is obtained. The boards are given a drying out for two weeks and then another coat of tar is applied. At the end of the second cure, a board is sawed and the gas tar penetration is observed. If it did not soak in to a depth equal to one-quarter of the thickness of the board, another coat is applied to the side of the board that is to be the finished inside of the bench. All nail heads are set and floated level with the tar in order to prevent rusting.

Ventilators should remain open during the erection of the benches and the covering of the surface. Such a bench will last for twenty years, provided it is not attacked by white ants or termites, and even they will not operate through the tar-treated section.

AN IDEA FOR MORE BUSINESS.

Referring to the article in The Review for May 12 concerning the compilation of a mailing list, I have an idea that may help those who sell trees, shrubbery, rose bushes and nursery stock to be planted. My idea is to get names from the construction departments of the various building magazines, which are on sale at almost all news stands. Such a magazine usually publishes reports of construction plans, some time before the date of building, on everything from a dwelling house to a skyscraper. I believe nurserymen and florists doing landscape planting could get a good many prospective customers from those announcements. They put the seller in direct contact with the builder, who has the ready money and the place to plant growing stock.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Chicago, Ill.—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed against the Carl Netschert Co., May 23, the petitioning creditors being Oscar Leistner, Rossig Bros. and the Millinery World, with aggregate claims of $3,206. No estimate of the assets was available. In the early days of the trade Carl Netschert was the principal dealer in florists' supplies in Chicago, handling the then staples in conjunction with church and millinery accessories and artificial flowers. As supply houses developed specializing on florists' stock Mr. Netschert gradually was crowded from the field and since the business passed to other hands little effort has been made to do business among florists, although some old-time customers still sent orders.

TEST YOUR OWN SOIL

By DR. P. A. LEHENBAUER.

ACID SOILS.

How to Know Them.

Inquiries are sent to us at the experiment station at the University of Illinois from time to time by growers in regard to acid soil. They tell us that they have applied manures and other fertilizers to the soil, but, nevertheless, the plants are not growing as they should. This is followed by the inference that the soil is acid and the question is raised, "Do you think that my soil is acid?" or "How can I tell if my soil is acid?"

It is true that many soils are acid in reaction. Probably the majority of the soils in the eastern and southern states are of this nature and, in addition, some sections of the middle western states are usually considered as acid soils. Acid soils also are of frequent occurrence in greenhouses. It is probable that they are even more common in greenhouses, for there the conditions for the development of acidity are usually more favorable.

Some Plants Prefer Acid Soil.

The fact that a soil is slightly acid in reaction does not mean that plants will not grow in it. There are many forms of plants that can tolerate soil acidity; in fact, there are some which prefer an acid soil. Lupines, for instance, grow well in a soil which is slightly or medium acid and some investigators have even found that liming the soil is injurious to these plants. The common sheep sorrel also thrives well on soil which is distinctly acid. There are other plants which, though they are well adapted to acid soils, grow better in soils which have received lime. Many plants, on the other hand, do not tolerate an acid soil, but demand for growth a soil which is non-acid. Clover and alfalfa belong to this group. The usual greenhouse crops of the florist have not been carefully studied in this respect, although it is generally assumed that all respond better in a soil which is not acid.

How Soils Become Acid.

The exact cause of soil acidity is not completely understood. A number of factors unquestionably are contributory, and the conditions which bring about acidity are somewhat variable in the different types of soils. We find statements to the effect that some plants exude small quantities of acid from their roots during growth and an accumulation of this acid secretion will eventually produce a sour soil. The statement, too, is occasionally made that heavy watering of the benches will produce a sour soil. This is not necessarily true, though it is quite true that soils which are kept wet and become water-logged tend to become more acid, while soils which are well drained tend to become less acid. It is not necessarily true that low, wet soils are sour soils, though this is occasionally the case.

Soils become sour when they lose their lime or other substances which are similar, chemically speaking. In the language of the soil chemist, soils become acid when there is a deficiency of bases. This deficiency is brought about by several conditions. The most important is the loss of the bases by means of the drainage water. The lime, or, to be more exact, the calcium, and other bases are leached out of the soil by means of water. This is the most important factor. The bases also are lost from the soil because growing plants remove them by absorbing them through the roots. There is one other factor. Organic matter, such as manures and dead plant material decaying in the soil, is acid in character and this acid neutralizes the bases; that is, it combines with the bases and this, we may say, removes the influence of the bases in keeping the soil non-acid. As organic matter continues to decay, more acid is produced and thus there is an accumulation of it after the lime, or other bases, have disappeared.

As is well known, in order to correct acidity lime is used. In a later article I shall discuss the different forms of lime compounds and the use of each. The point under discussion at present is how to tell if the soil needs lime.

Soil requirements are often perplexing problems to growers who have not gained familiarity with them by long experience. Some of the problems, however, are not difficult for growers to solve. Every grower, for instance, can learn for himself whether his soil is acid or not by applying certain simple tests, described on this page. Corrective methods will be given in a later article.

Some Plants Indicate Acidity.

For outdoor soils, a good index of so-called acidity is the vegetation found growing on the soil. As said above, some plants are more sensitive to an acid condition than others. As a rule, the greater the acidity the smaller the number of plants. Therefore, as the acidity increases certain forms of plants disappear while others continue to thrive and multiply. Clover and alfalfa disappear quite early, while the common plantain and the sheep sorrel continue to grow and spread in an acid soil. Inspection of the kinds of plants on a soil, therefore, affords an indication of acidity. However, this method must be used judiciously. We must remember that the presence of sheep sorrel alone does not prove acidity, for this plant will grow quite well on soil which is not acid; it is the presence of the sorrel together with the absence or poor growth of clover or alfalfa which is indicative of acidity.

By growing these different forms of plants, alfalfa and sorrel, in the greenhouse benches in a similar way their relative growth will serve as an index to the reaction of the soil. If the soil is unfavorable to the growth of alfalfa, but supports a good growth of sorrel, there is reasonable assurance that the soil is in need of lime.

The Litmus Paper Test.

Another method which is fairly satisfactory from the qualitative standpoint is the litmus paper test. In order to be reliable, however, the test must be properly made and its shortcomings must be appreciated. Litmus paper is either red or blue or "neutral" in color. When a strip of blue or neutral paper comes in contact with an acid it is changed in color from blue to pink or red, the intensity of color and the quickness of the change depending on the concentration of the acid. An alkali, as for instance lime, on the other hand, turns either the red or neutral paper to a blue color. Therefore, when either the blue or the neutral litmus paper is turned red when in contact with moist soil, the usual indication is that the soil is acid and that it does not contain much, if any, lime.

Litmus paper may be purchased from the druggist in the form of small strips. It comes in small vials and the paper should be kept in these containers, tightly corked, and preferably in the dark when not making a test. The moist hand must not come in contact with the paper, for perspiration is acid in character. It is best to use a pair of forceps in handling litmus papers.

How to Use Litmus Paper.

A number of slightly different methods have been recommended in making the test for acidity by means of litmus paper. Any method will do, provided certain precautions, given below, are carefully observed. If the soil is dry, a small amount may be placed in a clean tumbler and moistened with boiled, soft water so as to get the soil in a good, moist condition. By making two openings in this soil with a stick, a red paper should be placed in one and a blue in the other opening. A slightly different procedure is to place the two pieces of litmus on a piece of clean window glass, make a ball of the wet soil, break it into two parts, place one of the parts, flat side down, on the papers, press down firmly and allow to stand about ten minutes. By looking through the glass any change of color may be observed. If the soil is acid, the blue litmus should turn to a pink or red color. If there is an abundance of lime in the soil, the red paper will turn at first to a neutral color and later, in the course of an hour, to a blue color. If, however, the soil is only slightly acid the color test is not a sharp one and it is difficult to get positive results.

Make Litmus Test Carefully.

As said above, the litmus paper test has certain limitations. In order to get reliable results, certain precautions must be taken and the possibilities of the test kept in mind. The test is only a qualitative one; that is, it indicates only whether or not the soil is acid in reaction; it is of no value as an exact quantitative test. In noting the change of color of the paper, a mere fading of the blue color must not be mistaken for an acid reaction; the change of color should be from blue to pink or pink red. It is well to make several tests in order to understand clearly this change of color. It also must be kept in mind that carbon dioxide dissolved in water will turn the blue paper to a permanent red color. Carbon dioxide is excreted by living roots and, therefore, in testing fresh soil all living roots must be kept away from the paper. The soil water also may contain sufficient carbon dioxide dissolved in it to bring about the color change. It is, therefore, best to use fairly dry soil and wet this, just preceding the test, with soft water which has been previously boiled and allowed to cool partially before using. With these precautions the litmus test will give very satisfactory results.

Another test occasionally used is to add to a little finely pulverized soil a small amount of dilute hydrochloric acid, also known as muriatic acid. If there is no effervescence it is an indication that the proportion of carbonate of lime is low. This, however, is not an infallible test, nor is it a positive test that the soil contains excessive amounts of acid.

Chemical tests such as may be carried out in a properly equipped laboratory alone can give definite quantitative tests for acidity and the amount of lime in a soil. However, the tests given above, when applied judiciously and with a knowledge of the limitations of the tests, afford reliable information and, with a little practice, any florist may keep his soil in proper condition as regards the use of lime.

THE LOS ANGELES ROSE.

At San Diego.

The illustrations here shown are especially interesting, as they show the wonderful Los Angeles rose, its raiser and a portion of the beautiful grounds at San Diego, where the exposition was held a few years ago. The height of this exquisite variety can be judged by comparing it with the height of the covered pergola, which is about twenty-five feet. Fred H. Howard, who is standing in front of the other picture with Mrs. Howard, is five feet ten inches in height. The size of the individual blossom is well shown by the flower in front of Mrs. Howard's arm. And of the many thousands of fine blooms shown, hardly a single imperfect one could be found. This is almost enough recommendation as a superb garden rose, while to this must be added that the coloring is magnificent and the variety is sufficiently hardy to thrive in the New England states almost as well as in California, its native state.

In speaking of Los Angeles, Mr. Howard was careful to call attention to the fact that hard annual pruning is not desirable. It produces large nodes, or swellings, at the base, and from these are thrown up vigorous canes six to seven feet in height, these again breaking into lateral shoots two and one-half to three feet long and covered with the fine blossoms. These are produced with the greatest freedom and in California this rose is an almost constant bloomer.

The color is difficult to describe. It is a glowing rosy pink with a gold base to the petals, but it must be seen to be appreciated. This rose, it will be recalled, was awarded the gold medal at Paris two years ago against all comers, while its reception in America has been unprecedented.

Exposition Grounds.

This rose is only one of the many fine things to be seen at the San Diego exposition grounds, where John G. Morley presides as ably as ever. The water lilies are wonderful now, as indeed are all the specialties introduced here by Mr. Morley, a man of whom San Diego is proud. During the time of preparation for the big show, he turned a barren, rocky waste into one of the finest landscapes in the country, and he is now responsible for its upkeep, which is such that the city is becoming famous for it. At this or any other time of year no one who visits California should think of leaving without a visit to this wonderful park.

ST. LOUIS FLOWER SHOW.

Attracts Large Attendance.

The second annual flower show given by the St. Louis Garden Club opened May 21, at the floral display house at the Missouri Botanical Garden. It was free to the public and the attendance was large.

President Duggan, in a talk, welcomed the visitors and in turn introduced Mayor Henry W. Kiel, who spoke on what the Missouri Botanical Garden has accomplished for the people of St. Louis since Henry Shaw, at his death, turned over the garden to the city. Saturday and Sunday, May 21 and 22, the life of the show, the big display house, was taxed to capacity.

The amateur section of the perennials, annuals and house plants was much larger than last year, but the vegetable section was small compared with last year.

The commercial growers' and the retailers' sections were nearly all taken up by a few local and outside growers. This section was open to any within twenty-five miles of St. Louis.

Retailers' Section.

The retail section, which was noncompetitive, was surprisingly small as compared with last year. There were no table or mantel decorations, as there were last year. In the basket of flowers class the exhibition was quite large and attractive.

Among the exhibitors were Thomas Carr, Vandervoort's floral department, Joseph Witek, Paul Heil, F. C. Weber, George Waldbart Floral Co., and the Mullanphy Florists, Inc. All of them used choice cut stock and excellent judgment in workmanship. All the exhibits were highly commended by the judges. In this section, F. C. Weber showed an excellent bride's bouquet and the Mullanphy Florists showed a hanging basket, a window box and a fern dish, which were also commented upon. A. G. Greiner showed four pans for table use of small cactus plants, which attracted much attention.

Growers' Classes.

The blooming plant section was sadly neglected and only two entries were made. Philip Goebel, Jr., was awarded first place with twelve calla lily plants. Frank J. Fillmore & Son were awarded all firsts on the following: Hydrangea specimen plants, six plants of marguerite, twelve pelargoniums, twelve geraniums, twelve heliotropes, twelve fuchsias, one specimen fern, twelve coleus, one Asparagus plumosus specimen plant. He was awarded second on specimen palm plants.

W. H. Kruse was first for a palm collection of twelve plants and for a collection of ferns of not less than six varieties. Mullanphy Florists, Inc., took first for a specimen palm. The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. was first in the exhibit for evergreen plants and second for a collection of palms. John Steidle, of Olivette, took the blue ribbons for twelve Begonia Chatelaine plants and a specimen plant of begonia. These plants were extra fine and attracted both the growers and public.

Cut Flowers.

In the cut flower sections the awards were as follows:

The judges of the exhibits were as follows: Commercial growers' exhibits, Gustave Grossart, George H. Pring, Roland Hoerr and J. J. Beneke; amateur exhibits, L. P. Jensen, L. Jules Bourdet and W. A. Rowe; floral arrangements, Miss Julia Armstrong and F. H. Weber.

General Success.

Both days of the show, the weather was perfect and the big display house should have been again as large to hold the crowds. President R. M. Duggan and the members of the Garden Club expressed great satisfaction at the successful result of their second attempt and the management wishes to thank all members of the trade who took part in making the show the success it was.

The committee in charge of disposal of the flowers was composed of several society ladies, and Mrs. W. A. Mathews was chairman. She announced that the flowers would be sent to the various hospitals at the close of the show.

LONG ISLAND'S OUTLOOK.

A tour among the growers on Long Island found all in the position of Henry Weston, of Hempstead, N. Y., up to their eyes in work and working with a will, encouraged by the good season, despite all the setbacks. It was found, as assumed by Mr. Weston, that the florists, like himself, have been kept closer at home, finding that personal service counts more than ever. Patrons are more critical and, at the same time, more appreciative. The grower who specializes in cut flowers is busy planting out, the soil being in fine shape and the weather cool, enabling the plants to take root. The wholesale plant growers and those who also retail their product were never in better shape for either quantity or quality, and the majority are on the qui vive to boost the trade locally to the fullest degree, realizing that the individual undoubtedly can accomplish more than hitherto thought of or attempted. Prices are firm, although it is expected they will average lower than last year, but it is generally accepted that the many reductions in various materials will largely, if not completely, offset this and the employees are in sympathy, giving of their best for the good of the service.

While it promises to be one of the busiest summers on the island for several seasons, what with "fixing up" and new building beyond the average, there is already talk of attending the convention of the S. A. F. at Washington in August, owing chiefly to the fact that the majority, if not all, own and operate automobiles and will no doubt be seen in more family parties than ever before.

Commenting upon the seed situation on the island, J. N. Hewlett, of Freeport, who is a veteran in the seed trade and who caters largely to market gardeners, expresses the belief that much conservatism is being shown in buying and that planting is on the short side.

AT EDWARDSVILLE

GROWERS' BOARD LAYS PLANS.

Meeting at Edwardsville.

A meeting of the executive committee of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association was held at Edwardsville, Ill., May 17, at Pfeiffer's hotel. In the absence of President Walter A. Amling, who missed train connections, Vice-President W. J. Pilcher presided over the meeting.

When the meeting was called to order, there were present: W. J. Hembreiker and A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill.; James A. Cole, Peoria, Ill.; J. W. Ross, Centralia, Ill.; W. A. Rowe and W. J. Pilcher, Kirkwood, Mo.; Henry Blixen and Leroy Smith, Edwardsville, Ill.; Frank J. Fillmore and J. J. Beneke, St. Louis, Mo., and C. E. DeWever, of Olivette, Mo. The absentees were: Ludwig Stapp, Rock Island, Ill.; W. A. Amling, Pana, Ill., and Joseph Deutschmann, Webster Groves, Mo. The minutes of the previous executive committee meeting, held at Springfield, Ill., were approved as read by the secretary. The secretary's report showed fifty-nine members in good standing. Eleven were in arrears with their second quarter's dues. The total receipts were $986.55, and the total disbursements were $518.19, leaving a balance of $468.36. Treasurer Rowe's report showed the same balance. After approval by the auditing committee, the reports were accepted and ordered filed.

Purchasing Committee.

Reports from the various committees then came up for discussion. Chairman Rowe, of the purchasing committee, asked the secretary to read several letters received from firms, with prices on glass, lumber, twine, automobile tires, flower pots, paper and pipe. After a full discussion on these, Mr. Rowe asked for an additional member for his committee. The members, after a full discussion, appointed W. J. Pilcher as the fourth member of this committee. The committee sent out a list of prices obtained to all the members, for them to order from. A cash working capital was assigned to this committee.

The pot plantsmen's committee and the retail growers' committee were not ready with their reports and were given until the next meeting.

Centralia Meeting.

J. W. Ross, of Centralia, Ill., was then given the floor for a talk on plans for the district's quarterly meeting to be held at Centralia, July 19. Mr. Ross stated that he had already laid his plans for the meeting. One of the features will be a flower show in connection with the meeting. He looked for help from all the growers in the district, and especially from the members of the association, to make the show a success. All the city officials and the Rotary Club have assured Mr. Ross that they will coöperate with him, and the members voted to do the same. Mr. Ross was appointed chairman of the entertainment committee and he is to select the members who will work with him.

The next executive committee meeting will be held at Centralia, Ill., July 19, at 9 a. m., and the quarterly meeting of the district will be at 10 a. m. Both meetings will be held at the city hall, which has been arranged for.

The members then extended a rising vote of thanks to Henry Blixen and Leroy Smith for the hospitality they had shown.

Automobile Tour.

After the meeting, an enjoyable dinner was served at the hotel, after which an automobile tour through the city was enjoyed. The tour ended at the establishment of the Woodland Gardens, the home of Vice-President H. Blixen. The principal stock there is roses, carnations, sweet peas and mums. The 17,000 square feet of ground covered by glass was found in first-class condition. From there, the members were taken over to the J. F. Ammann Co. range. Of course, the members greatly missed the genial proprietor himself, who is on his western trip. They were conducted through by Leroy Smith, one of the company. The range consists of 50,000 square feet of ground covered by glass, all in roses and principally Premier and Columbia. The place, as usual, was found in tiptop shape. J. J. B.

FIGHTING MUM MIDGE.

I am enclosing a sample of insect-infested mums. Will you tell what kind of insect it is, and give a remedy for it? M. G.—Ky.

The sample chrysanthemum was badly infested with chrysanthemum midge. This pest is the most stubborn and difficult to subdue that the chrysanthemum grower has to contend with. If the stock is badly infested, the only safe method to follow is to destroy it and start with clean stock, but since some varieties are more susceptible to the attacks of the midge than others, by isolating a particular batch of plants which are infested and fighting the pest, you may be able to get it under control.

First remove those plants that are badly infested and destroy them. Then pick off any parts of the others that show signs of the midge and start spraying the balance of the stock with a nicotine solution. Spray every evening for a week or ten days and supplement this spraying with fumigations with tobacco papers two or three times a week. These may appear to be drastic measures, but they are the cheapest and most effective. M. P.

Mainly About People

Coalport, Pa.—William H. Brause, who was in the florists' business several years ago, is planning to enter it again in this town.

Larimore, N. D.—Many florists have various other professions or occupations, but here is a case that may be unequaled: S. F. Mercer, who deals in seeds and plants, also is justice of the peace and the noxious weed commissioner.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Bert J. Putnam, who has furnished many florists with goldfish and aquarium supplies, was suddenly stricken with pneumonia recently and was ordered by his physician to the mountains for several weeks.

Beardstown, Ill.—Arvid Anderson has resigned his position as head gardener at the Deere estate, at Overlook, Moline, Ill., and will go into partnership with Mr. Ede. They have purchased the store and greenhouses of Frank Bros., at Beardstown, and will operate under the name of the Roseview Greenhouses.

Hampton, Ia.—A. E. Stonebrook, who does a general florist, nursery and gardening business, reports the largest spring trade on record, but says a smaller part than usual was cash. He is developing the telegraph delivery feature of the business. He sent out a good many orders without receiving many coming in for local delivery until he put a card in the Pink Part of The Review, since which time the incoming orders have increased steadily.

Big Horn, Wyo.—In connection with his ranch, Goelet Gallatin runs a vegetable garden and this year has put in a large number of flowers, including 1,000 iris.

Scranton, Pa.—Francis J. Moran has become a member of the firm of Vanston & Conwell, of which he has been the manager for several years. The company will be known as Vanston, Conwell & Moran.

Newton, Mass.—Sergeant Robert D. Bridgham, a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, was recently nominated for the position of second lieutenant in that organization. A letter sent to all the members and signed by some of the most prominent told in flowery terms and in a most complimentary manner of Mr. Bridgham's sterling qualifications for holding this position.

Missoula, Mont.—Frank X. Scully, of the R. & S. Flower Store, is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of Robert Paetow, who was a grower at their establishment several years ago. Mr. Paetow's brother in Berlin has been trying to get into communication with him and for old friendship's sake Mr. Scully is doing his best to assist. If any florist knows Mr. Paetow's present whereabouts, Mr. Scully will be glad to hear from him and to convey the word that Mr. Paetow should write to his family in Berlin.

THE RETAIL STORE

EMPLOYEES' CO-OPERATION.

Getting Help from the Helpers.

Coöperation has been the cause of much oral and written comment. But the coöperation that is usually the theme of the comment is the banding together of the many stores in a community or the working together of the whole trade. The coöperation that this story deals with is the working together of the men in one store, the workers with the workers and the workers with the boss. Too often the owner of the flower store runs the store all by himself. Bill and John, the helpers, go about doing just what their boss tells them to do. He keeps them busy giving them orders. "Well, they don't know enough to do any more," says some owner. But that florist is forgetting that responsibility breeds responsibility, that one "think" is conducive to other "thinks."

If a florist is doing his thinking, worrying, carrying all the responsibilities and cares, all by himself, he is making a big mistake. The helper may have overalls on, he may seem to be good for nothing but to dig dirt or to stand back of the counter telling the price of some plant or flower. But give him the chance to think once. Ask him his opinion of some contemplated action. If his opinion is good, follow it. Then stand by and watch the results. The chances are about ninety-nine to one that he will well repay that compliment. A few days later he will come around with a suggestion. And the chances are that it will be a suggestion that will be worth while acting upon. But whether or not it is a usable idea, it shows that he is interested in the business and is doing some constructive thinking in order to devise better means and methods for conducting the store for a profit. And this helper is just as likely to be able to give some good idea for improving the methods as is some man standing around posing as a successful business expert.

Exercise Necessary.

Give him some responsibility, and his capacity for assuming responsibility will grow. Capability for shouldering responsibility needs exercise just as much as any of the muscles. A great athlete is not made in a day. If he is a runner, his leg muscles are trained and are given constant exercise. If he is a marksman, his eyes are trained and are used freely so as to become accustomed to judging heights and distances. So if a helper is to become a real help around the store, he must be trained to shoulder responsibilities and do some constructive thinking. And the only way to exercise him in these two things is to give him some responsibility and let him know that he is not wasting time when he thinks.

That is the way that large, successful corporations are run. Not by one man that sits in his office and plays that he is the king. He is surrounded by men who counsel him at his every move. These men meet and discuss the business at frequent intervals. The result is that each one of this group is as interested in the business as is the owner. They are all working for the welfare of the business. They are all constantly thinking and working for further success for the firm.

Kings Are Worried.

The government is the same. The president is surrounded by his cabinet and the members of the cabinet in turn are surrounded by their groups of helpers. Each and every governmental official has his advisers. And it has proved a much more successful government than the old, out-of-date king method. Hardly a king that feels that his job is safe. They are being deposed every day.

The answer of Andrew Carnegie tells the story in a few words. He was asked to give the reasons for his success. He replied, "I know enough to surround myself with men who know more than I do."

So, every florist who operates a store will find that the store will run much better if he has a group of helpers who are coöperating with him and with whom he is coöperating.

AUTOMOBILES AND FLOWERS.

Arthur R. Weathers thought that anyone who could afford to buy an automobile surely ought to be in the market for flowers. So, acting on this idea, he placed a flower booth among the various automobile booths at the eastern Carolina automobile show, which was held at Rocky Mount, N. C., the second week in May. As the illustration on this page shows, the booth was profusely decorated with ferns, hanging baskets, boxwood plants and cut flowers. There also was a Victrola playing "Say It with Flowers." Each night different cut flowers were used, and one night there was a display with an unusually handsome orchid corsage featured in it.

The booth attracted much attention and was generally well surrounded with a crowd viewing the beautiful display of flowers. Mr. Weathers, who operates the Rocky Mount Floral Co., at Rocky Mount, says, "This has been a great advertisement for me and I feel fully repaid for my time, trouble and expense."

This was an unusual place for a floral display, and the idea only goes to show how well flowers can be advertised in almost any place where a florist wants to advertise them.

APPROPRIATE ADVERTISING.

Out in sunny California, in the town of Anaheim, the citizens and business men are not behind the times. They are alive to the fact that good advertising pays. And one of the most distinctive and original advertising mediums in the town is that of Howard E. Gates, who operates a florists' business there.

Booth in Automobile Show that Brought Business to North Carolina Florist.

One of the most talked of and the best known phrases used in the town is "At the sign of the Gates." At the entrance to his flower growing garden, Mr. Gates has erected an old-fashioned garden gate. The two things painted on this gate are Mr. Gates' name and the slogan "Say It with Flowers." That is where the saying "At the sign of the Gates" originated.

This linking of a name and an appropriate symbol was so original that it has made "At the sign of the Gates" and "Say It with Flowers" the two most popular sayings in Anaheim. The sign is unobtrusive; it is small enough not to be an eyesore and large enough to be seen. It has meant a great deal to the building up of an excellent business for Mr. Gates.

Incidentally, Mr. Gates backs up the fame that this sign brings him with artistic skill and fine flowers. One of the flower floats which he arranged took first place in the Anaheim Armistice day parade and another was one of the prettiest in the tournament of roses at Pasadena.

MORE BLOOMS FOR MOTHER.

The agitation every Mothers' day regarding the high prices asked for carnations and the complaints regarding the shortage of blooms have led some of the keener-minded growers to experiment in the hope of increasing the production of the wanted flower for the second Sunday in May. The paper of Charles P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan., read before the American Carnation Society at Washington last January, was the first pronouncement regarding such trials. Since then several have told of their attempts. Baum's Home of Flowers, at Knoxville, Tenn., has had success with a method similar to that Mr. Mueller described. Karl P. Baum describes the procedure there in the following way:

"For the last four or five years we have always been able to supply our trade with carnations for Mothers' day boutonnieres at 10 cents per bloom. A few weeks before Mothers' day, we select a house of white and a house of red or dark pink and let them come naturally, not disbudding at all. When the crown, or center, bud opens, it is picked short and used in design work. This leaves four or five shoots that will produce good carnations about one and a half inches in diameter. In this way we realize about 40 cents per stem, producing four or five carnations, and accommodate four to five customers. If we had run these to a single stem with only one bloom, we could only have realized 25 or 30 cents and furnished one flower only to one customer.

"We have always felt that Mothers' day was a day for the masses and by having boutonnieres at 10 cents each we allow the newsboy as well as the millionaire to wear a flower on Mothers' day. We feel that more propaganda should be used in regard to keeping the price of flowers down on Mothers' day. We had a wonderful increase in business and did not raise our price on anything. In fact, some of our prices were lower than those of last year."

COOPER ANSWERS DENVER POST.

Thanks for Scarehead Publicity.

Last week The Review told of the chief piece of publicity florists received this Mothers' day, the scarehead attack in the Denver Post May 8. The views of three Denver florists who commented on the action of their local paper were given at the same time.

Now, George H. Cooper is the florist who handles the money of the local publicity organization in Denver. Though he believed the Post's attack did no harm to florists, he resented the ill-will displayed by the newspaper assuming this attitude toward the trade. So, when he remitted $156 to the Post for the publicity organization's advertising in that journal during April, he enclosed the following rejoinder to the Post's Mothers' day scareheads:

I wish to thank you for your free advertising in the Post on Saturday and Sunday, May 7 and 8. Your suggestion that people wear a dandelion on Mothers' day was most ridiculous, and your criticism of the florists was unjustified and uncalled-for and comes through a lack of understanding our particular line.

There are six days during the year when there are not enough flowers to supply the demand. The rest of the year the demand is only normal and sometimes less than normal. At such times, owing to the fact that our article is so perishable, the growers or producers of flowers have to put them on the market at a loss. Under these circumstances a slight advance when the demand increases on these six days is justifiable.

This advertising which we have been doing is to try to create a demand for flowers during this lull time and carry the sentiment into the homes similar to the sentiment on Mothers' day, as a man often fails to remember to send flowers on his wedding anniversary. This fund for advertising purposes is created by each grower's and retail florist's contributing to this fund and such advertising as you put in the Post is like sticking a knife in the back of each one who contributes. So, before you do any criticising in the future if you will kindly give our product a little more consideration we shall appreciate it. In our advertisement of the latter part of last week we tried to tell the flower-buying public we were unable to supply the increased demand for cut flowers on this day.

I will also say that my carnations were only $2 per dozen and I could not come anywhere near meeting the demand.

The Post had used the name of a prominent clergyman in its articles, stating that each member of his class wore a dandelion Mothers' day. Mr. Cooper states that the Denver Florists' Publicity Association received a letter of apology from this minister, saying that the Post used his name without his knowledge. He also said that he never suggested such a thing as a dandelion, a weed, to be used on Mothers' day.

"Should we ever have to meet this criticism again," says Mr. Cooper, "we will have a letter published to the flower-buying public explaining such matters. I do not believe that this attack did us any damage, as most sensible people laughed at such criticism and felt that the Post had an 'ax to grind,' or it would not have sacrificed the space. We pay little attention to it and keep on advertising just the same in our own way."

Grandview, Mich.—A greenhouse is being erected here by William Davey, who expects to open it soon. He has already purchased some of his seeds and plants.

Gretna, La.—B. M. Wichers & Co., who have been selling water lilies and other aquatic plants to the trade, are obliged to suspend shipments on account of the quarantine which went into effect May 15, laid because of camphor scale found in New Orleans.

S. A. F. NEWS

RATES TO S. A. F. CONVENTION.

Reduced Fares for Members.

Through the efforts of Secretary John Young, members of the Society of American florists will be able to obtain reduced railroad rates in traveling to and from the Washington convention, August 16 to 18. The reduction will vary, however, in accordance with the section of the country in which one resides, since the various passenger associations have not offered the same reduction. In New England territory, for instance, there will be no reduction, but those who travel from that section can secure the benefit of the reduction in territory between New England and Washington. The rates which apply to each member may be gleaned from the regulations below, as issued by each passenger association.

In North Atlantic States.

In the states on the Atlantic coast from New York to Virginia the Trunk Line Association, which governs the territory, has stated:

Round-trip tickets on the identification certificate plan will be sold for the above occasion from trunk line territory as follows:

New York state (east of and including Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge and Salamanca), New Jersey, Pennsylvania (east of and including Erie, Oil City and Pittsburgh), Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and West Virginia (east of and including Wheeling, Parkersburg, Kenova, Orange and Norfolk).

The round-trip tickets will be sold at one and one-half fare with minimum of $1 for the round trip on identification certificates applicable for members of your organization and dependent members of their families only, and the tickets will be good via the same route in both directions only.

Tickets will be sold from the above mentioned territory from August 14 to 16 and will be validated at Washington, D. C., by agents at the regular ticket offices of the lines over which tickets read into Washington August 16 to 19, and when validated tickets will be good for return leaving Washington, D. C., only on date of validation and passengers must reach original starting point within transit limit shown on tickets, but in no case later than midnight of August 21, 1921.

One identification certificate will suffice for each member, including dependent members of his or her family, and it will not be necessary to furnish separate certificates for dependent members of the family.

No Reduction in New England.

No reduction in rates will be allowed in New England, though decreased fare in the intervening territory will be allowed, in accordance with the regulations preceding. The New England association writes:

Careful consideration has been given, and while in accordance with present policies no reductions in fares will be made within New England territory, yet, for the convenience of S. A. F. delegates, we shall be pleased to arrange to issue a tariff and through tickets thereunder upon the basis of regular fares up to New England boundaries plus the reductions applying therefrom.

Before purchasing tickets, it will be necessary for members to obtain identification certificates issued from headquarters.

Tickets will be sold and good going August 14 to 16, validated August 16 to 19, and to reach final destination not later than midnight of August 21, 1921.

In Central Territory.

Lines in Central Passenger Association territory have authorized fare and one-half for round trip on identification certificates, under same conditions and with same selling, validation and final return limit dates as apply from Trunk Line Association territory, which are given above.

Central Passenger Association territory means territory traversed by membership lines and bounded as follows:

thence Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis to Louisville; thence Chesapeake & Ohio to Kenova; thence Ohio river division of Baltimore & Ohio, Kenova to Wheeling; thence the Indiana and Illinois shore of Lake Michigan to Chicago; thence Chicago & Alton, Chicago to Peoria, Ill. (including also the line of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Gardner, Ill., to Seneca, Ill.); thence Toledo, Peoria & Western, Peoria, Ill., to Burlington, Ia.; thence Mississippi river from Burlington, Ia., to Cairo, Ill., including Hannibal, Mo., and including St. Louis, Mo., for traffic to, from or through Illinois (see Note 1 respecting Louisville & Nashville R. R.).

Western States.

The regulations concerning the issuance of tickets in western states have been laid by the Western Passenger Association as follows:

Dates of sale and return limits: August 14 to 16 inclusive, with final return limit of August 21 from Illinois, also from Hannibal and St. Louis, Mo., and Keokuk, Ia. Pacific Coast Gets Excursion Fares.

Summer excursion fares are authorized as far as Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans for members of the society who live in Pacific coast states. The Transcontinental Passenger Association has made the following concessions to S. A. F. members for the meeting:

It has been decided to authorize summer excursion fares from the principal stations in California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and western British Columbia to certain eastern destinations, on basis of approximately one and one-third fares to Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans, added to fares (made on slightly higher basis) tendered from those gateways by eastern connections.

The excursion fare from the principal points on the Pacific coast to Washington, D. C., is $162.30.

Following are the general conditions which govern in the sale of tickets:

Dates of sale: June 15 to August 15.

Final limit: Three months from date of sale, but not later than October 31.

Stop-overs: Stop-overs at all points on going and return trip, except that no stop-overs will be allowed on going trip within California or west of Huntington, Ore., Missoula, Mont., Whitefish, Mont., Fernie, B. C., Kamloops, B. C., and Prince Rupert, B. C.

The publicity committee is in hopes of being able to resume national advertising shortly. The committee is compelled to see that the necessary funds to cover the contracts now under consideration are available when completion of these contracts on their part is called for. The advertisements in publications such as it is found desirable to use are printed in editions which go to press some weeks in advance of the date of issue; hence the anxiety of the committee in regard to speedy fulfillment of the guarantees of our subscribers.

The Washington Convention.

Reservations of space in the trade exhibition at the Washington convention continue to come in and at this time, approximately eleven weeks in advance of the convention dates, a good portion of the space available has been reserved. Nine reservations were made last week, the exhibitors being as follows:

W. M. Woodruff & Son, Lowgap, N. C.
Lion & Co., New York.
Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.
C. U. Liggit, Philadelphia.
Duro Paper Products Co., Chicago.
George Wittbold Co., Chicago.
M. Adler, New York.
Fruitland Nurseries, Augusta, Ga.
Wertheimer Bros., New York.

Membership Drive.

The drive for increased membership in the society is moving apace. Many enthusiastic members are living up to the slogan, "Every member get a member," as is noted in our administration offices by the memberships sent in. There are few communities in this country where a florist is not on the best of terms with his neighbors in the trade, and if that florist is already a member, few words are or should be required to make those outside the fold interested in our organization and our work. The membership fee is so small and the possibilities for benefit so great that, really, argument should not be a necessity. Here is our society, organized and standing for the advancement of our industry in every direction likely to be productive of good—and, it may be said, the elimination of everything likely to be derogatory—ready to take up the problems of the individual members of the trade in so far as they have a bearing on those of the whole trade, without cost, and with a backing in the trade which, even today, is powerful. "What is the extent of your representation?" is usually the first question asked of our delegations when seeking legislation to advance our industry, or relief from legislation likely to prove to our disadvantage. We can hardly hope ever to claim that we are 100 per cent representative of our industry, but we can and must advance beyond our present standing, and if this membership drive attains its object, we shall not have to be ashamed of our statistics as to trade representation.

National Flower Show.

A most enthusiastic meeting of the Cleveland local executive committee which is arranging details covering the 1922 national flower show, to be held in that city next spring, was held in Cleveland May 19. The secretary is compelled to withhold an account of that meeting for a few days, but it may be said that the aims of the national flower show committee were found quite possible of accomplishment, and the arrangements in progress are being vigorously prosecuted.

John Young, Sec'y.

S. A. F. MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Affiliated Organization Week.

Affiliated organization week in the drive for new members for the S. A. F. is scheduled for the week starting May 29. In connection with the activities of this week, the following letter has been sent out to all affiliating organizations of florists all over the country:

Here is an opportunity to get your president on the directorate of the S. A. F. Ask any other organization that has such representation if it is not worth while. Here is a list of the membership required in the S. A. F. to make an organization in any state eligible:

Class A requires 100 S. A. F. members in good standing and includes the following states: Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and California.

Class B requires 75 S. A. F. members in good standing and includes the following states: Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Texas, Maryland and Wisconsin.

Class C requires 50 S. A. F. members in good standing and includes the following states: Minnesota, Kansas, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Colorado and Connecticut.

Class D requires 25 S. A. F. members in good standing and includes the following states: Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Washington and Oregon.

Many subcommittees have been appointed by various florists' organizations to assist in putting over this drive. This is a call to urge those committees on for the final drive and an invitation for those organizations that have no committee at work to get busy and join the procession.

Let us make all organization members 100 per cent S. A. F.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

["Pages from a Garden Notebook," by Mrs. Francis King. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. Is bound in cloth and contains 291 pages of text, besides eighteen full-page half-tone illustrations.]

The name of the author of this book is familiar to a majority of the members of the trade, if for no other reason than that one of the most popular gladioli was named in her honor. What gladiolus catalogue does not include the variety, Mrs. Francis King? Mrs. King is widely known, also, as president of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, and she is a prominent figure at horticultural gatherings, where commercial and noncommercial growers meet on common ground and busily exchange ideas, to the great benefit of all concerned. She has won distinction, furthermore, as the writer of books and articles on horticultural topics. The present cleverly written volume, with its discriminative and stimulative philosophy, will add substantially to her reputation.

As its title implies, its contents are considerably diversified in character, having reference to many different aspects of the same general subject. The paragraphs or other sections of a notebook may not have any close logical connection with one another, but may be the detached nuggets of information or comment which the writer or compiler considered of supreme value. So this book is not composed of successive chapters, in the ordinary sense of the word chapter, but consists, rather, of a series of separate articles or studies—amplified, elaborated notes—each with its own distinct theme and each complete in itself. The first article gives its title to the book. Then follow such headings as "Tulip Time in the Garden," "An English Garden in Spring," "Bright-Berried Growth for the Winter Garden," "The Arnold Arboretum; a National Treasure," and so on.

Probably no part of the book will be of greater interest to the trade than the article entitled "A Review of the American Seed Catalogue," in which Mrs. King offers "a few personal reflections" on the catalogues of a number of the leading firms, expressing her opinions with an unrestrained frankness and freedom of speech which would scarcely be politic or prudent if the author were a member of the trade. The remarks on the catalogues are always thoroughly appreciative, often entirely complimentary, but sometimes mingled with a kindly sharp, semi-humorous sort of criticism. Read the article, Mr. Seedsman. It may or may not mention your catalogue, but in either case it will entertain and edify you, perhaps instruct you. It may provide the opportunity that some of us desire, to "see oursel's as others see us," and thus may "frae mony a blunder free us" in future catalogue-making.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Excellent," observed Geo. Burgevin, of Valentin Burgevin, Inc., Kingston, N. Y., referring to the use of paper pots for carnations from the cutting bed. David Burgevin noted an increasing call for carnations for Mothers' day.

• • • •

"Observe this batch of mixtures," remarked Alfred Goldring, Cobleskill, N. Y., "all supposed to be Beaute Poitevine and purchased as such. Fortunately, few geraniums are sold before showing bloom, or it would be disappointing, but in my case it is important to keep the stock true to name. This is one of the secrets of success with the large wholesale firms, and may be copied by the numerous smaller growers to advantage."

• • • •

S. C. Derrick, Oneonta, N. Y., observed that while Carnation Laddie made a fine showing in the store here, it was at Cooperstown that it was in highest favor. "One would hardly think it possible, but it is a fact that lower-priced stock was preferred in Oneonta. We are doing our best to tune up the trade and to educate our patrons, and we believe our efforts will show greater results."

• • • •

Ralph S. Wyckoff, Oneonta, N. Y., is well pleased with the situation since taking over the Grove street greenhouses. Handicapped by a long practiced custom of cheap prices, he is gradually educating the public to appreciate good values. This is done by producing quality stock and being content with a living margin of profit.

• • • •

"Sounds strange, but it is nevertheless true," observed W. T. Neal, of the Neal Floral Co., Walton, N. Y., "that no sooner does one get established in a new house, such as the Lord & Burnham Co. built for us last summer, than one hungers for more."

• • • •

One of the sights at the H. D. Rohrer place, at Lancaster, Pa., is the manner in which Primula malacoides is allowed to seed and sprout upon the beds by the hundred thousand. "Never have too many," commented Mr. Rohrer. "The same applies to Primula sinensis and cinerarias for Easter."

• • • •

B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa., expect to end the planting season with a record in the nursery department surpassing the most sanguine expectations. "With approximately $100,000 worth of business we feel highly encouraged with the effort of a few years' special attention to this branch."

• • • •

N. L. Boyce, of the Binghamton Seed Co., Binghamton, N. Y., observed that the vagaries of the season are perplexing to both seedsman and planter. Certain it is that better weather could not be desired for the setting out of hardy stock, which is selling freely. Tender plants will have their innings in due season. W. M.

GETTING THE YOUNGSTERS

Here is another man who believes that a good way to increase his sales is to get the children of the neighborhood interested in something in the shop.

Joseph Tuckis operates the Flower Shop, at Rock Island, Ill. There is a manual training course in the local school. One of the things which the boys in that class make is bird houses. All the boys with these bird houses bring them to Mr. Tuckis' store, where he sells all of them that he can and also runs a contest. He is the judge and gives a prize to the boy who brings in the best house. Mr. Tuckis' store was photographed and run as a headliner in the local newspaper and thus was advertised in an excellent manner. This advertising alone was easily worth the trouble taken. But think of the glad hearts of fifty or more boys, the pride and appreciation which fifty or more mothers will have, and the fun that Mr. Tuckis has had! He says that he can notice the difference in his business.

TO SUPPORT SWEET PEAS.

Will you give me information as to the best and cheapest way to stake sweet peas in the field when growing them for market? E. B.—Can.

If you can secure birch brush, nothing is better for sweet pea supports. Hazel or other sprout growths are also good. Doubtless, there is some cut-over land near you where the sprout growths, five to eight feet in height, can be cut. Nothing makes a better support for outdoor sweet peas. Strings, stakes and wire netting are possible substitutes, but not to be compared with brush from deciduous trees, as suggested. C. W.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.

The Market.

Flowers here are plentiful and many excellent blooms are to be found in roses, carnations, etc. Prices are now low and within the reach of everyone. Peonies, iris, cornflowers and other outside varieties are plentiful and much in demand.

Various Notes.

McKellar's force had to work early and late last week, owing to the large number of funeral orders and the decorations for the Hazelton wedding. A large blanket of Premier roses bordered with sweet peas was considered the most beautiful of the three blankets made by this company in the last three weeks. The center of this blanket contained 600 roses and the border was of light pink peas. The piece was made for the funeral of David Jenkins and was only one of the many pieces which kept McKellar's busy till midnight before the day of the burial.

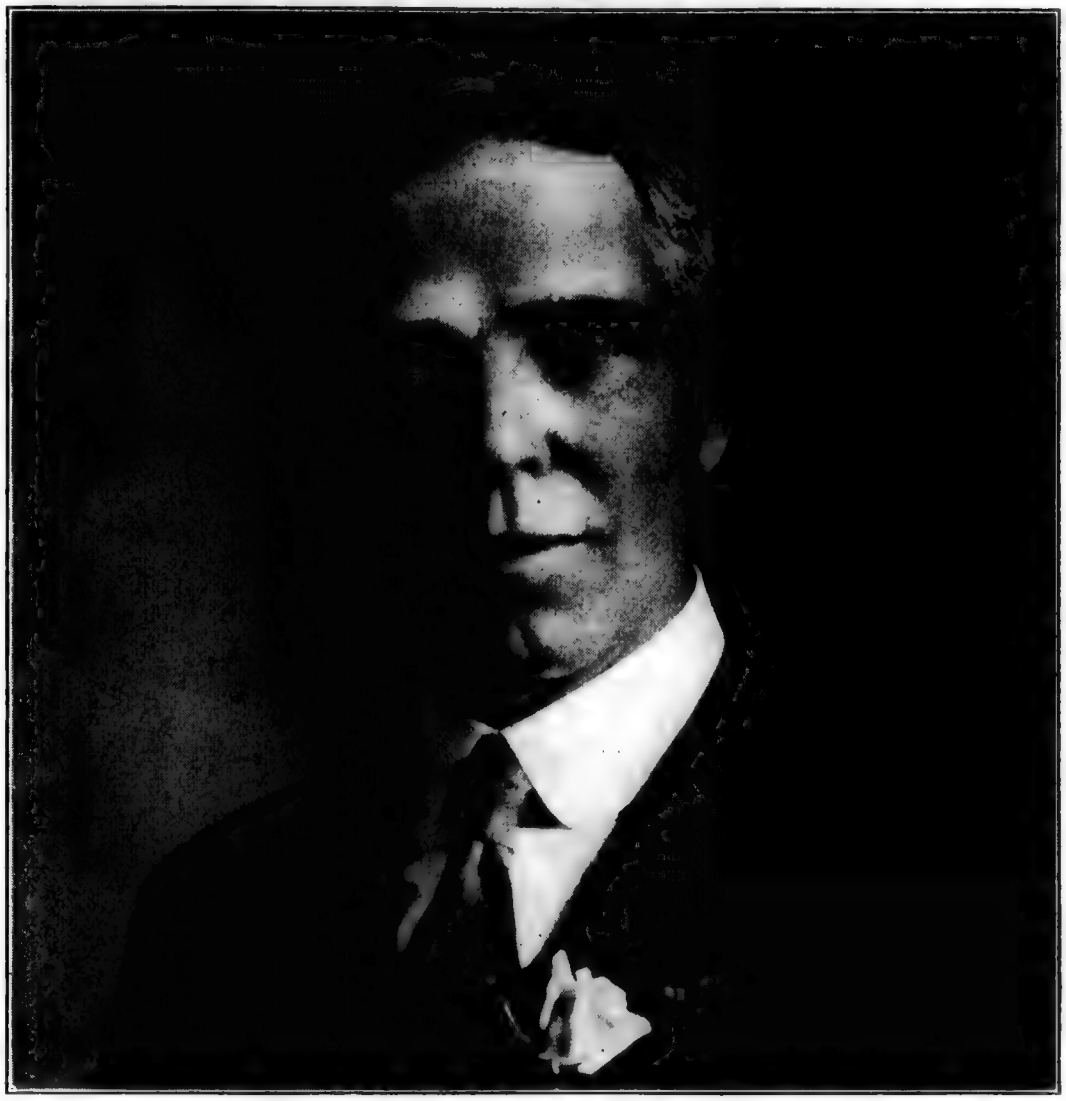
A fire at the store of the Munk Floral Co. Saturday, May 21, caused much excitement but little damage when the front awning caught fire.

A campaign against tree butchers is being planned by James Underwood, who says that these self-styled experts are causing much damage here. An ordinance which Mr. Underwood is drawing up for the council will require all tree trimmers to obtain permits from the city forestry department before they can operate in the city. The establishment of a tree and shrubbery nursery, another project near to Mr. Underwood's heart, will also be urged by him in council soon.

James McKellar has a new Dodge sedan.

Joseph Katona was running a "self-serve" house while the rush was on. The customers walked through the greenhouses, selected what they wanted and paid Mr. Katona at the door. This plan helped him out a great deal.

Mrs. M. Martin's greenhouse, on North Broadway, which was to have been offered at sheriff's sale, is doing so well now that the owners believe they can weather the financial depression.



Joseph A. Martin says bedding plants are being cleaned out at a surprising rate.

Miss Hazel Linville expects to be in her new location soon and will handle a line of cut flowers and baskets.

Leo Miller has some fine cyclamens coming on, but he expects to sell part of them, as he is in need of space for other plants which he has contracted to supply.

Report of the show of the American Iris Society, at the Oldsmobile building last week, appears on another page of this issue. J. W. T.

LEON HENRY ARCHIAS.

AT the age of 17, in 1887, Leon Henry Archias, now president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, bought a half interest in his father's garden and greenhouse business at Helena, Ark. In July, 1899, Mr. Archias opened the Archias Seed Store, at Sedalia, Mo., which was incorporated in 1905. Today, besides being president of the Archias Seed Store Corporation and the Archias Floral Co., he is director of the Sedalia Savings and Loan Association, director of the Security Benefit Association and of the Sedalia cemetery board. He is a director and life member of the S. A. F., one of the oldest members of the F. T. D., member of the American Seed Trade Association and of the Missouri Seed Dealers' Association. He is an Elk, a Modern Woodman and a fourth degree Knight of Columbus. Starting young, Mr. Archias, it may be well said, has gone a long way.

Springfield, Mass. — H. Lockwood Perkins recently entered the trade as a grower of sweet peas, asters, dahlias, gladioli, carnations and zinnias.

The Review brings results.

DON'T "spend money for" advertising; buy it.

FEW florists have failed to make money this season; in other lines losses still are the rule.

DON'T let Memorial day end the season. There's plenty of business to be done during summer.

REDUCTION of sales effort is the most expensive form of economy. Under present conditions its effects are deadly.

THERE seems to be no end to the call for red geraniums and vincas. Looks like all the world wants to fill window boxes.

No railway rate cut until the spring of 1922 is the expression of opinion obtained from a number of prominent officials of the roads.

ATTENTION to delivery costs always repays a retail florist. At best, they are high, but by study and thought they may be appreciably reduced.

WHAT you pay for advertising isn't spent; it's invested. So don't sink your money in a two per cent investment when you can get eight per cent.

IF chrysanthemum cut blooms are as scarce in the fall as rooted cuttings have been this spring, the queen of autumn should come into its own again.

DON'T get the idea and, most of all, don't let your public hold it, that Memorial day is an old or ex-soldiers' day. Memorial day is for all. Encourage everybody to decorate the cemeteries that day.

MOST of the customers who ask for Ampelopsis Veitchii will pay two or three times as much for plants started in pots as they will for dormant stock. You can tell them they gain two months' growth by taking the started plants.

OCEAN travel is increasing at a rate that will soon bring back the prewar days of truckloads of bon-voyage tokens at steamer wharves. In the week ended May 12, according to steamship companies' reports, 12,196 persons sailed for Europe. Two thousand of these were first-class passengers, all of whom are possible recipients of bon-voyage flowers, and 2,650 were second-class, many of whom might be on the delivery list. Tell your patrons about telegraph delivery.

THE lesson of the seasons is that it pays to be early. The man whose stock is on time has all the best of the business.

THE year book of the British Carnation Society, just to hand, is an interesting and well illustrated volume, under the expert editorship of J. S. Brunton.

A SMALLER percentage of the retailers' business of late has been for cash, necessitating increased efforts in the collection department to maintain the bank balance.

REPORTS from dozens of those who use the Classified ads in The Review as the means of selling their spring plants state they have had the best season on record and were sold out all too soon.

EVERY florist who has had a good season in bedding plants should now lay plans for a fall season of shrub planting. Shrubs of many kinds are in short supply, but it will be possible to do as much in autumn as in spring if the proper effort is made.

WILL readers of these lines please send The Review one of the post-cards they use to acknowledge the receipt of orders? Or send the best card you have received in response to orders sent out. This paper would like to give honorable mention to those whose methods are best.

USERS of the advertising section will render great assistance to the office staff if they will state definitely on each advertisement how many insertions are wanted. On a large percentage of the ads the order clerk must make the best guess possible whether to insert one time or until further notice, and many advertisers give no clue as to whether they want display or classified advertising.

TERMS OF SALE.

In ordering plants, roots or bulbs from an advertised list of prices or from a catalogue, a buyer should note with some degree of care the terms on which the goods are offered to him. If there is a difference between the price per dozen and the price per hundred, or between the price per hundred and the price per thousand, as there usually is, it is because the seller is willing to give the buyer the difference in cost between handling ten orders of 100 each, let us say, and one order of 1,000. To order a few bulbs or plants, figuring the remittance at the hundred rate, if it is not a bald attempt to "get away with the difference," is a matter of carelessness not easily condoned. It necessitates correspondence that should not be necessary and causes bother and trouble at a season when, at best, everyone has his hands full. Read the terms of sale quoted in an advertisement or a catalogue before you write an order, and be sure you figure your remittance from the right column of prices.

NOT REPRESENTED.

Slump from post-war easy business was felt first by manufacturers. When the retailers couldn't sell, they didn't buy. The makers of goods had to do business on lower prices first. Then the economical readjustment, as it is called, reached the merchants. Those who had been too greatly enjoying a war demand at war prices found their banker's and creditors' pressure too heavy when the money failed to roll in with the old-time rapidity. And some failures resulted. The manufacturers occupied the bankruptcy lists early in the year. They have been succeeded by the merchants. The list in April shows a marked increase in number of failures among traders, as the commercial agencies call them. But, this trade is pleased to note, those among florists were so insignificantly few in number and small in size that they are not noted in the tabulation of April failures listed by R. G. Dun & Co.

In the following table comparison is made of the number of commercial failures in the United States in April, 1921 and 1920, by leading classes of merchants and the liabilities reported in each class for April this year:

	Number		Liabilities
	1921	1920
General stores	182	34	$ 2,434,430
Grocery and meats	240	111	2,704,953
Hotels and res't	25	34	166,694
Liquors and tobacco	19	8	91,675
Clothing and furn.	167	31	2,257,136
Dry goods, carpets	98	14	1,524,980
Shoes and rubbers	55	7	599,890
Furn. and crockery	26	2	355,799
H'ware and stoves	25	4	1,580,947
Chem. and drugs	32	1	421,003
Paints and oils	4	2	34,571
Jewelry and clocks	16	5	331,439
Books and papers	3	1	29,000
Hats and gloves	12	4	193,037
All other	159	54	4,341,262
Total	1,063	312	$17,066,816

In this tabulation florists are well pleased to be not represented.

COSTS STILL GOING DOWN.

The United States Labor Bureau's compilation of wholesale prices for 327 commodities, the third of the familiar "index numbers," to be issued this month, places the April average (based on 100 for the pre-war year) at 154, as compared with 162 for March, 189 for December and 272 for last May, the high record. This would mark a decline of not quite forty-three and one-half per cent from that maximum. The Dun compilation reckoned it at thirty-six and three-fourths per cent, the Bradstreet index at forty-eight and one-eighth per cent.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. F. S., Ark.—Viola papilionacea. Many southwestern nurseries advertise in The Review.

NOT KNOCKING US, ARE THEY?

Publishing a trade paper, like The Review, on mail-order lines entails a large amount of detail work and there is no feature of the paper which makes so much work as the Classified section—but the Classified ads are a wonderful help to the trade and justify the effort put on them. Like this:

I had 10,000 vinca plants (at advertised price they were worth $350—Ed.); they are all gone and I had to return money and refuse orders for $450. Thanks, boys, for the business that little ad (5 lines, cost 90 cents—Ed.) brought.—Harry White, North Manchester, Ind., May 23, 1921.

That other plants than vincas are in demand among Review readers is shown by letters like this:

My salvia ad surely did sell SOME plants!—Gus. Obermeyer, Parkersburg, W. Va., May 23, 1921.

Then listen to the large dealer who used a series of full-page ads as well as many Classified ads this winter and spring:

We are through for the season. We have had fine success with your paper.—P. Vos & Son, Grand Rapids, Mich., May 20, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

B. Hammond Tracy, Jr.

The body of B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., whose death by drowning off the coast of Brittany, France, May 5, was reported in The Review May 12, is being brought home for burial by Paul Doolin, his close friend and fellow student. The young men were graduates of Harvard, class of 1920; both were awarded fellowships for French universities and they had been inseparable companions during the year. Mr. Tracy had just been awarded a renewal of the American Ambulance Fellowship, which would have entitled him to a second year's study in France.

The funeral services will be held in the Congregational church at Wenham, Mass., Thursday, June 2.

Frank L. Rumrey.

Frank L. Rumrey, florist of Stoughton, Mass., died of heart trouble Sunday, May 8. He was 60 years of age. He had lived in Stoughton all of his life, having been born there December 19, 1861. He went to the public school in that town and afterward joined the ranks of the florists. He leaves his widow and one brother, Charles Rumrey, of Stoughton. The funeral services were held from the home on Pleasant street and the burial was at North Truro.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Roses at this time are particularly abundant and of fair quality, at $8 to $12 per hundred. Carnations are in fair supply.

There is much activity among all the florists and growers, who are preparing for Memorial day. Bedding plants, no doubt, will be in short supply within a few days, as the demand is heavy. Geraniums are most in demand, retailing for $3 to $5 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Coombs' Main street store featured Columbia roses last week and their windows attracted special attention with a neat arrangement of vases full of the roses. These roses were grown at the company's South street range, where N. C. Osborn holds sway. Great credit is due Mr. Osborn for the remarkable blooms he has been sending in. Among others that he grows at South street are Ophelia, White Ophelia, Premier and Crusader. Coombs' Asylum street store reports a heavy demand for funeral pieces.

The first real summer weather was with us Saturday and Sunday, May 21 and 22, the thermometer registering 90 degrees.

At the Whiting Greenhouses, on Whiting lane, of which Carl Peterson is the proprietor, much activity is seen. Thousands of geraniums, amaranths, begonias, stocks and other bedding plants are in bud or blooming ready for Memorial day. Situated in the newest residential part of the city, Mr. Peterson has built up a heavy and ever increasing demand for everything he grows. In his houses he grows Matchless, Enchantress, Nelson, Fisher, Aviator and Ethel Fisher carnations. Outside, Mr. Peterson has just planted 40,000 carnations and several thousand violets. The soil is a rich, sandy loam and Mr. Peterson says the application of several hundred loads of well rotted cow manure is what does the work. Early this summer two new boilers are to be installed on the range.

C. B. M.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The week ending May 21 was one of the dullest experienced in the cut flower market for some time. The supply was really less than normal for the season, but an exceptionally small demand, for which no real reason could be advanced, made clearances difficult, and even with concessions much stock failed in movement. Carnations were in oversupply, so much so that quantities of them went into the hands of the street men, and the public bought them from the hand carts at 10 cents per dozen, something that has not happened for many a day. Roses and practically everything else, except white lilies, suffered, and clearances for Saturday, May 21, were made at unquotable prices.

Monday, May 23, conditions were hardly different, excepting that there was little held-over stock to be moved. Peonies, mostly local, are arriving in large quantity and are of fair quality. A day or two of warm, bright weather has brought on the peony crop to its full extent.

Roses are in generous supply; the heat is responsible for much opened stock. American Beauty is abundant, and clearances of arrivals are slow. With an oversupply of hybrid teas, values have gone down considerably from recent quotations, and the iceboxes are carrying a burden of stock. The variety Premier appears to stand up best, with Ophelia, perhaps, next. The quality generally, however, is fair for the season.

Carnations continue in oversupply. White lilies are not plentiful. Lily of the valley is too plentiful, meeting only a small demand. A few gardenias are coming in and meet fair sales.

Cattleyas are in fair supply and the quality is good in the best grades, with gigas predominating. Sweet peas are overabundant, the demand absorbing the best. Quantities of iris hang fire, so that the ash barrel is the best customer. A few single violets are coming in. They are of good quality for so late in the season, but they meet no demand.

Herbaceous flowers are in heavy supply and are generally of good quality. There is a fair demand for snapdragons, centaureas, blue lace flowers, calendulas, pansies, stocks, alyssums, lupines, bouvardias, delphiniums, mignonette, myosotis, sweet williams, daisies and other subjects. Oriental poppies, hippeastrums and pyrethrums are in small supply and meet only a moderate demand.

Various Notes.

The Associate Retail Florists met Wednesday evening, May 25, and the wholesalers were invited to attend. One or two sectional meetings were held last week and the levy of one-half of one per cent tax on sales to retailers came in for earnest discussion. It looks now as though this plan of collection for the publicity fund will go through. A list of retailers agreeing to it has been posted in the Eighteenth street flower market, and it is expected that during the next week or two this list will be extended considerably.

The Flushing Garden Club held a flower show in the Flushing Public park May 21, for the benefit of the convalescents' fund of the Flushing hospital. Mrs. John W. Paris, the club's president, took out insurance for $1,500, to protect the club against possible loss through inclement weather, a rather novel procedure.

Henry H. Davies, formerly general manager of the business of John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., has left Floral Park and will spend the summer at Alexandria bay.

Jacob Schaefer, a florist of Middle Village, N. Y., died Wednesday, May 18.

Recent visitors in New York were Robert Craig, Philadelphia, and Wallace H. Eiss, of the William F. Kasting Co., Buffalo. Mr. Craig visited a few of his many friends in the neighborhood of the city and in New Jersey.

Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., returned Friday, May 20, from Cleveland, where he reports an enthusiastic meeting of local interests in regard to the arrangements being made for the national flower show to be held there next spring.

The little table of temperatures tells the story of the market as fully as can be done in columns of close-packed types. Those who, through long association with it, have become familiar with the action of this market recognize that the weather is the most certain and the most uncertain influence with which the trade contends. It is the most certain influence because weather, favorable or unfavorable, we have always with us; certain also because various kinds of weather produce the same varying manifestations season after season and year after year. For instance, abnormal heat always hurts. The only uncertain thing about the weather as a market influence is that no one can foretell the date of change.

Sometimes the weather favors the market; at other times, like last week, it works disaster. The heat wave which arrived May 19 had the usual effect of crowding the market with stock, of making flowers soft, of decreasing the demand, and of destroying all semblance of stability in prices.

It was remarkable how well shipping trade held up. Increased work and great care became necessary to select the stock for a journey, but the out-of-town orders were the mainstay of the market. Out-of-town buyers as a rule are willing to pay fair prices if they get the right kind of stock. What was left, as the result of the heat, had to be sold for what it would bring.

Even more to be regretted than the effect on prices was the effect on the quality of stock. The heat resulted in many open roses and in soft carnations, but its worst effect was on sweet peas; it burned them up. Coming so close to Memorial day, the conditions gave increased concern with each twenty-four hours of their continuance. It had been hoped the weather would remain cool until after May 30. A week ago it could be said that the average quality of all the flowers in this market was the best ever known at this time of year; it was the general wish that quality would hold up at least until after the days of big demand. Now the hope is for cool days for shipping to minimize the danger of loss in transit.

The heat wave has had a remarkable effect in changing opinion as to the probable supply and demand for Memorial day. A week ago almost everyone was agreed that the demand would be the largest ever known and that the supply would be much less than usual, principally due to a shortage in peonies. The heat wave changed all that. A week before Memorial day it was the consensus that there will be enough flowers to go around. The new view is based, first, on increased supply and, secondly, on decreased demand. The local peonies will be in; indeed, some near-by crops came in last week. Say there will be 60,000 to 75,000 dozens more peonies than were expected; that will go a long way toward relieving a shortage of other flowers. But of course the cuts of most other flowers also have been increased. A large number of orders from out of town have been booked, but Memorial day has earned a reputation of being a last-minute day, and the increase in supply here, due to the weather, means an increase in the supply at other places and a consequent lessening of the need for calling on this market.

The weather for the last four days before the holiday, May 26 to 29, will be a big factor in determining the size of the demand and the completeness of the clean-up. Given cool weather, the rush of last-minute orders is likely to be the greatest ever known. With high temperature the buyers may not feel like taking many chances.

The market will be wide open Sunday, May 29. There will be heavy shipping that day. May 30 most of the wholesale houses will be open only until noon.

Various Notes.

One of the problems of the commission houses this month is that of finance. Collections are not so brisk as they might be, and the banks are reluctant to increase loans, but growers must be paid weekly. Some of the commission houses will run up sales records of from $100,000 to $200,000 for May, eighty-five per cent of which goes out to growers and a good bit in wages and rent, with little of that money coming back until about the middle of June. It takes capital and credit.

Because of the warm spell the Gould Co., which had not expected to be in, was able to cut about 15,000 dozens of peonies at Onarga for Memorial day.

We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow, loved and were loved and now we lie in Flanders Fields.

Eric Johnson looks on Memorial day as a great day, the greatest for him if not for all florists. It chances Mr. Johnson was born May 30. It was in 1888.

Bert Cole, of George Wienhoeber's staff, is enjoying a new car, but instead of buying one with his own name on the radiator he bought a Nash.

Arno P. Schramm and Mrs. Schramm have sent out cards announcing the arrival of Kenneth James Schramm, May 3.

The McRee Flower Farm, at Gulfport, Miss., has been shipping gladioli to this market for several weeks, the first having been received about April 15. About four commission houses have handled them. When the stock arrived in good shape it sold well, at about half the price of forced local gladioli. Frequently, however, the spikes have suffered in transit and have not been easy to sell.

if they please, Poehlmann's is holding fast to the older favorite. They have benched 50,000 young plants, from which they will cut this summer.

Carl Netschert Co., pioneer Chicago dealers in florists' supplies, were petitioned into bankruptcy May 23. One of the petitioning creditors was Oscar Leistner.

H. B. Kennicott, president of Kennicott Bros. Co., states that J. E. Pollworth is no longer associated with that company.

John A. Michal has replaced the hail-broken glass in his range at 7045 Stony Island avenue and has the shading on for summer. While making the repairs the place has been fenced and painted, presenting a fresh and attractive appearance. It made a busy spring for him and the work scarcely had been finished before the rush of bedding and window-box planting began. Mr. Michal works night and day at this season and has much assistance in the store and office from his pretty and competent wife.

T. E. Waters reports a splendid call for memorial wreaths of more or less elaborate character. He had worked up a large stock in anticipation of a large eleventh-hour demand and says he has been well repaid for the preparations. This week orders received by telegraph have been shipped by express the same day.

Carnation plants in the field have suffered for want of rain during the recent hot spell. N. J. Wietor says most of the growers on the ridge are likely to be short of stock by planting time.

A. J. Zech reports growers in the suburbs began cutting peonies May 23. Before the heat wave they did not expect to cut anything before June.

Edward Galavan has gone to New York on a short business trip.

H. B. Kennicott says his company never had more advance orders for Memorial day, nor heavier ones.

W. J. Smyth and Mrs. Smyth are spending the week ends at their place at Antioch, but will not take up their residence there until July 1.

E. H. Pershing, of Logansport, was here May 19, accompanied by his father, O. H. Pershing, of Muncie. Each runs a seed store with a side line, which latter O. H. Pershing says is a necessity for every retail seedsman because of the short season. In his own case he has a mail-order business in a manufactured article. The son started a flower department six months ago and its success indicates that soon the seeds will be the side line.

O. R. Eckhart, the St. Paul wholesaler, was here May 23, looking us over. He says this has been the biggest season since he started in business and that May will be the biggest month. He likes to come to Chicago once in a while to see what is in this market and how things are being done.
